The wedding march from "Lohengrin" was used for the processional and Mendelssohn's march for the recessional.

The church chancel was a scene of beauty, banked with palms and ferns and four baskets of white gladioli and seven-branched candelabra holding lighted white cathedral tapers. The little prayer bench was covered with white satin pillows and on each side was a huge basket of white gladioli tied with white satin ribbon bows.

Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion was worn with a coronet of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book with three purple throat orchids and showered with white satin ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Cranford, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore an ice blue satin dress embroidered in silver, and made on princess lines, with sweetheart neckline and full skirt. She carried a bouquet of rosebuds and asters tied with pastel satin ribbon streamers.

Miss Howell, sister of the bridegroom and maid of honor, wore a moon pink satin dress, made with tight bodice, sweetheart neckline and full tulle skirt. She carried a bouquet similar to that of the matron of honor.
