Fourth Ship Named For Civil War Torpedo Hero

THE fourth American fighting ship to be named in honor of Commander William Barker Cushing, the first American naval officer to prove the efficacy of the torpedo, has just been launched at the Staten Island, New York, yard of Bethlehem Steel Company. The new vessel, a destroyer, was sponsored by Commander Cushing's daughter, Miss Katharine A. Cushing, of Fredonia, N. Y.

Commander Cushing, whom Admiral Farragut called "the hero of the Civil War," died in 1874 at the age of 32. Commander Cushing was the first naval officer to use a semi-moving torpedo. It was the employment of this weapon which, on October 27, 1864, resulted in his greatest exploit—the sinking at Plymouth, N. C., of the iron-clad Confederate ram, the Albemarle, which had put seven Union ships out of action. The Albemarle was a successor to the famed iron-clad Merrimack, and both these ships were involved in historic events which revolutionized naval warfare and led to the supplanting of wooden ships with armored vessels.

Cushing dropped the torpedo in such a manner that it came up under the Albemarle. Just as he exploded the torpedo, a 100-pounder on the Albemarle blew his launch out of the water. Only three men, including Cushing, escaped. The rest of the crew were blown to pieces or captured. But the Albemarle had sunk her last Union vessel.

Save Good Peanuts For Planting Seed

Growers who have peanuts suitable for planting purposes should by all means save a supply of seed for 1944, says Dr. E. S. Collins, in charge of Extension Agronomy at N. C. State College. For those growers who do not have good peanuts for planting, the Commodity Credit Corporation is setting aside through the crushers and the Growers Peanut Cooperative a sufficient amount of peanuts of all three types for planting purposes. It has been announced that peanuts which have been determined to be good for planting purposes will be sold to dealers by the Commodity Credit Corporation for sale to farmers for planting purposes. Prices for seed peanuts have not as yet been determined. Peanuts have been harvested under excellent conditions this season and the germination on the nuts should run comparatively high, especially where there was no rain to damage them while in the stock. Last year there was a shortage of good peanuts for planting and many growers were forced to plant run-of-the-mill nuts low in germination. Poor stands resulted and yields were correspondingly reduced. The present program has been inaugurated so that growers will have a good supply of peanuts for planting purpose in 1944.

Homemakers Asked To Store Potatoes

Nutrition specialists with the State College Extension Service urge North Carolina homemakers to buy Irish potatoes in large quantities this fall. Homemakers who take advantage of the abundant supply of this nutritious food will help to relieve the shortage of farm store space, and assure their families of plenty of wholesome food through the winter. The Food Distribution Administration offers these rules for housewives who plan to take advantage of the national Victory Food Selection of October 21 to November 6. First, inspect the potatoes carefully for decay, and take out all decayed potatoes before storing. Segregate the badly bruised or cracked potatoes and use them first. This will cut down the future deterioration. Be careful not to bruise potatoes, as bruises lead to decay. Find a dark, cool place, preferably one where the temperature does not rise much above 40 degrees. However, in the fall a temperature as high as 60 degrees would be satisfactory for a month or six weeks. By maintaining a temperature of 40 degrees or under, potatoes will keep for 3 to 5 months after harvest, depending upon the variety. For this storage, a cellar, closet, back porch or barrel buried in the backyard will do. If a cellar or back porch is used, be sure that the potatoes are not placed in the light, as it will cause them to turn greenish and taste bitter. A cloth or paper covering, or a bag, may be used to shut out the light, the Food Distribution Administration says.

Remove Livestock From Pasture Now

Livestock should be taken off pasture just after the first frost so that the pasture grasses may store up food for the winter months and be in a position to make a quick growth next spring, suggests Dr. R. L. Lovorn, forage crop agronomist of the Agricultural Experiment Station at State College. He says that pastures are like bears in that they have to store up food for the winter months. Bears live through the long winter period of hibernation on the fats which they stored up in their bodies through summer feeding. Grasses must build up a strong root system to live through the winter in good condition and be prepared to make a maximum of growth for spring grazing. "The growers will note that grasses which have been protected by brush in the pasture and plants around fence posts and like places not only make the earliest spring growth but also the large amount of grass for early grazing," Lovorn says. He also points out that where cattle are allowed to run on the pasture during the winter months after all grazing has passed a large amount of physical damage is done to the pasture and it takes quite some time in the spring for the pasture to recover from this bad treatment. Removing cattle from pasture just after the first frost will give the grasses time to build up a winter reserve of food that will bring earlier grazing and more grazing next spring.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Para-Ski Troopers When will this war end? Nobody knows, so the Army is continuing its training of Para-Ski Troops. They're parachute troops who help their way about on skis or any other place in snow covered mountainous country.

A great measure of the success of Russia's victories last winter is attributed to these troops who move with the silence of a snowflake. Our work on the home front is not so hazardous as that of the Para-Ski Troopers but it is important that we perform our daily tasks and make every effort to increase our regular purchase of War Bonds.
