Advice For Care
Of Clothes Given

During war times when women are more conscious of the value of clothes and more aware of the need for care of them, says Willie N. Hunter, Extension Specialist in clothing at State College. For this reason, she offers the following practical advice.

When driving or sitting and wearing a coat, be sure to unbutton it all the way. This is to relieve strain on the seams and buttons and to prevent stretching the back.

A soft brush is a good aid in keeping a suit or coat looking new. Brush after every wearing as the tiny, unseen dust particles that gather in wool will combine with the natural oils wool absorbs from the skin to destroy the fabric and make the coat look shabby early.

If a napped fabric gets wet, wait until it dries to brush it. Then, Miss Hunter says, brush it gently in the direction of the nap. However, around the pockets and collar a stiffer brush, as a whisk broom, is needed.

Overloading pockets will strain and stretch them, and often it tears the corners. To prevent buttons and pins from jabbing, use clips and well fitted caps, she says.

Should a coat or suit get soaked in the rain, let it dry slowly in a well ventilated room away from heat. After it is dry, brush it well.

Miss Hunter concludes her clothing advice with a word about hanging clothes. Put a suit on a hanger as soon as possible, don't lay it carelessly over a chair, and be sure it is set squarely in the hanger before leaving it.
