Hundreds of young men graduating from North Carolina high schools will have their final opportunity within the next two months before they become subject to call by Selective Service. This reminder was given yesterday by Lieutenant Commander C. B. Neely of Raleigh, officer in charge of recruiting and induc-tion for the Navy in North Caro-lina, after reviewing lists of 17-year old boys who will soon com-plete their high school career.

"Those young men who have plete their high school career. "Those young men who have been fortunate enough to complete school before having to register with Selective Servic will do well to apply for enlistment in the Navy before it is too late." Commander Neely said. "High school graduates have a splendid opportunity to further their education by selecting the Navy with its more than 50 trade schools offering diverse occupations.
