ELBERTON, July 17.—There's a four-week-old calf here that's the talk of Elbert county. It ought to be; it's been giving milk since it was eight hours old. Dr. F. W. Allen rubbed his eyes in wonderment when he saw the precious grade Guernsey, owned by R. E. Beggs, and he rushed a schaple of the milk to the state chemist, Dr. C. R. Clarke, ir Atlanta.

Dr. Clarke rubbed dis eyes towhen he found the sample showed 7.4 per cent butterfat and was apparently normal sweetmilk. "Why cow's milk usually is 4.5 or 5 per cent butter," excusimed the Elberton doctor.

"And do you know, that calf is giving about a quart of milk a day."

Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary, How Does Your Garden Grow?

The success of some programs for converting part of the automobile frectories to civilian production as soon as the German phase of the war ends will probably have much to do with whether we have a major depression after the war or whether we will be able to turn from war prosperity to peacetime prosperity.

At a meeting of the leading au-

At a meeting of the leading automobile manufacturers with the War Production board, blueprints were suggested by the WPB for the production of 2,000,000 automobiles within 12 months after X-Day (the day the war with Germany ends). Under the plan the automobile manufacturers would begin immediately to plan production and place orders for materbegin immediately to plan produc-tion and place orders for mater-ials with the understanding that the materials would be delivered as soon as possible after X-Day. These orders for materials are called "blue orders," probably de-rived from the blue airraid signal designating the start of activities.

The automobile industry leaders, however, rejected the WPB plan as impractical and intimated that they could not do much about conversion while they were totally engaged in war production.

that they could not do much about conversion while they were totally engaged in war production.

Since the automobile industry is the largest production group in our country, its ability to turn wartime jobs into peacetime jobs without an unemployment gap will determine how most other industries can handle this complicated conversion. It is believed by the government that if a plan is worked out carefully enough, it may be possible for these giant conlerns to shift gradually into civilian production. The plan was to make cars similar to the 1942 models, with the first cars costing the consumer at least 25 per cent more than the same car cost in 1942. But the present attitude of the industry leaders indicated that the industry will not listen to such a plan at present.

If the government-industry conference plan does eventually produce a workable program for the conversion of automobile plants, it is probable that the WPB will get together with one industry after another to figure out how each can shift to civilian production with a minimum of headaches and with as little unemployment as possible.

One of the great problems in

One of the great problems in conferences of this kind is the ef conferences of this kind is the effect they have on morale among the people. It is feared that if there is too much talk now about civilian production many people are apt to feel that the war is pretty well over. The attempt of large numbers of war workers to shift to peacetime jobs, which necessitated the freezing of men in war jobs beginning July 1, is the best example of this attitude.

Actually the demands for war roduction in some vital indusproduction in some vital industries is greater than ever right now and will continue indefinitely. The War Manpower commission has made several public appeals recently for men who are

Soldiers' Wives and Post-War Married Life

A psychologist offers some mighty sensible advice to husbands and wives separated by war. He believes "lack of tolerance" rather than loss of affection is most likely to cause postwar marriage difficulties.

The wife has built wonderful pictures of how perfect life will be when her husband gets back. And he dreams of evenings with her by the fire with a glass of beer, friendly conversation, and no problems or worries.

Of course, it isn't true that just getting back together will make life perfect. There'll be the same domestic problems, the same complications and adjustments, as always. That's where tolerance is going to be mighty important. Tolerance for a husband who spills ashes on the carpet sometimes. Tolerance for a wife who spends a little too much money for a funny-looking hat. Yes, tolerance is a mighty good foundation for any marriage.

have carried en since Pearl Harbor speaks louder than words. When war started telephone workers were already in the midst of the greatest construction program ever undertaken. As war progressed their job grew more complicated. However, every war telephone service demand was met on or ahead of schedule, though it meant working long extra hours day after day.

While doing this tremendous war job, the urgent telephone needs of the public were not forgotten. There are today more than 500,000 more telephones in service in the Southern Bell territory than in 1940, and service is being waintained in spite of the fact that nearly one-third of our male employees are in the armed forces. Telephone operators are now completing more than 450,000 calls each month than in the summer months of 1940.

Accepting their responsibilities as citizens, telephone folks have purchased millions of dollars of War Bonds and are continuing to invest more than ten per cent of their regular wages every month in bonds. You will find them doing Red Cross work-nurse's aid work-donating their blood-in fact you'll find telephone folks in nearly every civic movement designed to aid in our war effort and the betterment of the communities in which they live.

Telephone workers have accepted their wartime responsibilities, appreciating the vital part they have in the successful prosecution of the war-shouldering their tasks cheerfully and unselfishly as the men in areas shoulder
