"The Hidden Army" Being Shown Workers

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 16.—A new picture entitled, "THE HIDDEN ARMY" has been released for showings to war plant workers and labor unions. This film reveals the important roles which are being played by the women of America in building the greatest war machine the world has ever known.

In "THE HIDDEN ARMY" Hitler is pictured in an Allied prison cell. The war has ended and he is writing his memoirs. The film then tells the story of one of his many mistakes—his failure to believe that American women would pitch in and aid in the over-all war effort.

Reports reached Germany that American women were spending more money on cosmetics and silk stockings than was being spent for weapons of war. How then could women like that be expected to supplement manpower in the factories and in the army itself? But Hitler reckoned without remembering American versatility and ingenuity.

Hundreds of thousands of American women answered the call of industry and hundreds thousands of others enlisted in women's uniformed services. Factories and war plants hummed with continued activity and production soared to unthinkable heights. Army and navy installations saw uniformed Wacs, WAVES, SPARS, and Marine come forward to take over men's jobs and the ranks of our combat forces swelled. America's hidden army of serious-minded, hard-working women had thrown Hitler's ideas of pampered, helpless womanhood in his face—thrown them in the form of fire and steel.

Bookings for "THE HIDDEN ARMY" can be made by contacting Industrial Services Branch, Room 611 in the Old Post Office Building, Atlanta, Ga.

"FILM COMMUNIQUE No. 10" which features the destruction of the Japanese 6th Division is another new film which has just been released for showings to the public. The 6th Division is the same Japanese unit which ruthlessly burned, pillaged, and destroyed the city and citizens of Nanking.

Actual combat footage shows American troops in the showdown battle for one of the now-famous Bougainville strongpoints—Hill 700. The annihilation of this vicious Japanese unit is climaxed by closing scenes which show our troops wiping out every spurt of enemy resistance.

An exciting aerial sequence taken from a B-26 Marauder shows war workers the results of a concentrated artillery barrage in Italy—shows them what the guns and shells they've made are doing! For information and booking dates for "FILM COMMUNIQUE No. 10" and "THE HIDDEN ARMY" contact the Industrial Service Branch, Room 611, Old Post Office Building, in Atlanta, Ga.

Willie and Lester Kendrick, R-3, Gastonia, in the Union Section, are planning to be cutting pine and poplar pulpwood. Fine pulpwood will be thinned from thick growing stands to give the trees more spacing. Poplar pulpwood will be cut from the tops and laps of larger trees after veneer blocks are cut. This will result in the complete utilization of wood with little waste. They plan to use their own labor and teams to harvest these wood products during the winter and other idle periods.

Charlie M. Faires, R-3, Gastonia, located near Robinson School, mowed sericea meadow strip and waterways for hay recently. These waterways not only furnish some hay, but also carry terrace water in the most effective way.

J. Palmer Lewis, R-1, Dallas, located near Hardin has a fine crop of corn following crimson clover turned for soil improvement. Turning under winter legumes is one sure way to increase the productivity of the soil and to replace the nitrogen needed for plant growth in nature's own way.

Terrace lines were staked this week to be built by the County Terracing Units and other farm equipment on the following farms: Fred Ferguson, R. A. Jackson and Marshall Parham, all located in Crowders Creek section; H. C. Langford and John Sheppard, RFD, Bessemer City; and J. J. Niven, Dallas, Road.

L. P. Richard, R-1, Dallas, located above Willis School, sowed several acres of sericea this past spring on small grain cut for hay. He fertilized it with 300 pounds acid phosphate per acre and has an unusually good stand for the first year. Some of the plants are knee high this first season and has a good stand over the ground. He plans to use this field for permanent hay to help meet his hay needs.

Every 60 seconds of the working day, the life insurance business pays 9 death claims for a total of $8,800; makes other benefit payments to living policyholders of $9,500; handles the servicing of nearly 1,000 policies; underwrites 140 new policies.
