FOREIGN GIFTS ALSO RATIONED

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The OPA ruled today that gifts of rationed food and shoes no longer may be shipped to civilians in other countries unless ration stamps are surrendered.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles announced that the only exceptions will be rationed food for servicemen overseas and shoes for representatives of this government abroad.

"What we aim to control," said Mr. Bowles, "is the individual gifts people have been able to buy out of our civilian supplies and send to other civilians abroad without paying ration stamps. These gifts — which have been chiefly packages of rationed food — have been sent abroad in increasing numbers during recent months.

"Now ration stamps must be paid for them. Those of us who want to help out civilian friends and relatives abroad can do it by foregoing a part of our own share of scarce rationed foods."

The OPA action follows criticism by Representative Latham

Soil Conservation

Edward Hollner, R.F.D. Stanley, is well pleased with the quality and quantity of hay cut from close to an acre patch of alfalfa, sowed last fall. He cut three crops of hay so far and got up around a ton of hay at each cutting. He plans to sow an additional acreage this fall, to have two acres for permanent hay, which will supply the hay needs for the farm. This plan will enable him to turn under annual legumes of peas and lespedeza entirely for soil improvement. The soil building plan on this farm is already showing splendid results in that the wheat yields have increased from nine bushels per acre last year to 21 bushels per acre this year.

Terrace lines were staked recently to be built by the county terracing units and by farm tractors on the following farms: G. F. Shuford, W. J. Dells, Mrs. Regino Stewart, W. L. Hastings, F. F. Allen, Jim Boggs and R. L. Lewis,

Republican of New York, of the ration-free shipment program. Recently Latham said in the House that such shipments offered the danger of a "fraud on the American people."

Tom Lee Rhyne Route 1 Dallas plans to cut some large hickories out of the pasture and put on the market. Hickory is in demand for tool handles, furniture uses and trees of good quality can be marketed for additional farm income. Timber species of all kinds are in demand, so investigate the uses and needs before cutting of good quality trees for fuel wood.

Soil samples for alfalfa seedings this fall have been taken recently and sent to Raleigh for analysis on lines of fertilizer requirements for J. A. Cobb Route 2 Gastonia, C. R. Gardner, South Gastonia and W. Ed. Ricks Rte. 1 Kings Mountain.

W. D. Plunk, Route 1 Dallas, located in old Willis school section has been getting some good grazing from kudzu, during the recent dry spell, when the pastures were suffering for lack of moisture. Kudzu makes an excellent dry weather temporary pasture to keep milk production up when permanent pasture gets short.
