VICTORY BOND DRIVE STARTED MONDAY 29

12 Counties Already Passed Their Quota

Drive Being Led By D. R. Mauney, Sr., Chairman of the Seven Previous War Loan Drives Here.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29.—The $11,000,000,000 victory loan drive—to pay the war costs that outlived the conflict—got under way today with at least 12 counties throughout the nation reporting they had surpassed their quotas on the opening day.

Earlier in the day President Truman bought the first of the new $200 "E" bonds, honoring the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

In radio addresses prepared for delivery at 10:30 o'clock, eastern standard time, tonight, Secretary of the Treasury Vinson and Veterans Administrator Omar Bradley urged wholehearted support for the last of the loan campaigns.

Bradley said that "the end of the war did not end the cost of war."

"The disabled must be cared for and returned to productive lines," Bradley said in listing some of the causes to which the victory loan funds will go. "The dependents of those who died are entitled to the care of the nation."

"There are more than 50,000 veterans now receiving education, or vocational training and use in training now are nothing compared to what may be expected in the future. Applications for study or training are now coming into the educational division at the rate of more than 2,000 a day."

"All of the provisions of the 'G. I.' Bill of Rights must be paid for and it is to carry on this work that all of us are being asked to buy victory bonds."

Vinson added to Bradley's list the obligations to be met as a result of the cancellation of war contracts, and concluded:

"Finally, Americans will buy bonds because in doing so they will help avert the dangers of inflation. This is the last time the government is calling upon the people to buy extra bonds."
