

ANNUAL SPRING FASHION SHOW TUESDAY 23

Pre-School Clinic Schedules Given

Plans are being made for Pre-school Clinics or Beginner's Days. We would like to make a suggestion which we hope will make these days happier for children beginning school in September. Get the "shots" of diphtheria and whooping cough, protection and small-pox vaccination for your child NOW. Do not wait until the day of the clinic. There will be less confusion and fear of "needles" on Beginner's Day if you can do this. Take your children to your pediatrician or go to the Health Center without delay. Clinic hours at our Health Center are Tuesday and Thursday 1 to 3 P. M.

The schedule for the preschool clinics in the area:

Wednesday, March 24, 8:00 A. M. Elementary No. 2
Friday, March 26, 8:00 A. M., Elementary No. 1
Wednesday, March 31, 8:00 A. M., Tryon
Wednesday, April 7, 12:00 Noon John Chavis.

TAKE CHILDREN TO THE CLINIC

Miss Annie Robinson, director public health nursing, urges all parents of children who will enter school next fall, to be thinking in terms of what can be done to prepare the children for school entrance.

Children who will enter school for the first time next fall are those that have their sixth birthday on or before October 16. These children should be taken to pre-school clinics regardless of whether or not they have received all of their immunization shots, Miss Robinson said. Schedules of the 50 clinics to be set up will be announced in the near future.

Clinics are tentatively set to get underway by the middle of March. Some will be split into two sessions. Miss Robinson said the clinics are a joint project of schools throughout the county and the public health department and are designed to prepare children for school entrance.

Three reasons were set forth by Miss Robinson to encourage parents to take their children to the clinics, which in reality is a beginning health department and to prepare a child for school but to acquaint him with the school he will enter in the fall.

The first is to let the child see the school which he will attend. He can visit classrooms and try out the school department and see school he will be familiar with the facilities.

The clinics are important secondly, for the purpose of supplying the schools with information and data for records on registration and enrollment.

The third is for the child to be examined by nurse and physician if necessary and be given immunization shots if they have not previously been taken.

If the child has been examined and given immunization shots by a physician, he should still attend the clinics and be examined by school officials the benefit any examinations that might have been administered.

To encourage parents to cooperate in this program, a readiness for school booklet has been prepared by the Gaston County Health Department to be distributed to parents to give them a better insight into a pre-school child's needs and how to better adjust the child for breaking home-ties in the process of starting to school.

The booklet leads off by saying that school is fun and stressing that readiness is important. It states that going to school for the first time is a big experience for a six-year-old. It tells what parents can do to help youngsters get ready for the first year of school.

Older brothers and sisters often come home with reports to give to the youngster about to enter school. This is a bad thing to do, causing the child to expect the worse. Rather, he should be given a pleasing insight into school activities.

Parents are wise when they realize that going to school for the first time will be a new and wonderful experience for their child. They should start early to prepare the child for the first grade.

This can be done by teaching the child to play with other children, taking walks past the school, riding buses, going to the store, and teaching him about traffic lights and safety. It is also wise to teach a child his parent's names and address and send him on little errands so that he can learn to follow simple directions.

Other pointers on preparing the child for school is to teach him to keep clean and to get in the habit of eating an early breakfast. He should be allowed to eat away from home once in a while so he may become used to eating different foods and different types of cooking.

A good examination by a doctor and dentist is necessary so that any defect or handicap can be corrected. These things can seriously interfere with a child's progress in school.

And, immunization-protection is important, too, to protect him against diphtheria, whooping cough and small pox. These vaccinations are required for school entrance.

DOG CONTROL PROGRAM WOULD COST COUNTY $7,500 FIRST YEAR

Ed Cowan and Harold Cauble, area sanitarians working out of the Gaston County Health Department, presented talks and statistics on rabies to visitors and members of the health department staff at a meeting held in the Parish House of St. Mark's Episcopal Church Monday morning in Gastonia.

Capt. Ernest Rankin of the city police department and Bruce Turney, assistant to the city manager, attended the meeting.

The program was presented by the two men and centered on rabies a and the dog situation in Gaston county. Dividing the program into two parts, Cowan and Cauble talked on "History of Rabies and Development of Vaccine," and "Occurrence and Types of Rabies."

A statistical comparison was given, comparing the United States and North Carolina with Gaston county.

The men engaged in a technical discussion of examining rabid dogs and preparing their heads for shipment.

This was preparatory to a discussion of the state law on rabies, and of the dog warden act passed by the 1951 legislature. Prior to the time this law was passed, sheriffs were required to pick up stray dogs. "This was impractical," the sanitarians said. The 1951 act, they pointed out, gave counties the authority to control dogs.

Money from dog taxes can be used to facilitate this, the group was told.

2,400 VACCINATED

The dog control programs of 1951-52-53 were discussed by the men. They told the group that approximately 2,400 dogs were vaccinated in Gaston county in 1951. At that time the program was entirely handled by the health department with the department furnishing supplies and equipment to veterinarians. The veterinarians did only the vaccinating.

When the program was changed in 1952, veterinarians furnished everything themselves, also giving vaccinations, with the health department setting up clinics and providing publicity.

Since then an average of 2,000 dogs have been treated each year, the sanitarians said. While the number treated has dropped slightly, they said, the expense saved on the part of the department is considerable.
