

Farmer Mixes Own Fertilizer

When the price of farm products is falling and the prices paid by farmers are rising there is a natural tendency to cut costs by cutting down on fertilizer. If lowering fertilizer costs is done at the expense of over-all soil fertility a mistake is being made.

These are the sentiments of agricultural leaders and many progressive farmers. Many are finding it profitable to use high analysis materials such as 33 per cent ammonium nitrate, 48 and 62 per cent phosphate and 60 per cent potash and mix their own request analysis.

Many Causes For Chicken Lameness

In all flocks of chickens, regardless of age, there will occasionally appear one or more birds that show some type of leg weakness.

(improper bone formation) will produce a lame condition in the birds. This is specifically a dietary deficiency and can be quickly corrected if a proper diagnosis is made and the deficiency in the diet adjusted.

Drylot Feeding Pigs Proves Profitable

Harry Lanier, farmer of Wilkes County, N. C., used to turn his hogs out into a field after harvest and leave them there to forage for themselves all winter—but not anymore.

Lanier's feed cost totaled $274 for 118 bushels of corn and 1,500 pounds of mixed feed. His total investment totaled $449.60, including the value of the pigs when the demonstration got under way.
