Forsightedness Found To Be Normal

Farsightedness has been found to be "normal" for the young grade school child, Dr. Charles Metcalf, Secretary of the Cotton Valley Optometric Society said today.

Unless a child is farsighted when he starts to school, he is likely to develop a more serious vision handicap before he reaches his teens. Dr. Metcalf said that this fact was proved during an eight-year optometric research program at Ohio State University. The study showed that unless a child starts to school with this cushion of farsightedness his natural tendency will make him nearsighted by about the fourth or fifth grade.

"The program," said Dr. Metcalf, "revealed a close coordination between vision and scholarship. No child with normal vision failed his work during the eight-year period. Among those with vision problems, 37 per cent failed."

Joe Meadows Buys Lincolnton Cafe

Lincolnton—Joe Meadows, Gastonia businessman, has bought the cafe of Fred Ballard on Court House Square.

The transaction was consummated here Wednesday.

Mr. Meadows owns a grocery and meat market in Kings Mountain and a similar establishment in Bessemer City. Local people will operate the Lincolnton business for Mr. Meadows.

Mr. Ballard, who has had extensive experience in the restaurant business here, also has farming and cattle interests. He said part of the cafe sale contract contained an agreement that he would not engage in a restaurant business in Lincolnton as long as Mr. Meadows retains the Court Square restaurant.

Tar Heels Afloaters Plan Cruise Sept. 4-6

The Washington, N. C. Yacht and Country Club on the Pamlico River will be rendezvous point for the annual Tar Heels Afloat Labor Day Cruise, Sept. 4-6.

Commodore Joe McCotter of Washington announced that pleasure boat skippers will rendezvous there not later than 5 p.m. Saturday, September 4. A dinner and dance at the clubhouse that evening will launch the weekend festivities.

On Sunday, the entire flotilla will cruise up the Pamlico to Washington, which was America's first community to be named for the Father of our Country, and return later that afternoon.

The traditional THA banquet will be held at the clubhouse on Sunday evening. Edmund H. Harding, Washingtonian and famed philosopher-humorist, will be master of ceremonies.

Each year, Tar Heels Afloat cruises are held on Memorial Day Weekend, and Labor Day Weekend. The last cruise, from Morehead City to New Bern, included more than 50 pleasure craft.

This organization, without dues or rules, is dedicated to the development of inland waters of North Carolina. Membership requirements: Ownership of a pleasure cruiser and a capacity for good fellowship.

N. C. State Fair Set Oct. 19-23

Gaston county citizens were reminded today that it's almost State Fair time again. This year the fair is set for October 19 through 23.

Paul Kiser, county farm agent, urges all citizens to help make the 1954 fair the biggest in history by participating in every way possible. "It would be nice to have several state winners from Gaston county this year," said the county agent.

"This year the State Fair enters its second century of service to the people of the state," said Kiser. "It continues to be the state's biggest annual event."

The new 1954 State Fair Catalogue and Premium List is just off the press and anyone interested

New Administrative Program At G. C.

Greensboro College today announced the formation of a new administrative program and a series of courses on family relationships. Dr. Jack R. Miller, Jr., of Marietta, Georgia, and Durham, North Carolina, has just been elected Administrative Counselor and Assistant Professor of Marriage and Family Relationships at the 117-year old Methodist college.

Greensboro College will change the traditional policy listing a Dean of Men and a Dean of Women. Instead all student personnel work will be carried forward under the direction of a professionally trained counselor, with resident counselors in each living unit. Extra-curricular activities, student health, residence problems, and academic frustrations will be channeled through the office of the new administrative counselor.

It is significant that the new counselor is trained in problems of the traditional policy listing a Dean of Men and a Dean of Women. Instead all student personnel work will be carried forward under the direction of a professionally trained counselor, with resident counselors in each living unit. Extra-curricular activities, student health, residence problems, and academic frustrations will be channeled through the office of the new administrative counselor.

After graduation from The Citadel, Dr. Millar entered the Air Force of the United States and served with distinction as a pilot, participating in missions in the European and Pacific theatres. He rose to be a colonel, but was retired from the service in 1945 because of serious injuries sustained when his plane was struck by lightning.

After two years of convalescence, Dr. Millar entered the School of Law at Emory University, graduating with the LL.B. degree. His doctorate was earned from Florida State University, where he majored in the field of marriage and family relationships. He has taught in family life institutes at the state and national level.

Dr. Millar is married to the former Miss Elizabeth Rogers of Durham, North Carolina. They have one child, Sally Lou, now two months old.

Use Tar Heel Fruits To Top Your Meals

Use fruit desserts to round out your summer meals. That's the advice Virginia Wilson and Jewel Fessenden, State College extension nutritionists, have to offer.

Fruits satisfy the appetite, add color and flavor to a meal, and are high in food value. Many desserts furnish little more than fuel for energy or calories. But not so with fruits. They give you health protecting minerals and vitamins.

Serve fresh, frozen, canned or dried fruits daily. Use them plain or "dressed up" to make a variety of tasty desserts. Eat one or more 1-2 cup servings of fruits and vegetables. And be sure to include one green or yellow in color; one vitamin C rich food; and three others.

According to Miss Wilson and Mrs. Fessenden, fruits fall into one of these three classes.

Green or Yellow: apricots, yellow peaches, prunes (or other yellow plums). Such fruits furnish you with Vitamin A—known as the "good eyesight" vitamin. You need it to help you see better in a dim light and to ward off infections like colds. Children also need this vitamin to grow and develop properly.

Vitamin C Rich Food: strawberries, oranges, lemons, grapefruits, cantaloupe. When you have too little vitamin C, wounds heal slowly, walls of blood vessels become weak, gums get soft and bleed easily and your body can't fight infection.

Others: apples, bananas, cherries, figs, grapes, berries other than strawberries, pears, pineapple, white peaches and watermelon. Fruits in this class are not rich in any one mineral and vitamin but have small amounts of many. They help support other groups in protecting your health.
