Skidding, Poor Vision Gruesome Twosome

Raleigh — "Skidding and poor vision are a gruesome twosome. Motor Vehicles Commissioner Edward Scheidt said this week in listing two conditions as being primarily responsible for the increased hazards of winter driving. "Inadequate traction and reduced visibility," he said, "when combined with the normal hazards of every-day driving, can easily trap the unwary driver and lead directly to an accident."

Statistical studies made by the Motor Vehicles Department have indicated that there are two major factors in winter time traffic accidents, Scheidt said.

"Reduced visibility," he explained, "is brought about by longer hours of darkness, bad weather conditions caused by heavy rain or snow, and obstructions to the driver's vision from frost, ice, and muddy windshields."

He pointed out that the mileage death rate after darkness is about three times the daytime death rate.

"Special studies," he said, "have shown the driver's vision was obstructed by rain, snow or ice on the windshield in 143 of the state's 977 fatal accidents last year."

"Snow, sleet, and ice are the chief causes of inadequate traction," Scheidt pointed out that according to the studies, the weather was rainy, foggy or snowy in 123 of the fatal mishaps, while wet and muddy roads were reported in 120.

"The answer," he said, "is to slow down and drive with the utmost caution when rain, snow and ice coat the highway."

The vehicles commissioner urged every Tar Heel driver to take extra precautions during December and particularly not to be caught unawares by the "gruesome twosome" of skidding and poor vision.

Safety League Backs Tar Heel S-D Day

Raleigh—North Carolina's S-D Day December 15 will have the full backing of the member firms of the Carolina Safety League according to Motor Vehicles Commissioner Ed Scheidt.

Scheidt asked in a recent letter to approximately 850 automobile dealers that they designate December 14 and 15 as "special safety-check days."

"S-D Day" - Safe Driving Day - will focus the nation's attention on good driving practices. On December 15 it is hoped the nation's 70 million licensed drivers will go without a single traffic accident.

The dramatic project is an undertaking of the President's Action Committee for Traffic Safety. It was proclaimed in North Carolina on November 16 by Governor Hodges.

Dealers throughout the state will offer quick, thorough and free mechanical inspections for car owners who desire them. Principal points checked are brakes, steering, lights, tires and windshield wipers. According to figures from the Carolina Safety League brakes, steering and lights, in that order, were found most often found defective. Approximately 250,000 vehicles have been checked since the voluntary inspection project was launched last April.
