MERCHANTS MAKING PLANS FOR ELABORATE CHRISTMAS PARADE

AMERICAN EDUCATION WEEK BEGINNING SUN., NOV. 6th. - 12th.

PARADE TO BE HELD DEC. 1st.

The Cherryville Merchants are making plans for one of the most elaborate parades ever to be held in Cherryville. The parade will take place on Thursday afternoon, December 1st, at 3:30 o'clock. Max N. Rainwater, is chairman of the planning committee and he and his committee have been busy this week making arrangements for the big parade.

A goal of at least twenty beautiful floats has been set. Six beautiful floats have already been engaged and others are in the making. Rainwater Furniture Company and the Cherryville Ice & Fuel Company began building their floats Tuesday afternoon. This takes time and money, but both concerns are going all out to have the most elaborate floats they have ever sponsored.

Queens are being invited from all the nearby schools and each queen with her escort will ride in convertibles in the parade. Several bands have been invited to participate in the parade.

If you would like to enter a float in this parade, contact Mr. Rainwater and he will be glad to help you arrange to get a float that will be suitable for your business.

Carolina Driver Gets Praise In Emergency Act

Mr. C. G. Beam, president of the Carolina Freight Carriers Corp., received a copy of a letter from a motorist recently, the letter follows:

For years I have cussed at the situation confronting the private car driver in competition on major highways with large over-the-road trucks.

Last Saturday morning I was on the Shirley Highway, a limited access road into Washington, when I came up with a blown tire. I pulled over and had jacked up the front and when one of those "behemoths" bearing the "Carolina" legend, pulled up in front of me, and a very efficient gentleman stepped out of the cab and immediately took charge of my tire changing operation. At his quiet but forceful insistence, I sat in the car, held my foot on the brake, while he pulled out the brown tire and put on the spare.

Your man saved me a great deal of time and trouble, restored a good deal of faith in the story of the good samaritan. I'd like to send him a good thick steak."

Mr. Beam identified the driver as Lynn Brinkley. At last reports, Mr. Brinkley was scheduled to get his steak.

Thirty-six enthusiastic football fans left Cherryville early Saturday morning for Atlanta, to see the Georgia Yellow Jackets defeat the Duke Blue Devils in an easy victory Saturday afternoon, 27 to 0. These thirty-six were not the only ones present, as there were 45,000 other spectators in the stadium to see the game on that beautiful clear afternoon, just the right kind of weather for football.

A Queen City Bus had been chartered and arrived in Cherryville at 5:00 A. M., Saturday morning. The group had met at the Homefoks Cafe, where they were served ham and eggs for breakfast, before their departure.

At 5:30 they all boarded the bus for Atlanta and with Leon Williams at the wheel, they arrived in the big city at 11:30. Several stops were made enroute, to get soft drinks, apples, candy, potato chips nuts, tangerines and oranges.

Upon the arrival every one unloaded to get lunch. Some of the crowd dined at the Ship A'Hoy Restaurant, one of the largest eating establishments in the South, and via a Cherryville girl, Miss Helen McGinnas, serves as hostess in the Ship A'Hoy, however, she was off duty Saturday, but we were seated by an assistant and served by the most courteous waitresses. And we will give you a tip here, "if you are ever in Atlanta, dine at the Ship A'Hoy and if Miss McGinnas is not on duty, the other good looking waitresses will serve you with the same service and you will receive genuine Southern hospitality and you will also eat some of the finest food prepared in the good old Southern style.

After lunch every one was refreshed and ready to board the bus for the football stadium which was ten blocks from the square in Atlanta.

On the way down, the group appointed Fred C. (Chubby) Day, as leader. His duties were to look after the wants of the entire group, going down and coming back, and he did a wonderful job, making every one very happy and comfortable. No one wanted for anything, as Mr. Day, in his charming way, made every one feel at home, and we are sure he has had much experience in acting as host for a group of gentlemen.

Mr. Leon Williams was the driver to the Georgia city and Mr. Jack Pharr drove the bus back that night. We can assure everyone, the Queen City Coach Co., (Continued on page four)
