FOREST CITY—One of the most ancient of film bam games was pulled on a Sandy Mush Ne-gro in Forest City Tuesday after-noon, and he was victimized of $106, says Chief of Police Paul Kennedy. Arthur brooks, Sandy Run cou-munity farmer, came to town a-hout noon to cash a check for $106 to obtain funds for paying off a group of cotton pickers. As he left a bank, another Ne-gro engaged him in conversation, saying he was a farmer and talk-ed at length about farm preces. While standing there they ob-served another Negro, just a short distance away, reach down and pick up a billfold. The second Negro called Brooks pick up a billfold. The second Negro called Brooks attention to this and demanded that the third man share his find with them. He said there was $2,100 in the billfold, including a large check. He presumably left for a mo-ment to get the check cashed. He then demanded that Brooks and his new-found friend put up sufficient cash as evidence of good faith, since the "hot mon-ey" should not be spent for a-bout 30 days. They then agreed to meet at another place and divide the money, after Brooks had posted this $106 as evidence of good faith. faith

On either side, tall wrought iron floor vases held a beautiful arrange-ment of white gladiolis and fern, with Oregon and Plumosa ferns decorating the rest of the altar. Large white candelabras, holding white tapers, were arranged against the beautiful greenery. Mrs. H. H. Now the baseball season's over And Mr. Charlie Hoyle is lost. He can't go to the ball park And lean agianst his post.

He looks so sad and lonely. He can't think of anything. I know he just sits dreaming Of the coming of the spring.

When the robins start to hopping And the Bob White starts to call And Norman Harris hollers "Come on boys, let's play ball."

He doesn't care for football And bowling's not his game He always shuns a golf course It really is a shame.

Now he could take up fishing And go out in the bay. Then sit around and tell about The ones that got away.

It is surprising that a bird as beautiful and as consciously related as this one would tend to make itself even more conspiciously by its actions. One assumes that vanity is frequently closely associated with beauty and this might account for the "show off" behavior of the Painted Redstart. Such an assumption of course would be dangerous and we do not make it seriously. But these birds do have a habit of fiashing their colors as they go about their work. Some have surgrested that their behavior, aside from this, is somewhat like that of the Brown Creeper of affecting vanity. The nest is sometimes built on the gorund along steep sloping to a bout their work. Some have a lo feet above and make a solution of the sometimes built on the gorund along steep sloping by overhanging grasses.
