A Romautic Marriage.

Father Bouldin, the editor of the Danville Times, writes that he has often read the newspaper heading, "A Romantic Marriage," but he has always looked in yain to see where the romantic part came in. But THE Review has an occurrence to report which will satisfy the veteran editor's curious and inquiring mind. It runs Mr. Chas. B. Kendall, formerly of Greensboro and this place, where he was connected with THE REVIEW, but now editor and publisher of the New Smyrna (Fla ) Breeze, arrived here Saturday night on the Florida special, apparently with the view of spending the holidays among his host of friends hereabouts. But Monday the unexpected happened. Miss Lizzie Turner, daughter of Mr W. H. Turner, a contractor of Greensboro, left there Monday morning, her father having purchased a ticket and checked a trunk for her to Richmond, where her parents intended that she should spend the holidays. But love laughs at trunk checks and railroad tickets. Before leaving Greensboro her trunk was re-checked to Reidsville, and when she reached here she got off, being met at the train by Mr. Kendall. Preparations had partially been effected and proceedings were rushed through without delay and by
