A GLOWING TRIBUTE TO THE OLD NORTH STATE.

Following is the speech of Lieutenant-Governor Winston delivered on the occasion of his retiring as presiding officer of the Senate and presenting the gavel to his successor, Lieutenant-Governor Newland. Mr. Winston said:

"The hour has come when I retire from the Senate. For ten years I have been intimately associated with the legislation of this State. A decade ago I entered the other house. The Democratic party then came into power on a wave of revolution. Its acts have been constructive. It has freed the electorate of the ignorant, the debauched, the vicious, and made intelligence and character the qualifications of a voter. In assuming that these come by inheritance as well as in the schools, we have but followed the older Commonwealth whose wise sons for a century before our time sought this same source of a voter's fitness. We have built a new school house every day in the year during the last five years. The tick of the clock has not been more regular than the hammer knock of the school carpenter. Twice a week for five years some new community has stood up and said, 'Let us tax ourselves for the education of our children.' One-fifth of our educational fund is now raised by special taxes, our little school districts have become the centres of local self government and are illustrating the wisdom, the power and the beneficence of government by the people, of the people and for the people. In ten years we have quadrupled our school property and trebled our annual expenditure for education. This year begins the educational test for voting. Compulsory education is already a necessity and the popular verdict will make it a law. Our army of school children will grow until clasping hands they may reach from sea shore to mountains. These are the true guardians of the State. Let the State be true to them and they will ever be true to her, will give her peace, prosperity and happiness. The real hope of the world is in the constant improvement of each generation of children. No man will be a drunkard hereafter in North Carolina except under public condemnation. No man hereafter in North Carolina will grow rich making drinkards. Within our borders liquor now stands accused. We may not save all from its damning power, but it will save as many as we can. We have made the liquor traffic unfashionable, unpopular and illegal. Of all forms of human misery and sorrow the worst has ever been the drunkard's sins visited upon innocent and helpless children upon the third and fourth generations. In ten years we have changed from the poorest State in the Union to one of the most prosperous. We have made more progress in wealth and education than any community of equal size on the globe. We have done it without the help of immigration, or of outside capital, or of great resources newly discovered, or of rapidly built up sea ports and manufacturing cities. We are still a State of towns and farms, our industries are native, native in workmen, material and management. Our growth has been steady; founded upon native character, energy and intelligence. The poverty of our lands turned our labor to manufacturing. Manufacturing in turn made local markets for farm products, and thus the Commonwealth grew in healthy, strong development: an ideal State, complete in itself, agricultural, commercial, manufacturing. There is nothing essential to human comfort that is not produced in North Carolina. The plate glass factories of High Point are shipping full length mirrors to the Sultan of Julu and the queen of Madagascar. The spindles in our mills are making yarn enough annually to enclose the earth in a network of cotton. The shuttles of our looms in one continuous line could outstrip the fastest express train and weave an endless roll of cloth from New York to San Francisco. Already Charlotte is the centre of the Southern cotton industries; some day to be the cotton capital of the world. The call of the cotton of the cotton mill whistle, echoing from mill to mill in the stillness of the morning, and the black smoke from the mill chimneys in endless procession from Elizabeth City to Brevard, tell the story of our industrial life. Our net work of industries will soon be complete: Every mill and factory within sight of a farm;

The burning of the Odd Fellows' orphanage at Goldsboro the other day was indeed a regrettable calamity. It is to be hoped that useful institution will not be permanently put out of business as a result of the fire. The President yesterday settled the question of the vacant judgeship in the eastern district of North Carolina by sending in the name of Herbert F. Moore to the Senate for confirmation.

The famous Reid anti-trust bill, with the sub section A and all the other sharp teeth to it, has made its appearance in the General Assembly again and will be vigorously pressed for enactment at this session. If this bill is passed there will be a rattling of dry bones all over the State. It has "teeth to it" all right.

Damages Awarded. Chicago, Jan. 18.—It was made public after five years of hotly contested litigation that settlements had been made outside of court for thirty of the nearly 600 deaths caused by the Iroquois theater fire, on Dec. 30, 1903. It is said that $750 is to be paid in each of the thirty cases by one of the firms responsible for the construction of the theater. Prosecution in these thirty cases has been withdrawn from court. One of the cases settled at this price was for a man who lost his wife and three children in the fire. The number of unsettled claims is estimated at more than 400.

every farm within reach of railroads and local markets. In one generation we have increased our property values 500 per cent. Our poverty long and patiently endured proved to be our riches. God forbid that our riches should ever prove our poverty. Senators look at North Carolina today: A land of Mountains, plains and sea coasts; with climate a golden mean between the cold of the North and the heat of the South; with every plant and soil that belongs to the temperate zone; with sunlight in the sky every day in the year, and sunshine in the heart every hour in the day; With cities and towns, farms and factories, mills and minds, forests and fisheries, linked together in a network of mutual power and dependence. With population homogenous and happy; the purest Anglo-Saxon Commonwealth on the globe, over 99 per cent. native born and to the manor born, a Commonwealth marked by the strong elemental virtues that underlie civilization by courage and fortitude, simplicity and honesty, justice and mercy, law and liberty, kindness and hospitality, love overflowing with human power, a nursery of men for other States, in her old age rising from poverty to riches, made young again by the energy of her sons and the virtues of her daughters; her growth in wealth and education the marvel of the world; with another generation of education, of temperance, of industrial development she will stand at the head of the mighty column of American Commonwealth. She is resting upon the wise legislation of the past ten years. It is a privilege to have participated somewhat in that legislation. I retire from active participation in these halls carrying hence the abiding faith that has come from years of experience that a North Carolina Legislature can be depended on to do what is best for North Carolina."

It looks like President Roosevelt carried his pitcher to the well once too often in jumping on distinguished people when he tackled your Uncle Ben. Senator Tillman is now engaged on a speech which it is said he will deliver in the Senate at an early date that will make Teddy's fur fly. It is being eagerly awaited by the public.

TEACHERS' MEETINGS. We have planned to hold four teachers' meetings in different parts of the county as follows:

Leaksville-Spray Institute, Saturday, January 21st.

Madison Graded School, Saturday, January 28th.

Reidsville Seminary, Saturday, February 5th.

Barham's School House, Saturday, February 12th.

Every school teacher in the county is expected to attend one of these meetings, each teacher to decide which meeting will be most convenient for him or her to attend. The meeting will begin promptly at ten o'clock in the forenoon. An interesting program will be arranged for each meeting. There will be discussions of topics that have practical bearing upon the work the teachers are doing now—and suggestions that will help to prepare for better work. Teachers who are to lead the discussions will be notified by mail.

All teachers are expected to have their School Registers at these meetings ready for inspection.

UP TO THIS TIME we have had the best year in the history of the county schools. The attendance has been larger than ever before. Now we are nearing the end of the term, we must not relax our efforts, but must be active in maintaining interest and steady work until the very last day.

Does This Suit You? Britain, the enterprising druggist, of Reidsville, is having such a large run on "Hindipo," the new Kidney Cure and Nerve Tonic, and hears it so highly praised that they now offer a guarantee: in it or every case to cure all forms of kidney Troubles and Nervous Disorders.

They pay for it if it does not give you entire satisfaction. If you use it, it is your risk, not ours. A 50-cent box sent by mail under positive guarantee.

A One Sided Complaint. "This is the seventeenth time I've seen you before me in the dock," said a magistrate, looking at a prisoner sternly. "Yes, for eight years now I've seen you sitting in the chair, but I've never thought of complaining about it" replied the prisoner reproachfully.—London Telegraph.

Mixed Praise. Customer—Why, I thought you called him "the colt?" Oyster—Sure, yer honor, and that's the name he's had for the last twenty years, and he sticks to it like a respectable baste, the same as yourself.—London Punch.

Then She'll Tell You. "Tell me," said the lovesick youth, "what's the best way to find out what a woman thinks of you?" "Marry her," replied Peckham promptly.—Philadelphia Press.

RAILROAD STORIES.

The Man Who Paid the Conductor and the Name on the Ticket.

An old time traveling man was talking of experiences of former days on the road. "Frequently," said this traveler, "I journeyed to Cincinnati. The fare from my city to that place was then about $3.25. I saved something by handing the conductor $2 in cash. One day there was an excursion, and I bought a round trip ticket for $1.25 or $1.50—I've forgotten the exact amount, but that circumstance need not cripple this story. When I handed this ticket to the conductor as he tore off the return coupon he looked at me and in a voice betraying how deeply he was hurt he remarked, 'My young friend, don't you know that I can afford to haul you much cheaper than this company can?'"

"On another occasion, when in Chicago, a colored man met me at the entrance of the station, asked me where I was going and offered to sell me a ticket for $1. The ticket was to Louisville, but I was only going to Indianapolis. Cheap enough.

"When the conductor came along to take up my ticket he asked me my name. It was usual to write one's name on the ticket in the presence of the conductor. I told him my name was on the ticket. He grinned as he handed it back and asked me to look at it and say if that was my name. I looked. The name on the ticket was 'Mary Flaherty.'" He grinned again, somewhat sarcastically, but he took the ticket.—Pittsburg Press.

SNORING.

One of the Evils We Acquire With Our Civilization.

It is a truism that no one ever heard of a snoring savage. In fact, if the wild man of the woods and plains does not sleep quietly he runs the risk of being discovered by his enemy, and the scalp of the snorer would soon adorn the belt of his crafty and more quietly sleeping adversary. With civilization, however, we have changed all this. The impure air of our sleeping rooms induces all manner of catarrhal affections. The nasal passages are the first to become affected. Instead of warming the inspired air on its way to the lungs and removing from it the dangerous impurities with which it is loaded the nose becomes obstructed. A part of the air enters and escapes by the mouth. The vell of the palate vibrates between the two currents—that through the mouth and the one still passing through the partially closed nostrils—like a torn sail in the wind. The snore, then, means that the sleeper's mouth is partially open, that his nose is partially closed and that his lungs are in danger from the air not being properly warmed and purified. From the continued operation of these causes—the increase of impure air in sleeping rooms and permitting habitual snorers to escape killing and scolding—some scientist has predicted that in the future all men (and all women, too) will snore. It goes along with decay of the teeth and baldness.—Health.

Natural Kindness.

At an out of the way railroad junction a traveler found himself hungry, but with only two minutes to spare before his train left. "I'll take a cup of coffee," he said to the young woman in charge of the restaurant. "I've no time for anything else." "You can take all the time you want, sir," said the young woman cordially. "You look at this bill of fare, and I'll telephone to the superintendent to delay the train a little while." "Why, can that be done?" asked the traveler in amazement. "Certainly," said the young woman. "Of course it can. It's a branch road and no other train coming or going over it today, and the superintendent would want you to have a good meal. He owns this restaurant."—Youth's Companion.

The Influence of Bath.

Is there any town in the world that has so imposed itself as much as Bath upon the life and language of the nation? For some there are Bath buses, for others Bath Olivers, and the mill-ladies who find the buses too soft may throw Bath bricks at office or other windows if they disapprove of the Bath elaps. When we become infirm it is the Bath chair we seek. And that "thousand yards" of the middle ages "without a bath" seems now horrible.—London Chronicle.

Separated.

"Some men are fond of work, and others are not," said Wilber. "Take Dawson, for instance. He is wedded to his work." "Not now," said Hickenlooper. "He's been divorced." "Divorced? What do you mean?" asked Wilber. "He was bounced last Saturday," said Hickenlooper.—Lippincott's.

Just Suited Him.

"Miss Pansy, yo' shuntigly has got well developed shms, of yo'll pashon ma sayin' so." "Ah developed dem shms workin' ovah de washub, Mistah Rufus." "Um—um—er—Miss Pansy, will yo' be ma wife?"—Denver Post.

Speak with contempt of no man.

An Early Riser.

Mrs. Hicks—You mean to tell me that you have a servant girl who gets up in the morning without being called? Mrs. Wickes—Yes. She's in love with the milkman.—Boston Transcript.

"We should all strive to forgive our enemies," remarked the wise guy. "Yes; then they won't be so apt to get back at us," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

The Rice God.

In the Malay peninsula, after a general propitiatory service has been held as an "apology" to the rice for cutting it, the "rice soul" is diligently sought. First the spot where the best rice grows is selected; then seven stems are chosen, each having seven joints. Within this sacred bundle resides the soul of the whole precious field, and dressed in swaddling clothes like a live infant, it is borne home in a basket and tenderly, reverently, placed on a new sleeping mat.

After the rice harvest in Ceylon the priests take a little old god called Marell down to the river. A hole is dug where the water is shallow, and into this is crammed a bag of dry rice, with the god placed on top. The saturated rice expands, forcing the image upward, so that in about fifteen days it comes to the surface and is welcomed as a new god with acclamations of great joy.

Both in China and Japan are held special festivals of thanksgiving and offering up of first fruits.—Los Angeles Times.

Luck in Golf.

Luck, as will readily be understood, is a factor that enters very largely into golf. Perhaps the most notable case on record is that of Jamie Anderson when competing for the championship at Prestwick in 1878. He had just teed his ball for the seventeenth drive when a little girl standing among the spectators remarked that he had unconsciously placed it just in front of the proper line. Although nobody else had noticed the fact, this proved an examination by the referee to be correct. Thereupon Anderson teed his ball again in a fresh position well behind the line and made a drive which landed him in the hole and eventually enabled him to win the match. If, however, he had played from the original spot he would have been penalized a stroke and have lost the championship. Clearly, then, luck on the links is something to be taken into consideration whatever nonbelievers may say to the contrary.—Baileys' Magazine.

What He Was Allowed to Do.

A Presbyterian delegate who was accustomed to being sent to denominational conventions to extend fraternal greetings was delegated to the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Rising to speak, he said it was always an interesting study to him to note the different receptions accorded him at the conventions of the various denominations. "Whenever I attend a convention of the Episcopal church, for example," said he, "I find I can do anything I like except preach in the pulpit. When I go before the Baptist church I am accorded every privilege except that of taking communion. And," he said, with a smile, "when I appear among the Methodists I notice I am allowed every privilege except taking the collection!"—Ladies' Home Journal.

Housekeeping in Papua.

European housekeeping in Papua is charmingly simple. Everything arrived in a tin, for the most part ready for use. Meat, milk, butter, vegetables—all stood in tins in neat rows in the storeroom. A diet of tinned stuffs grew rather monotonous at times, but were able occasionally to vary it. Sometimes a man would arrive with a live turtle, which he would sell for two sticks of tobacco, costing threepence. The wretched turtle would be killed and cut up, but would still insist on quivering in a most realistic manner even when placed on the fire to cook. Then, too, if the season was a good one, the kitchen would be found lined with joints of vegetables, and it would be hard to know what to do with so much fresh meat.—Wide World Magazine.

Witty Sayings.

W. S. Gilbert said of Beerbohm Tree's Hamlet that it was "funny without being coarse." During an Englishman's lecture in New Haven the usher said to a late comer: "Please, sir, take your seat as quietly as possible. The audience is asleep." A Philadelphia woman said: "Of course there will be no marriage in heaven. There will be plenty of women there and a few men, but none any one would care to marry."

The oldest inhabitant never saw such changeable weather.
