

TO FLOOD THE STATUE OF LIBERTY IN LIGHT

The statue of Liberty, in New York harbor, was thirty years old Oct. 28. On that day subscriptions of the American people to flood light the statue were closed with what has been termed "Liberty Day" collections throughout the United States.

With this fund it has been arranged to permanently flood light this gift of 400,000 French people to the people of America so that at night it may be seen far out upon the Atlantic.

The night of Saturday, Dec. 2, was fixed for the rededication of the statue as "Liberty enlightening the world." These words were first used by Auguste Bartholdi, the illustrious French sculptor, when he placed the statue in 210 cases aboard the French warship Isere in April, 1885.

The work of installing the flood lighting apparatus is now completed. Electrical engineers have stretched a transmission cable from the New Jersey shore to Bedloe's Island, which will carry current to light up the hundreds of great reflectors required to evenly illuminate all sides of the immense statue and its base, which covers nearly an acre of ground.

It was planned to have President Wilson touch the button. Members of the cabinet, governors, distinguished members of the diplomatic corps and noted civil and industrial men promised to be present. Ex-Senator Chauncey M. Depew who, with President Grover Cleveland, attended the unveiling thirty years ago, was to make one of the addresses of the evening. The entire Atlantic fleet in New York harbor on that night was scheduled to participate.

The statue weighs 450,000 pounds or 225 tons. The bronze alone weighs 200,000 pounds. Forty persons can stand comfortably inside the head. The torch will hold twelve persons.

The immensity of the lighting problem may be appreciated only by close view of the statue, the dimensions of which are:

Table with 2 columns: Measurement and Ft. in. Measurements include Height from base to torch (151 ft.), Foundation of pedestal to torch (305 ft.), Head thickness from ear to ear (10 in.), etc.

History of the Statue of Liberty. 1874—Franco-American union established in Paris to undertake construction of statue "Liberty Enlightening the World."

1875—Auguste Bartholdi, illustrious French sculptor, made the first small model of the proposed statue.

1876—Hand of the statue, sixteen feet long, completed and displayed at Centennial exhibit in Philadelphia.

1877—Congress fixes site either on Governors or Bedloe Island, leaving the choice to be made by General W. T. Sherman, who confirmed Bartholdi's selection of Bedloe.

1878—Head of the statue, measuring seventeen feet from neck to cranium, finished and exhibited at the Paris exposition.

1880—Entire statue completed.

1881—"Liberty Enlightening the World" mounted in Paris.

1884—Statue formally presented to the United States on July 4 by M. de Lesseps and accepted by L. P. Morton, United States minister.

1885—Statue taken apart and brought to the United States in 210 cases on board the French man-of-war Isere.

1886—New York World in four months raised over $100,000 in contributions from 120,000 patriotic American citizens to provide pedestal for statue.

1886—On Oct. 28 President Grover Cleveland, members of the cabinet, governors of many states and distinguished members of the diplomatic corps, besides a delegation from France, headed by M. Bartholdi, Count de Lesseps and Admiral Jaures, dedicated the statue. These exercises were accompanied by a great procession through New York streets and a naval parade in the harbor.

1916—Congress authorizes flood lighting of the statue and by a special act agrees to maintain this lighting provided $30,000 is raised to install it.

1916—Oct. 28, the thirtieth anniversary of the dedication of the statue, fixed as the final day upon which contributions would be received from American people to flood light the statue.

1916—Dec. 2 "Statue of Liberty Enlightening the World" permanently flood lighted for the first time, with President Wilson officiating at notable ceremonies appropriate to the inauguration of America's electrical week, which begins that day.

Was Founder of Maine's Greenacre Religious Colony.

Miss Sarah J. Farmer, who was known as the founder of the Greenacre colony, which had attracted wide attention because of its free discussion of religious subjects, died at Eliot, Me., the other day.

Many clergymen and writers during the last twenty years were identified with the organization. It was almost disrupted, however, by factional differences, and Miss Farmer in 1910 was declared insane and sent to an asylum. She was seventy years old.

Mysterious

Oh, gasoline! Oh, gasoline! How oft you toy with fate! Sometimes you plug along serene, Sometimes you conflagrate.

We know not, when you hit the road, What's going to befall, Too violently you explode Or don't explode at all.

We watch you with a weary frown And breathe an anxious sigh, Your price goes up, your price goes down, We don't know how or why! —Washington Evening Star.

This Battle Will Live in History

A French soldier who before the war was a chef in a well known New York hotel and is now with the French expeditionary army in Macedonia has written a full and glowing account of the "battle of the soup kettle" to his friends in this country.

Of course, like all other chefs in the French army, this chef is cooking for the soldiers. Naturally he specializes on soup, as soup is the standard hot ration of the army.

In the recent French advance north of Salonki toward the Serbian frontier the chef sent forward a huge kettle of soup to the poilus in the most advanced trenches.

Just as the soup carriers reached their destination the Bulgars attacked the French viciously with the bayonet and succeeded in entering the trench.

The French signaled for a barrage of artillery and then charged back at the Bulgars in their lost position. The Bulgars retreated before the French bayonets and in turn signaled for an artillery barrage fire.

As a result of the shelling from both sides and the machine guns, which both had brought up the trench in question became untenable. Then a party of Bulgars sallied out to seize the kettle of French soup. Heavy rifle fire drove them back. The French knew better than to expose themselves, and anyway they had been "re-enforced" with more soup.

Finally a larger party of Bulgars, under cover of the dusk, dashed toward the soup kettle in "no man's land," but a French shell, striking squarely among them, ended forever the appetites of many.

And, what is more, it upset the stranded bowl of soup.

"But next day we recaptured the former New York chef," concluded the former New York chef.

Thus ended the "battle of the soup kettle."

Edison Too Busy to Be Surprised

When Thomas A. Edison came back from Europe a couple of years ago he described to his laboratory associates a fine old hand carved cabinet which he had seen in the Hotel Cluny, in Paris.

"If money could buy it I'd have it," he said.

Money couldn't. But there was another way. A fund was secretly raised by the wizard's coworkers and a wood carver was sent abroad. Returning, he made a replica of the cabinet. It was taken to the Edison plant at East Orange, N. J., and there an electric lighting system and a phonograph mechanism were installed in it. The conspirators had a hard time steering Mr. Edison away from the room in which the work was being done, for they counted much on the element of surprise.

The surprise party was arranged for recently at a New York hotel. The cabinet and the presentation committee were there—but Mr. Edison wasn't.

"Too busy," said the inventor when a delegation waited on him with an invitation to some mysterious doings at the hotel. "Working on something new."

"But we—there is a present there for you," protested the chairman.

"That's easy," said the wizard, closing the incident. "Crate it up and send it to me. Much obliged."

Russia Takes Possession of Territory of Little Value.

Ambassador Bakmeteff of Russia has notified the state department that Russia has annexed a series of islands and "broadland" off her north Atlantic coast by right of discovery. The most easterly point of land is more than a hundred miles west of Alaska. This new territory, it is said, is not of great value.

The land was discovered by Commander Militski, an aid to the czar and chief of the hydrographic expedition of 1913 and 1914. He found the first island in latitude 75 degrees 45 minutes north. This has been named Militski Island, after its discoverer. The broadland is called Emperor Nicholas II land. Another island is called Czar-avitch Alexis land.

HUNT'S LIGHTNING OIL

Good druggists everywhere are quick to recommend Hunt's Lightning Oil when a healing lotion or liniment is asked for. It has been the standard home remedy for more than thirty years. Nothing is so powerful in dealing with pain.

SOLD ONLY IN 25c AND 50c BOTTLES

RHEUMATISM—

Simply rub Hunt's Lightning Oil on the hurting parts. It is truly astonishing to feel the almost instant effect that this powerful liniment has on pain. The hurting seems to be gone almost before the application is completed.

NEURALGIA?

"I have been afflicted with neuralgia spells periodically for several years until I learned of Hunt's Lightning Oil. It permanently cured me. I have never had a pain that it would not alleviate and I have been using Hunt's Lightning Oil for fifteen years," says Uncle Jesse Loving, the best known citizen of Grayson County, Texas.

CUTS & BURNS

"I would almost as soon think of running my farm without implements as without Hunt's Lightning Oil. Of all the liniments I have ever used for men and beast, it is quickest in action and richest in results. For burns and flesh cuts it is absolutely wonderful. I regard it as a household necessity," says Mr. S. Harrison, Kosciusko, Miss. Thousands praise it.

HEADACHES

If space would permit the printing of all of the testimonials written of the relief that Hunt's Lightning Oil has given to headaches, no news would be published in this paper. It would all be Hunt's Lightning Oil praise. If you suffer, don't hesitate a moment but come to our store and get a bottle of Hunt's Lightning Oil. A surprise will be in store for you. 50c and 25c bottles.
