Raleigh Walker convicted at the December 1916 term of Rockingham court on the charge of retailing and serving a 12 month's jail sentence, was granted a pardon contingent on good behavior. He secured executive clemency through the efforts of Mr. Held Ray of Spray.—News and Observer.

The Penn Suspendor Co. of this place, is branching out. Until recently they manufactured only men's garters and suspenders. They are now manufacturing ladies' garters, sleeve holders and leather belts, making a big shipment of these goods last week. This is a progressive concern and it is turning out a class of goods that is extremely popular.—Madison Messenger.

The Saturday Evening Post in a recent issue made a plea for a larger use of public libraries by the people who have the advantage of easy access to them. The libraries generally are well equipped, and the librarians are anxious to help people find just the right book or bit of information, but although this is the case, one cannot get these benefits unless he applies for them. Men and women write or call on their daily papers for information which they could obtain

The Birmingham contractor who was authorized by Secretary Burlington to sow the postoffice grounds with shrubbery, has completed his work and has been paid over $330. By actual count 239 plants were put in, some of these being evergreens and others slender saplings and little trees. While the solicitude of the postmaster general for the Federal lot in Danville is being appreciated, there are a number who believe that the green grass was sufficient decoration for the postoffice and that the money would have been better appropriated in improving postal facilities here.—Danville Register.

The condition of the people of Stokes county was never better than the present with the exception of the class of farmers who depend on buying their supplies instead of raising them. They are up against it good and strong. Prices of everything to eat are sky-high, and those who must go in debt for flour, hay, chop and meat are unfortunate. But the farmer who grows his supplies, is resting easily by calling on the library, in most cases. The prices for breadstuffs and meatstuffs, which are grinding his neighbors, are water on his wheel. Money is plentiful, the banks of Stokes county showing resources of nearly half a million dollars.—Danbury Reporter.

Caswell Superior Court is in session this week. Messrs. Glidewell, Joyce, McMichael and Dalton of the Rockingham county bar are in attendance. Judge Harding is presiding. A special term of Caswell Superior Court will also convene at Yanceyville next week, presided over by Judge Justice.

Through his skill in marksmanship Clinton M. Griffith of Pelham, has qualified as a marksman in the U. S. Marine Corps according to an official bulletin from Washington. At a recent trial he made an excellent score at low and rapid fire winning a medal and an increase of pay. This keen-eyed young man is with the U. S. Marines who are busily engaged in restoring order in the little Republic of Haiti. While peace has been established throughout the greater part of the West Indian island, and occasional fight with bandits and other lively happenings provide plenty of excitement and adventure for the Pelham boy. Clinton who is a son of Albert Griffith of Pelham enlisted in the United States Marine Corps at the Winston-Salem recruiting station on Nov. 13, 1916.

The return of the guardsmen to Reidsville brings an interesting sidelight on the stay of the troops on the border. Some of the members of the guard are firmly convinced that the danger from Villa has never been so great as some of the agencies would have led the country to believe, but that there was some danger there is no doubt. The presence of the troops on the border in all probability prevented much that might have happened. El Paso, however, was interested in the troops remaining on the border for commercial reasons mainly. At one time there were fifty thousand troopers in that section of the country. Many thousands of these soldiers finally found way into the marts of trade in El Paso and other border towns, but mainly in El Paso. Every man probably spent at least ten dollars a month while he was on the border. In addition to the money the soldiers themselves spent the presence of the army made it necessary for the government to spend a vast amount of money for supplies and equipment. Commercially the Mexican troubles were a great thing for the border cities.

Electrical Furnace at Philadelphia Mint Cheaper and Faster.

An electrical melting furnace of new design and said to do the work of nine old style gas furnaces more cheaply and quickly soon will be installed at the Philadelphia mint to melt copper and nickel for coinage. It will have a capacity of 700 pounds of metal. The old style furnaces rarely melted more than eighty pounds at a time. The present method involves placing the metal in graphite crucibles, upon which is turned a powerful gas flame. The new furnace will introduce the heating medium into the metal itself, and, instead of a crucible, a firebrick furnace with silicon glazing will be employed.

The European war has affected greatly the cost to the government of melting metal because of the difficulty in securing graphite crucibles. An inferior article, rarely lasting more than three meltings, now is being used at a cost approximately seventeen times as much as formerly.

Had 790,000,000 Bottles of Wine. In 1915 the French government distributed 618,000,000 bottles of wine among the armies, each man and officer receiving half a liter a day. Last year there was a considerable increase, the total amount requisitioned reaching 790,000,000 bottles.
