THE CASWELL BOY WHO GOT PRETTY HUNGRY

W. T. Bost writes from Raleigh as follows: Charlie Jarrell, Caswell coun-H-and in the State prison two years is a free boy again.

Governor Bickett awarded him liberty today in perhaps the most remarkable set of reasons ever given by any governor. The boy had nobody working for him except his tenderness and his illiteracy and on these Governor Bickett hangs all the law and the prophets.

Governor Bickett issued the pardon without knowing, nor does he now know, that the application was filed in November. So far as the Chief Executive knows this is the only word ever said for the urchin save the letter which Dr. F. M. Register sent along with the little brat's The prison physician, apparently the only man ia all the past state prison company who had the smallest initiative or disposition to study criminology, wrote a letter asking Governor Bickett to help the little felow out. The doctor mentioned one circumstance that might haveworked against the boy. It oppears that when Jarrell came to the central prison in Raleigh he hid in an aid boiler all night and tried to escape. That's the story he told Dr. Register. That doubtiess made him "incorrigible" albeit there is no record that he received what generally comes to incorrigibles, paralytic-imbecites, hospital patients or what-nots. Dr. Register asked that this childish wrong be blotted out.

Dr. Register thought nothing but orther acquaintance with the hardness could come of continued imprisonment. Governor Bickett takes the view in the same spirit of humanitarianism. "I would be a far worse criminal than the boy if I refused to allow nim to do so," says the governor in speaking of the chap's desire to return home. The letter which won the child's liberty and Governor Bickett's comment for a rare piece of literature in daily news grind:

"Charlie Jarrel writes me the following letter from the state farm:

" 'dear mr. gov.; i am a small boy n the state prison, my mother and father live on a little farm in virginia, and some boys come over in north carolina to my home and they wanted me to go with them to north carolina, and i went, and we got Hungry on the way and went in a man's store that night and they put us in jail. i stayed in jail three months and then was sent for two years here, i have been here twelve months and am the smallest white boy here, so please mr. gov. let me go home and i wont never leave home no more.

"It will be observed that 'Hungry is the only word in the above letter that the boy spells with a capital.

"When the boy refers to himself he is all humility, and jots down a little i that barely makes a speck upon the page. He does not cringe nor crawl before the man in whose power rests his liberty, but approaches him as a friend and fellow mortal, and in letters on a level with those referring is a popular young man and is of fine to himself he writes, 'dear mr. gov.' But when he comes to speak of the might of the passion that through all the ages has held boyhood in its savage grip his sense of proportion dominates his hand and he writes, 'we got Hungry.'

"The letter rings true. In it is reveoled a wayward boy who has wearied of the life in the 'far country' and longs to return to his 'father's house'. I woul be a far worse criminal than the boy if I refused to allow him to do so. A full pardon is therefore granted."

Governor Bickett grants pardon to Jerdan Turner, of Caswell county, who was serving six years had been put in with fine record. A year for good behavior would have left him but another year. Governor Bickett thinks the ends of justice have been met, the community wants him pardoned and it is so ordere.

Flem Tuttle, of Stokes county, is pardoned after service of two years on a five-year sentence.

Dr. Register certifies from the state prison that the prisoner has organic heart trouble and Warden Busbee says he has been unable to work in six months. Tuttle is now wholly incapacitated for any labor. More than 200 of the best citizens recommended the pardon.

The governor's pardons have mounted the half hundred mark but he has escaped with perhaps the smallest amount of criticism that any governor has received.

He has set free so many whose very presence in prison for a long time has shocked the conscience of the State that people generally are disposed to trust his judgment. Before him now are two applications which are powerfully backed. They are Hayes of Winston-Salem and Wilcox of Elizabeth City.

It is admitted by friends of both prisoners that they have thus far received little hope. The bride wore a pretty coat suit f military blue, with hat and gown to match.

The groom wore black. Miss Duke is an accomplished young lady and is of charming personality. The groom business qualities.

Mr. and Mrs. McCollum left immediately after the ceremony for the home of the groom's father, Mr. D. W. McCollum about four miles east of Reidsville where they will make their home.

The young couple carry with them many good wishes for a long, happy and prosperous life.

The Blood is the Life

The blood is the life because it is the nutritive fluid. If the blood becomes very impure, the bones, the muscles and other parts of the body are impaired and finally become diseased. Slighter variations in the qualmy of the blood, such as are often trought about by breathing the bad air of unventilated rooms, have equally sure though less plain ill effects on the nervous system. Persons that have any reason to believe that their blood is not pure should begin to take Hood's Sarsaparilla at once. This medicine has done more than any other in cleansing, enriching and vitalizing the blood and giving strength and tone to all the organs an functions.

If you want to be entirely satisfied, insist on having Hood's. Accept no substitute.

Nature Cures, The Doctor Takes the There is an old saying that "Nature cures, the doctor takes the fee," but as everyone knows you can help Na ture very much and thereby enable it to effect a cure in much less time than is usually required. This is partiularly true of colds. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy relieves the lungs, liquifies the tough mucus and aids in its expectoration, allays the cough and aids Nature in restoring the system to a healthy condition.

The Tuesday Afternoon Reading Club held its weekly meeting at the home of Miss Mary Wilkinson April

Twelve members answered the roll call with interesting facts about the lives and paintings of the Spanish master, Murillo and the Dutch painter Rembrandt.

Mrs. R. M. B. Ellington gave a delightful and instructive biography of Rembrandt and described four of his best pictures-"The Anatomy Lesand The Syndics."

Mrs. J. W. McGehee read a sketch of Murillo, dwelling on the paintings of his youth and the effect of his friendship for Velasquez upon the works. It was also stated that though Murilli was by no means a religious tanatic, his favorite subjects were taken from the Bible, chief of these being the "Immaculate Conception" which he has painted more than iwen-
