SAVE SEED FROM ALL YOUR CRIMSON CLOVER

There is a great shortage in the prospective crop of crimson clover seed for this fall's planting. Every farmer who has crimson clover should make a special effort this year of all years to harvest the seed from his entire crop. There is every indication that the seed will be very high in price next planting time.

Now is the time of year that plans should be made to be ready to save the seed when the crop is ready for harvesting. This may be done by the use of strippers or by cutting the crop at the right stage with a mowing machine, and then later, after the crop has dried out well, separate the seed from the dried plants by the use of a pitch fork. Care should be exercised that the handling in curing the plants be as little as possible and be done when the plants are slightly moist from dew. For this reason all handling should be done during the early morning or late afternoon hours. In using the stripper the seed may be gathered directly from the stalk after the sacking from the stripper. The seed should dry before storing them away in the barn. Exposure to the sun for a few hours in the sacks or by spreading them on the ground or on a sheet will be all that is necessary to be assured of thoroughly dried seed.

Most farmers have found from their experience that the crimson clover seed which they have saved themselves in the hull gave as good or better results than clean seed which they bought. The hulls around the seed are thought to retain considerable moisture that facilitates germination of the seed in dry weather as is the case when sown in the early fall when moisture conditions are not always satisfactory. At least 3 to 5 times as many pounds of seed in the hull should be used in order to have good seed than would be used of the clean seed.

A Big Farmer is W. M. Knight
Mr. W. M. Knight, one of the big farmers of this section, was in Greensboro today and talked encouragingly of crop prospects in North Carolina. He reported unusual activities in his immediate neighborhood, resulting in an increased acreage on a disposition on the part of the people to cut out the money crops for the present and devote their best energies to raising food for the nation. This is the kind of patriotism needed at this time, as evident from the fact that Mr. Knight has been for months past getting eight dollars a barrel for all the corn he cared to dispose of, and that one of his neighbors the other day sold his surplus at ten dollars a barrel.

Just how much tobacco he will plant this year Mr. Knight did not say. His tobacco crop last year filled one hundred and forty barns and sold for something over $20,000. In 1913 his tobacco brought $25,000.

Mr. Knight gets his mail at Stokesdale, but lives in Rockingham county—just across the line. He has proven that farming in North Carolina can be made to pay if you know the game, and will be as much a failure as any other business if you lack the know-how.—Greensboro Record.

Valuable Stock

In the mountain regions of Western North Carolina and Piedmont regions of that State from farmers who study their business come only letters telling of profit in sheep raising and conditions making for the success of the industry. The mountain areas are wonderfully healthful for both men and live stock of all kinds. It is said that the mountain climate makes it possible to produce there the finest quality of wool. There are large areas of land which are particularly adapted to ranch conditions and the raising of sheep on a large scale.

From A. L. French, Rockingham County, North Carolina:

"It has been thirty-four years since we first began raising sheep and during the last fifteen years of the time the flock has been maintained on our farm in Rockingham County. We have never been large raisers of sheep, as the flock has been a side line supplementary to the cattle business. Only from 65 to 65 ewes are kept, and we aim to have the sheep get to every part of the farm some time during the year, carrying out their work as farm cleaners. During the winter especially, do the sheep get about the place and practically the entire living of the flock is taken from the grain, and other cover crops, the meadows, and permanent pastures. Only the cheapest shed is used or needed for shelter, for our experiences with sheep in the Southeast leads us to think that the more hours of the twenty-four a ewe spends in the open the better off she is, providing she has a dry place to go during times of cold rains or sleet. At lambing time we usually feed them a little cottonseed meal.

"Our ewe flock, pure bred Shropshires and grades, clipped a little better than six pounds on the average this season, which is the average for a term of years, and the wool sold at home for 32 cents. Two woolen mills in our neighborhood usually use our wool, but some is shipped North. The surrounding towns use all the lambs and mutton we have to spare. The price for fat aged ewes has been around 6 cents per pound, and the spring lambs usually go during June and July, off of the pastures, at around $5.50 per head. The weight of sheep, live, runs from 100 to 160 pounds, lambs from 60 to 80 pounds. Dogs do not bother us to any extent. The worst drawback to sheep raising is the stomach worm during seasons of much rainfall.—Southern Field.

The Negro Exodus

For some months there has been a constant stream of negro emigration to various Northern cities. This is largely the result of radiant promises made to such as would listen to them by agents of Northern interests which have been in almost desperate need of more labor. The result is that some communities in the South are in bad shape because of the removal of their most dependable help, while these poor negroes are, many of them, stranded and sorely repenting their move, while they are making a great social problem for the communities upon which they have been suddenly thrown.

A recent number of the New York Christian Advocate says: "The newcomers have been exploited by the saloons, and the real estate men; and it must be granted that the churches and charitable institutions have shown little vigor in dealing with the situation. It is well to bear this in mind when disposed to condemn the white people of the South for neglecting the race. That they have neglected them to a shocking extent is probably true. But there is not much in the attitude of Northern white people, even white Methodists, in Newark, or any other city into which they have recently flocked, on which to base the belief that human nature varies with the parallels of latitude. We are the same people, North and South, and we shut our eyes to unpleasant and costly tasks. Perhaps the 'negro influx' will teach one section its duty in the same way that the 'negro exodus' is enlightening the other."

Really some of the most touching and sorrowful stories of the sufferings of the negroes who have fled northward in the general exodus come to our ears. It is said that the city of Chicago is now wrestling with some grave economic questions which have been rendered crucial by the large late increase in the negro population of the city.—Christian Advocate.

POWER SOUGHT BY U. S. TO BREAK UP FOOD CORNERS

The government, if given power to fix minimum food prices, would exercise the authority only to break up corners or to prevent extortion, Secretary Houston explained in a letter replying to an inquiry.

"The single thought in this connection," the secretary wrote, "is that the power might be used as a club, to be applied only in individual cases where it is clear that an individual or corporation had established a corner and was practicing extortion. When that particular situation was controlled or the abuse eliminated, the incident would be closed."

Referring to popular misapprehension regarding the proposal that the government set a price on foodstuffs Secretary Houston explained that only two suggestions have been made. "One is that the government be given power to fix a minimum price with a view to stimulate production," said the secretary. "This price would be sufficiently high to insure producers against loss. The other suggestion is that the government be given power to fix a minimum price, in extreme emergencies, to break up corners or to control extortion."

Whose Business is It?

This development of this town is no one man's duty; Nor is it the duty of any one group of people. The individual must not hesitate to start the work; His neighbors should not hesitate to help it along. No one element can accomplish desired results alone; Neither will one element alone be benefitted thereby. It is the interest of all, and the business of all; One man may originate, but all men must execute. The first duty of each is to enlist the duty of all; The duty of all is to promote the interest of each. The development of this town is no one man's duty. This town's development is the town's opportunity. The town's welfare is the whole town's business. LET US GET BUSY.

WONDERFUL STUFF! LIFT OUT YOUR CORNS!

Apply a Few Drops Then Lift Corns Or Calluses Off With Fingers—No Pain.

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

This drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

This drug freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. If your druggist don't have freezone have him order it for you.

One Example of Patriotism

Rev. Chas. Kingsley, pastor of Providence and Matthews Presbyterian churches in Mecklenburg, is a patriot right and his name should head the list. He told the members of his congregation, who are mainly farmers, that he would reduce his salary half for the period of the war.

Mr. Kingsley thinks every citizen should make some sacrifice in the present stress and that is the sacrifice he proposes to make; and in addition he will try to increase the food supply by farming himself and exhorting others to produce more food.—Statesville Landmark.
