THE SOUTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY

An Ambition and a Record

THE needs of the South are identical with the needs of the Southern Railway; the growth and success of one means the upbuilding of the other.

The Southern Railway sets no favors—no special privilege not accorded to others.

The ambition of the Southern Railway Company is to see that every inch of the South is built up by the growth of the public and the railroads; to see protected that fair and frank policy in the management of railroads which builds the confidence of governmental agencies; to realize that the quality of treatment which will enable it to obtain the additional capital needed for the acquisition of better and enlarged facilities incident to the demand for increased and better service; and, finally—

To take its place in the body politic of the South alongside of other great industries, with no more, but with equal liberties, equal rights and equal opportunities.

"The Southern Serves the South."

Offered Exceptional Wages

Considerable interest has been aroused around town by the activities of an agent of some mysterious factory who is offering expert mechanics here as much as $300 per month to sign an agreement to work in a factory for a period of eighteen months, segregated from their fellowmen. It seems that the mysterious factory is to make some sort of war instrument, the plans of which are to be kept entirely secret. Hence the necessity of segregating the workmen of the factory. It is announced that several Greensboro mechanics have signed up work in the factory.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR A FINE CROP OF TOBACCO

The tobacco crop in this section, according to reports, is in good shape at this time and the prospects are exceedingly bright for a fine crop, but a tobacco crop and a mule are very much alike—you can never be sure of what they are going to do until they have done it. It is, therefore, best not to be optimistic regarding the new crop at this time, for tobacco is a most sensitive plant, and a few days can completely change its prospects.

The wet spell recently gave the plants a good growth, enabling the leaves to spread to such an extent that the roots are now well shaded and the ground is retaining moisture well, but a good shower every three or four days for a couple of weeks would no doubt help the crop toward maturity. A long dry spell now will affect the crop to a marked degree.

Reports from the South Carolina markets continue to be most encouraging. Starting off with an average price of about seventeen cents, the crop is now averaging around twenty-three cents and the prediction is freely made that the South Carolina crop this year will average close to twenty-four cents. The bulk of the crop in that State will have been sold within the next few weeks and then the Eastern Carolina markets will open in full blast.

Reports from the markets now open are to the effect that common tobaccos are selling higher than in years; in fact, one report says they are "outrageously high." The fine qualities—those grades that sell around thirty cents—are said to be about the same price as last year. The big advance has been in the common tobaccos.

Quite a lot of tobacco is being pulled, but not as much as should be, according to reports. "By all means," said a tobacco man to The Sentinel, "urge upon our tobacco growers to pull their tobacco, every leaf of it, when possible, and do not permit the lower leaves to burn up before they are pulled."

Then, too, there is the scrap that must be saved this time, for there is every indication that it will bring prices that will justify saving it. It is estimated that one million pounds of scrap is thrown away by the growers of this section every year as worthless. There is mute evidence of this to be found at every barn door in the country. Very little scrap has been sold on this market in the past ten years. There may be two hundred wagons of tobacco on a warehouse floor and yet one will seldom find more than a half dozen sacks of scraps in all this big lot of tobacco. When such tobacco brings only one or two cents per pound there is little encouragement for the growers to save it, but this year, if enough of our farmers save it, there is strong likelihood of it bringing in the neighborhood of five cents.—Winston Sentinel.

A Correction

Editor Review:
We notice in your account of the death of our old friend and comrade, Frank F. Jones, that he was a member of the 38th Virginia Regiment and that history may be kept straight I ask the privilege of correcting this error. Comrade Jones was a member of the same company to which I belonged—Co. G, 14 N. C. Regiment. He volunteered in this county in 1861 and was one of the charter members. Captain Thomas Slade being their first commander, A. J. Griffith was made Captain after the first year of the war. It is true that our comrade was in the last charge at Appomattox and one of the 17 who volunteered to hold the enemy in check 'till a field piece could be recovered. I know these are facts as the writer was with him, and there are several living witnesses who will testify to the same, and it is too well established for any controversy that General W. R. Cox's N. C. Brigade made the last charge at Appomattox and those 17 men referred to did the last shooting—all members of the 14th N. C. Regiment.

Respectfully submitted,

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative powers of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Price of Corn Vs. Tobacco

Sidney B. Bullington, of the Axtone-Soapstone section, a successful farmer of the old school who believes in making everything to sell and not risking everything on one money crop, was in the city yesterday. He brought twenty-five bushels of shell corn, which he promptly sold for 2.25 per bushel, or $56.25 for the load.

This little occurrence points a two-fold observation, one for the farmer himself to ponder, and the other for the consideration of the large tobacco companies or buyers of leaf tobacco. It is an old tale but one difficult to impress profitably upon the mind of the average farmer—crop diversification. If the farmer would devote the same land, pains, labor and fertilizer to corn that he does to tobacco, he would find corn-growing, in most cases just as profitable, and in many more than tobacco. He would find that he could make profitable crops of grain and, at the same time, by the use of legumes improve his lands each year, but he will never get his farm lands rich if he plants them in tobacco with artificial fertilizers till doomsday.

Moreover, it has been observed that "no officer ever levies on a full corn-house or granary for debt, yet it is not an uncommon occurrence for the shoring to nail up under process a fine barn of tobacco." This is a lesson in itself.

Now again it is known that the large tobacco companies are paying very high prices on the Georgia, South Carolina and Eastern North Carolina markets—wherever cotton also is grown. The prices this season so far seem to be almost fabulous, and when a tobacco magnate was asked why the large companies were paying such excessive prices on those markets when there seemed to be no occasion for it, as the competition was chiefly limited to about three buyers, he frankly said: "But there is another very influential competitor you have not seen follow the market. His name is Cotton which is now selling at twenty-five cents a pound and if we do not bid high for tobacco, which we are obliged to have, not only his year but next, the planter will grow all cotton and leave us short of our needs."

With corn at $2.25 and wheat at $2.75, the tobacco companies must pay liberally for our tobacco or the farmers in this section may slip a cog and grow more grain and less tobacco. On our lands corn at $2.25 per bushel can be grown as profitably as cotton at 25 cents a pound further South. So it is reasonable to expect high prices for 'the weed' this season.—Danville Register.

WASHINGTON WOOLEN MILLS

Their special report on conditions affecting clothing values which this issue under the caption from loom to retailer says as follows:

"This country is at war. The situation resulting therefrom affects clothing values so radically that we have delayed issuing this special report because the unflinching truthfulness of our statements have brought our friends to rely and act upon our reports, and the responsibility under present unprecedented conditions is very great.

"We state following facts: Medium and fine wools are selling at $1.20 to $1.50 per scoured pound, and losing 25 per cent. in manufacturing. This means $1.60 to $2 for the raw wool in each pound of finished cloth.

"The United States government paid in April 50 per cent. more than in December last for the same fabrics.

"The wool on the sheep's back has been sold twice. First, by mills to wholesale clothiers in cloth for general trade for next winter, and second, to the government, since March 1, for military fabrics for the defence of the country.

"There can be no doubt about who gets the wool. The mills from coast to coast are running night and day for the government and ignoring general trade.

"The result is a desperately critical situation.

"The government has taken the mills and the wool under contracts to Dec. 30, 1917.

"Further, they have recently taken

The Physicians of North Carolina are not slackers. As a profession they are responding to the call. There are 148,000 doctors in the United States, he points out. An army of 2,000,000 would require 20,000 doctors, or about one in every seven doctors in the United States. Of the 1,700 to 1,800 doctors in North Carolina 300 have already volunteered their services, or one of every six, which would be the State's proportion if the full army of 2,000,000 were already in existence.

WHAT CATARRH IS

It has been said that every third person has catarrh in some form. Science has shown that nasal catarrh often indicates a general weakness of the whole system, and snuffs and vapors do little, if any good. To correct catarrh you should enrich your blood with the oil-foed in Scott's Emulsion which is a medicinal-food and a building- tonic, free from alcohol or any harmful drugs. Try it—YOU!
