When I think how I suffered with my stomach and how good I feel now I cry for joy." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and always the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments including appendicitis. NIGHT DRIVING IS EXCITING

Red Cross Worker Just Back From France Tells Some Thrilling Tales of His Experiences There—Narrow Escape From Certain Death—Attacked by German Airplane on First Day Driving an Ambulance.

"Ambulance drivers develop a sort of sixth sense," said Herman More, a Red Cross ambulance driver, just back from France.

"We have to drive in the darkness, of course. There can be no lights anywhere, especially not on the car, in which we carry the wounded.

"I remember one night I was coming back to the post from the third line trenches with three wounded men in my car. The road wound up the mountain side, through thick trees, to the post, which was in the grounds of what formerly was a chateau.

"The road turned suddenly at right angles. Through the trees I could vaguely see two openings. I thought I remembered the road, so I turned to the left. I crept along very slowly, when suddenly that sixth sense told me something was wrong. I stopped the car and went around to the front. I started to step in front of the car when my foot went down. I caught myself, and went back to the seat. I backed carefully around and followed the other road. In the morning I went out to see where I had been the night before, and found that the first road was simply the clearing where an old summer house had been. If I had gone one foot further, the car would have gone hurtling over the precipice, crashing on the roofs of a little village below.

"My sixth sense saved me from certain death.

Thrills of Night Driving.

"Night driving never loses its thrills. The mountain roads in France are winding and dangerous. I remember one night I was crawling up a winding road in pitchy darkness. Suddenly I heard a rearing like ten express trains rattling down upon me. I knew a battery was coming down as they often do, on the run.

"In the car was one man who was close to death. A jolt might kill him.

"So I hugged the right of the road, and waited. Like a cyclone that mass of horses and guns rushed down upon me. I knew they could not see me, and I feared for the life of the man in the ambulance.

"But just before they reached me, the officer in charge evidently sensed that I was there, and wheeled his horse right in front of my car. Then the others were upon us, but just as they reached us the first horses swerved out of the way with a wild crash. The others followed suit, and almost before I could breathe they were gone. Half an hour later I reached the post, and the wounded men were all saved.

Exciting First Day.

"My first day driving a Red Cross ambulance in France was most exciting.

"I had to drive six miles to Point Sulippe. It was in the open, and I noticed the planes whirring everywhere in the sky above my head.

"I finally reached my destination, and drew up under a tree to read. Suddenly I heard the pop-popping all around me. Little clouds of dust spit up near the wheels. A cross flew to pieces in a graveyard beyond the trees. I heard a yell, and a man a few feet away doubled up and went down. Then I looked and saw a German plane was firing on me.

"It was over in a few minutes, as they dared not stay long. I hurriedly backed the car up to the man, and took my first case back to the post.

"I said nothing about this experience for a few days, because the other fellows had filled me so full of tales of horrible experiences that I thought it was just a part of the day's work. Later I learned that it was quite a novel experience to be attacked by a German plane."

GERMAN TEXT DISCARDED

Colleges and High Schools Rapidly Dropping Language of Hun.

Praise for the Kaiser and Germany in German text books is cutting deeply into the pocketbooks of the publishers. The books have been used in the study of the German language. Colleges and high schools throughout the country are rapidly dropping the teaching of the German tongue.

The loss to the publishers is partly offset by the increased demand for Spanish and French texts.

Ground Glass in Prunes.

Prunes may be abolished from the family fare in the homes of Marinette, Wis., and Menominee as a result of the discovery of ground glass in a shipment of the fruit received by a local grocer through a commission house which obtained it from California.

The 2,300 prisoners of San Quentin (Cal.) penitentiary are doing their "bit" for the war. They have voted to send half of their tobacco allowance to the boys in the trenches.

REYNOLDS EMPLOYE TELLS WHAT CURED WIFE'S NERVES

"She Would Roll All Night Long Without Any Sleep. Any Sudden Noise Would Make Her Jump Dreco Brought Quick Relief."

"My wife suffered agonies from those dull, heavy, dragging pains in her back," says E. R. Evans, the popular operative employed by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company and residing at R. F. D. No. 5, South Winston. She was in terrible misery for a long time and nothing we ever did brought any relief. Her nerves were all on edge and she would roll all night without any sleep. Any sudden noise would make her jump.

Several friends advised us to try Dreco. She took three bottles and has improved from the very start. Now her nerves are steady and she never has a pain in her back any more. But she is going to take another bottle just to make sure.

Most women lead a confined, monotonous life, narrowed down to the four walls of home the greater part of the day. Such women seem to be easy prey to nervous attacks, sleeplessness and the hundred and one other little ailments so common to their sex. Dreco is declared to be just what such nervous, depressed persons need to restore their nervous energy and to lift them out of their constipated, dyspeptic habit of life.

Dreco works to counteract the exhausting strain of work by its strong inducement to the delicate tissues to take more food. It plainly induces the nerves and brain to feed themselves more liberally, and thus can save countless men and women from chronic neuralgia, rheumatism, sleeplessness, falling mental power and digestive disorders.

Dreco is purely vegetable and is recommended as a quick, natural and harmless body tonic and system invigorant by good druggists throughout the country.

Dreco is sold in Reidsville by Gardner Drug Co.

SYLACAUGA, ALA.—"My wife used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription during expectancy. She had been having a great deal of trouble and used the 'Prescription' with wonderful results. She had practically no suffering, where before she had suffered intensely. No one can tell in words the good the 'Prescription' did my wife; it is simply a wonderful medicine. Every woman in the land ought to use it."—A. HUDGINS.

LEAVES WAGON TO JOIN ARMY

Butcher's Man Quits Delivery When Seized With Desire to Enlist.

Everyone is familiar with the stirring story of the volunteer who in the days of the Revolution left his plow in the unfinished furrow and hastened to join the forces under Washington.

Memphis recently furnished a companion figure for this patriot of '76 in the person of a butcher who was suddenly struck with the thought that he ought to enlist, and abandoning his employer's wagon in which he was making a number of deliveries, hurried to the army recruiting station.

Clad in the apron of his trade, the butcher rushed into the office, was examined, accepted and departed last night for training camp.

The fate of the horse and wagon is unknown.

R. L. Darwin Says Animals Seek Salt, Not Fleas, When They Scratch.

Some of our theories about monkeys are all wrong, according to Darwin, modern naturalist, who lives on the Island of Guam.

That monkeys are not searching for fleas when examining the fur of one another, but are in quest of little masses of salt-tasting solution that exude from the pores of the skin, is the opinion of Sergt. Robert L. Darwin, a retired member of the United States marine corps, who is the owner of a monkey ranch on the Pacific coast.

Darwin does not suggest the raising of monkeys to relieve the salt scarcity, neither does he claim relationship with the author of "Origin of Species."

Aged Convict Gets Pardon.

William F. Moorehead, eighty years old, has been pardoned from the Missouri penitentiary by acting Governor Crossley. He is the oldest man who ever served in the prison. He was pardoned outright and his civil rights were restored. Moorehead, while marshal of the little sawmill town of Aniston, Mississippi county, shot and killed Roy Jenkins about two and a half years ago. He was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to ten years in prison.

A dog, "Bingo" Wiles, was enrolled as a member of the Red Cross at Sandusky, O., recently. "Bingo," whose color is white, is the property of Lew A. Wiles, a Sandusky business man. Wiles asked the Red Cross authorities if they would enroll his pet if he paid the price, and they said they would. The money was forthcoming, and a membership card was made out.
