DURHAM, N. C., MARCH 22, 1914

Even if every loss had been fully covered by insurance, it was a needless loss.

A water plan, or a fire department that fails us at a time like that is not worth much at any time.

The machine may name the governor this time, but it has tried to turn the trick in the past and failed.

And when Huerta states out at the head of an army to annihilate Villa we are not caring what happens to him.

If the progressives are simply tired of being bossed we are afraid that they will have to get out of the party.

At least two men are certain of getting the Durham postoffice and the others think they are in the running.

Some man may make a showing in a race with Senator Overman, but it will have to be a man pretty generally known over North Carolina.

There are some North Carolina politicians who understand the game too well to fall out with Mr. Wilson as long as the people are with him.

If the fault should happen to be the water company's we would like to see anybody go into the courts and get damages.

But if blame is attached anywhere it is rather to the people who permit themselves to be bossed rather than to the man who undertakes the job.

As the editor of the Greensboro News was in Washington when the state chairman was named, it may be that he knows what he is talking about.

It may be that the transcontinental railroads are fighting free tolls but you can put it down that they have not been to Mr. Wilson with their troubles.

It would seem that the machine is supporting Mr. Overman for reelection, but you can put it down that he swore allegiance to the machine first.

If Aldrich, Cannon, Penrose and that crowd were against the free tolls clause the democrats could very well afford to shut their eyes, ask no questions and vote for it.

We had understood that Mr. Kitchin was not going to vote for the repeal of the free tolls clause, but since he has received some encouragement it seems that he is going to take a delight in doing all he can against it.

It is rather mystifying that many of the more radical protectionists opposed the free passage of American coastwise vessels through the canal from the first. It might lead one to think there was somebody else they wanted to protest more.

The disastrous fire of last night should have been checked during the first hour. However, this was not done and at this time we are not prepared to say whether the fight lies with the water company or with the fire fighters. The water was cut off at a time when the fire was apparently under control, but just why this was done would perhaps be a hard matter to find out.

WITH THE EDITORS.

Tainted News. That projected conference between Huerta and John Lind is so long in materializing that it threatens to be classed under the head of tainted news.—Asheville Citizen.

Has Lost Its Charm. Life is not what it used to be. Years ago when the colored population played baseball, spectators got the worth of their money, for they played ball and had a fight or two. Now they have caught the aristocratic part of it and have quit. More fights occur with white players engaged than with negroes.—Greensboro Record.

The Suffrage Movement. The defeat of the suffrage amendment in the senate, a measure that aimed to submit a revision of the constitution so as to permit women to enjoy equal election privileges with men, was an even break vote, the majority of one showing that a bare majority of the senators were ready. The promoters of "the cause" should find much encouragement in this vote for it shows to what we are coming. No doubt in a few more years our women will have the privilege of voting all over this American land.—Salisbury Post.

New York's Curfew. According to the plan adopted by Mayor Mitchel, New York cabarets, restaurants must hereafter close at 2 a. m. Restaurants without entertainment may keep open until 6 a. m., serving food and liquor. Hotel bars are to close at 1 a. m. Saloons catering to night workers may take out all-night license. If they "can show a legitimate demand for them" but liquor must not be served in back rooms after 1 o'clock. Thus does New York start out to be good. It does not look like very much of a state, but any start means something and one ounce of reform initiated by New York city authorities with New York city's approval is worth a ton of restrictive enactments from Albany for a town bent first of all upon regulating its own affairs.—Charlotte Observer.

On Being Bossed. A two-column editor of the Greensboro News by W. A. Hildebrand, editor, would lead one to believe that North Carolina has a political boss. And when North Carolina disposes of this boss, there will be another boss to dispose of and so on ad infinitum. That's the way it is in other states, even with legalized primaries and the initiative and referendum, we suppose, and that's the way it will be for all time. The history of a state, like the history of a nation, is nothing short of the biography of its big bosses. We are not protesting; we have no interest in any machine, and are in position to throw our influence if occasion demands, toward that crowd which give promise of doing best for the state, in the meantime realizing that somebody will be boss just the same.—Raleigh Times.

PROGRAM ARRANGED.

For the Commencement at State University. Chapel Hill, March 21.—The 1914 commencement program of the University of North Carolina has been arranged, with respect to the securing of the chief speakers for the occasion. Hon. W. C. Redfield, United States secretary of commerce, will make the chief address on Wednesday, June 3. The baccalaureate sermons are there being employed. This May 31, the opening day of commencement. Dr. Edgar P. Hill, a noted Chicago divine, will deliver the sermon. The Y. M. C. A. sermon will be delivered Sunday night, will be made by Dr. O. E. Brown, a teacher in Vanderbilt University Theological school. Judge Van Wyck, a lawyer of New York city, will make the alumni speech on Tuesday, June 2. Judge Augustus Van Wyck graduated from the University of North Carolina with the class of 1864. Other than being a well-known lawyer of Broadway, he has long been interested in New York state politics. He was once a candidate for governor of New York, making the race against Theodore Roosevelt. In addition to these features on the program, many classes are making preparations for reunions at the coming commencement. Two classes—1904 and 1909—are exerting special efforts to have every member of their class return on Monday will be delivered on Sunday. High school debating societies, civic clubs, women's clubs farmers' unions and other similar organizations of the state will find a storehouse of valuable information in a handbook printed by the bureau of extension of the University of North Carolina. "Public Discussion and Debate" is the title of the 54-page booklet carrying information on almost all the live, everyday topics concerning North Carolina issues. Among the many subjects that receive brief attention in this useful handbook are: Race segregation, compulsory education, child labor, convict labor, rural credit and agricultural co-operation, engineering assistance to counties, taxation, commission form of government, woman suffrage, recall of judges, etc. The booklet expresses as its chief purpose that of stimulating public discussion in the debating societies of the high schools. Toward the furtherance of that end, the sixth and last division of the bulletin outlines a model constitution for high school literary societies to pattern after. In a series of lectures before the student body in the college chapel the past week the state geologist set forth some facts concerning North Carolina's industries. There are 12 excess of 200 species of trees in the state, attributable to the difference of climate in many portions of the state. North Carolina controls and utilizes 75,000 horse power of its waterpower, with this amount easily capable of an increase of five times those figures, provided all the streams available were harnessed. Specimens of practically all minerals are found in the state, although precious minerals are rare. North Carolina mine a larger quantity of mica than any other state in the union.

How to Live 100 Years. Marry early in life and live plainly. Do not run or scuffle or lift heavy weights. Go to bed every night at 9 o'clock and sleep eight hours. Sleep on your right side and keep your mouth closed. Do not worry or quarrel—keep in good humor. Keep your bed away from the lamp walls of your dwelling. Take a tepid bath twice a week but avoid cold baths. Take some exercise before breakfast—a short walk or use the dumb bells. Have a good mat at your bedroom door and a good rug at side of your bed. Eat meat, well cooked, only once a day. Eat plenty of fat to feed cells that destroy disease germs. Drink no intoxicants of any kind and use tea and coffee but sparingly. Do not dissipate or imbibe strong drink. Allow no pet dogs or cats in your living rooms at any time, as they bring disease germs from infected quarters. If possible live in country on a farm six months of every year—the spring and summer months preferable. Change your business at intervals if need shall appear, and engage only in congenial and healthy enterprises.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy. If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills. If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.
