"The Key to Yesterday," with Carlyle Blackwell.

"The Path Forbidden," with Octavia Handworth.

"At the Old Cross Roads," with Estha Williams.

Today's offering consists of three reels from the Mutual Program.

THE GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI TODAY

The World's Film Corporation presents at the Paris today a five part production "The Gentleman from Mississippi." The story of this film in brief follows:

The story of "A Gentleman from Mississippi" revolves around the adventures in Washington of a newly elected senator from Mississippi, fat, jovial Bill Yangdon, who is sent to the capital by the "trust" interests as an easy mark who will concede with their ideas through friendship for the one who put him there. The old gentleman, a cavalier of the old school, has a high sense of honor and seeing through their schemes, defeats them and comes off victorious in a fight that threatens to destroy him financially, politically, and what was more vital to him, of smirch the honor of his family. His daughters become infatuated with Washington social life and the elder becomes engaged to a congressman, Norton, who tries to put through a bill placing a naval base at a point in the Gulf of Mexico, where he has persuaded his fiancée and her brother to invest their money. Old Langdon discovers Norton's trickery and breaks the engagement.

"But" Haines, a bright, young newspaper correspondent in Washington, has become acquainted with Langdon shortly after the latter's arrival at the capital and becomes the private secretary of the new senator. Knowing the perils of Washington political life, he steers the old man safely past the reefs and captures the old man's younger daughter.

The old man falls a victim to the charms of a dashing widow, while the pert young stenographer who furnishes quite a bit of the comedy, surrenders to a persistent young reporter.

FIVE REEL VARIETY PROGRAM AT THE GRAND THEATRE TODAY

Five one reel subjects make up the Grand's program today. Three of these are dramas and two of them comedies.

For Saturday a special western attraction is booked.

Yesterday Manager Jourdan's patronage enjoyed a very good Paramount picture, "His Last Dollar." This play featured David Higgins and there was not a dull moment during the showing of the four reels of pictures. The races were realistic and all enjoyed the show.

FAST AND FURIOUS ACTION IN THE MASTER KEY MONDAY

The seventh episode of "The Master Key" surpasses the fast and furious action of the preceding episode. With the development of the love interest between Dore and Ruth continues while both are at the Maux hotel in San Francisco. A diversion is afforded by a trip to Cliff house and a shopping expedition, which bring Dore and Ruth closer together.

The story of this installment will be pictures shown at the Paris Monday

THE PRINCE OF TONIGHT

A PLEASING ATTRACTION

The Winston-Salem Sentinel has the following to say concerning the attraction Messrs. Harris and Freedland have booked to be shown at the Academy of Music Monday night:

Delightfully surprising in every way was the presentation at the Auditorium last night of the musical comedy, "The Prince of Tonight," given by a cast that pleased immensely and staged in an elaborate a manner as many productions claiming more pretentiousness. The scenery was all that could be desired, the cast large and splendidly costumed, and many splendid voices rendered the song numbers in a manner that brought forth numbers of encores in many instances. The male voices were particularly good.

Tom Arnold, as "The Prince," grew much better in his part as the play progressed. Possessed of a splendid voice, he was the center of attention whenever he appeared. His song, "Her Eyes are Blue for Dear Old Yale," with a double quartet, was one of the musical hits of the play, rendered with a vim. For an encore the octette gave "Tipperary" in such a spirited manner that four encores were necessary before the audience was at all satisfied.

Vera La Vere was one of the handsomest and most accomplished female workers in the play. Her beauty and ease of manner quickly made her a favorite, sharing the leading honors with Mabel Luffin, who possesses a splendid soprano voice, and Eva Phillips, whose comely mannerism were most cleverly executed.

Frank Harsh, the stout comedian, who tips the scales at 325, handles the comedy work in a manner that proves him worthy of the highest praise. Without make-up, his natural humor whenever he appears. His work was one of the features of the play. Three acts and four scenes are required to tell the story of the play, the plot being a little more elaborate than the usual musical comedy, but delightful to follow.

Those who missed the "Prince of Tonight" missed one of the season's most satisfying productions. Its return would be certain to bring forth a packed house.

Seats for the musical spectacle "The Prince of Tonight," will be on sale at box office today. This most talked for musical play will undoubtedly do capacity business, and it would be well for theatregoers desiring choice locations to purchase their tickets early.

"SEVEN HOURS IN NEW YORK" NEXT WEDNESDAY

Full of tuneful music, pretty costumes, modern dances, and a lavish environment of scenery, and presented by a large company of well-known comedians and a chorus of young and pretty women, "Seven Hours in New York" will be seen at the Academy of Music on next Wednesday night.

The story of the piece is interesting and abounds with comic situations and brilliant dialogue and lyrics. On the occasion of its premiere performance in Boston, Mass., the press has had this to say: "Seven Hours in New York" aroused a large audience to genuine enthusiasm last night. Seldom has a musical play been received as favorably in this city. It is rickety in good fun. The music is of the lifting kind, comedy forest hilarity, and the chorus is smarter, prettier, and more full of ginger than any ever seen in Boston. The person who believes he has an aesthetic temperament committed to his indur car may not go into raptures over "Seven Hours in New York." It is not a production for the rare individual but for the great, good natured public. There is that mystic something that gives one a sense of elation before the first act is under way. Perhaps it is the music, perhaps it is the stage setting, again it may be the bewitching attractiveness and delightful abandon of the chorus in full regiments, but whatever it is, a lifting feeling comes to the spirits and before long, the grumpiest person in the audience is onine in the applause."

John Murray, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Murray, was badly burned yesterday afternoon about 6:15 o'clock. The child was burned on the back from the hips up, and while the injuries were very painful, the physician who was summoned thinks that they are not liable to be fatal.

Mrs. Murray had gone out into the yard for some coal and left the child in the room. While she was out in some way the clothing caught fire, and the little fellow was badly burned before the mother could get the burning clothes away.

part of the constable for practically all of the officers had never entertained much hope of finding him. But with two determined men, the pair that attached their signatures to the alleged retailer's bond, and with an officer who stood ready to follow any clue, Kames' chances of getting away were decidedly slim. His bondsman was determined to bring him back and they have not signed a second bond in his favor.

FARM MORTGAGES.

Bankers Welcome Criticism in Effort to Remove Obstacle.

The board of governors of the Farm Mortgage Bankers Association of America announces that the association will welcome criticism concerning questionable methods of farm mortgage banking anywhere in the United States. It is the aim of the association to assist in an effort to put farm mortgage banking beyond reproach of any sort and to promulgate educational plans to enlighten investors concerning farm mortgages.

The association purposes to take steps this year to secure legislative action with regard to rural credits throughout the country. The next annual convention will be held in St. Louis in October.—New York Sun.

FOUND IN TOBACCO BARN

Constable and Bondsman Brought Eames to Jail Yesterday.

W. A. Eames who was arrested Monday on a charge of retaining and the illegal possession of spirituous liquors and who jumped a $500 bond before the case was called in recorder's court was found in a tobacco barn, belonging to Will Garrett six and a half miles south of the city, yesterday, a few minutes before noon by Constable Garrard and one of the signers of the bond and brought back to the city. Eames was lodged in a jail where he spent the night and this morning he will be arraigned before the recorder to answer to the above mentioned charges.

Eames had located in a tobacco barn on the Garrett place and the general appearance of the interior of the barn suggested that the bond jumper had hung as far as he intended, for the E. A. being at least. He had a small heater in the place, a bunk and a table and chair. Eames was well located and was in position to remain indoors for an indefinite length of time.
