THE DEAD TO THE LIVING.

O you that still have rain and sun, Kisses of children and of wife, And the good earth to tread upon, And the mere sweetness that is life, Forget not us, who gave all these For something dearer, and for you! Think in what cause we crossed the seas! Remember, he who fails the challenge Falls us too.

Now in the hour that shows the strong— The soul no evil powers affray— Drive straight against embattled wrong;

Faith knows but one, the hardest way, Endure; the end is worth the three. Give, give; and dare, and again dare! On, to that wrong's great overthrow! We are with you, of you; we the pain and victory share.

—Lawrence Binyon, from War Verse.

Notice to Red Cross Workers. There are thousands of children in Italy, France, Belgium, Palestine and the Balkans who, together with their whole families, are in dire need of clothing of the kind made by the Red Cross chapters in this country. The war is over, but it has left frightful conditions behind it, and the coming of peace has only increased our responsibility to the people of the stricken countries. Refugee garments have replaced surgical dressings and hospital garments in chapter allotments, and all chapters are being urged to do their share of this work that no child in the allied countries may go cold.

The Durham chapter has received an allotment of 250 pinafores to be made for these refugee children. The work-room at the court house will be open all day Tuesday, and the workers are earnestly requested to come and help make these garments, both for the sake of these children and to sustain the reputation that our chapter has justly earned of doing its part whenever called upon.

For the Late Supper.

And now that the war is over we can again enjoy the festivity of the late supper which we were asked to give up during war times as one means of conserving food. Perhaps never indulging in this before-bed time meal has been something of a blessing to many persons; still having to go to bed hungry after keeping late hours was indeed cheerless ever for the patriot once who followed the Food Administration suggestions unflinchingly.

Now as a matter of fact for the late evening refreshment something substantial, like the maligned Welsh rabbit, is really preferable to something light and sweet, like ice cream and cakes. The Welsh rabbit—is indigestible only when incorrectly made or when eaten with an accompaniment of varied sweets. But since it is as easy to make a good Welsh rabbit as a bad one, and since the dish is a meal in itself, and so can be served without sweets, there is no reason in the world why it should be indigestible.

Men almost always like better than they like sweets, and it is more nourishing, and so more refreshing, than a lighter or sweeter dish.

The first essential to a good rabbit is fresh cheese. Insist on having soft, fresh cheese, for if it is at all hard the rabbit will be stringy.

Cut a pound of cheese in small pieces. Beat an egg, measure out a cupful of milk, and mix half a teaspoon of mustard with a little paprika and a pinch of salt.

Butter a chafing dish and heat it. Put in the cheese and melt it over a low flame. As it melts press out all the lumps with a silver or wooden spoon. When the cheese is melted gradually stir in all the milk, as smoothly as possible. Then add the mustard, salt and paprika. At last add the egg, stirring quickly as you do so, and leave the rabbit on the stove about a minute longer. Have thin slices of brown toast ready, or else use toasted crackers, and pour the rabbit over them.

When ale is substituted for milk the rabbit is not so nourishing.

Stuffed or plain olives are a fitting and appetizing accompaniment to Welsh rabbit.

Roxboro Social.

Roxboro, March 1.—Continuing the social activities of the past week, a very delightful affair of the season was the party given by Mrs. Luther M. Crabtree last Friday afternoon, at her home on North Main street, when she entertained at rook and dominoes. Njpe tables had been arranged, with the reception hall, library and dining room thrown into one, which afforded a spacious setting for this event. The decorations were of American flags, potted plants and beautiful pink and white primroses. The honorees of this affair were: Mesdames W. F. Long, John B. Harvie, and D'Arcy W. Bradsher, who at the conclusion of the afternoon, were presented dainty gifts by the hostess. The two charming little daughters of Mrs. Crabtree, Margaret and Mary Shuford, assisted their mother in serving a delicious two course luncheon.

At an elegantly appointed four course dinner, Mrs. R. I. and Miss Elma Featherstone, entertained Thursday evening, at the home of Mrs. Featherstone, on North Main street for two brides, Mesdames W. F. Long and John B. Harvie. The table presented a pretty picture with its center piece of filet lace, with tall cut glass vase of red carnations, each place designated by place cards of George and Martha Washington. The honor guests were presented each a book, "Songs for a Little House." Covers were laid for fifteen, and the evening was closed with several games of dominoes.

Opportunity

And How Two Men Met It

OPPORTUNITY does not flow in a steady stream like a river—it comes and goes in great tides.

There was a high tide after the CIVIL WAR; then came the panic of 1873. There was a high tide after the SPANISH AMERICAN WAR; then came the panic of 1907.

And there is a high tide now, and those who are wise make proper BANKING CONNECTIONS with a STRONG BANK need not fear what may happen when the tide recedes.

The wisest men in this country are putting themselves now beyond the reach of fear. THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK has increased its Capital Stock from $150,000 to $400,000. We feel in position to let come what may. We will be in position—with out increased Capital, $400,000 and our surplus, $250,000, what are betide, to take care of our Friends AND WILL.

LOOK! LISTEN!! READ!!!

From a certain little town in Massachusetts two men went to the Civil War. Each of them had enjoyed the same educational advantages, and so far as anyone could judge, their prospects for success were equally good.

One man accumulated a fortune. The other spent his last years almost entirely dependent upon his children for support.

He has "had hard luck," the town explained. He "never seemed to catch hold after the war."

But the other man did not "lose his grip." He seemed to experience no difficulty in "catching hold" after the war. The difference in the two men was not a difference of capacity, but a difference in decision. One man saw the after-the-war-tide of expansion, trained himself for executive opportunity, and so swam with the tide. The other man merely drifted. The history of these two men will be repeated in hundreds of thousands of lives in the next few months.

Take our advice while the opportunity presents itself, come to the FIRST NATIONAL BANK and make suitable Banking Connections.

We need you. You need us.
