"Things I Ate Hurt Me"

"I HAD a severe case of indigestion," says M. S. Bell Buckheiser, 7 River St., Piedmont, S. C. "So many things that I ate hurt me, I almost quit eating. I would burn in my chest. I had severe headache, and such a tight, smothering feeling. I would be obliged to eat a little, then it would hurt me. A friend said to me, 'Why don't you take Black-Draught?' I was just too weak then to do my work. I began taking small doses after meals, and in just a few weeks I could eat anything I wanted to, then take my small dose of Black-Draught and feel fine. I soon regained my health and strength."
It's only 1 cent a dose.

Sunday School Lesson

Matthew 28:1-20
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning," was never truer than when the first day of the week came after the body of Jesus had been placed in the tomb, following the crucifixion on the previous Friday. Part of three days had passed during which the Jewish Sabbath had been observed. As soon as work could again be taken up certain women made ready to perform the usual rites upon the body of their dear Friend. With spices they came very early to the garden tomb.

Insurmountable difficulties did not hold them back, though it was but natural that they should question en route, "Who will roll us away the stone?" For a great stone sealed the mouth of that sepulchre. Then came an active lesson that many never learn. We worry so much about situations that never arise. For, meanwhile, the resurrection of the body of Jesus had taken place. There had been an earthquake, not to let the body out but to permit the women to see within the dark tomb. When they arrived there was a messenger in the person of an angel to declare the good news, and to give the ministrations for immediate service. "He is not here they were told. To-day many go to the grave to weep, as if their loved one was there entombed. No spirit has ever been placed in the grave. Death refers to the body only. At once with the death of the body our loved ones are in the spirit world.

The records in all four Gospels should be read with care to obtain every detail. Jesus begins to appear to individuals and to groups. He met a company of women as they returned to the city. Then He came to Mary Magdalene, who tarried by the open sepulchre and thought He was the gardener, as she looked through her tear-dimmed eyes. A new world of joy was hers when He spoke her name and said "Mary."
Such joyous news was not to be kept by anyone. The angels said, and He confirmed it, that they should go tell His disciples and even Peter was specially named, lest this one who had so grievously denied Him should not know that he had been forgiven. There are at least eleven recorded appearances and there surely must have been another though no record is given of it. Jesus certainly showed himself to His beloved mother, for whom

He evidenced such concern when in the midst of His agonies on the cross. During a period of forty days these various manifestations occurred.
It was fitting that Jesus should make a mountain in Galilee a place for a special conference with His disciples. It was in that area that His greatest amount of work was accomplished during the three years of public ministry. The attitude of the disciples is an index of the way in which mankind will ever regard Him. "They worshipped He reassured his almighty power, but some doubted." First of the resurrection was direct testimony thereto. Then He revealed that Kingdom-building had just begun, with Himself as the chief corner stone. He would go away soon, but their work and that of those who joined them would be abiding. They were given the Great Commission "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations." As His love is without limit, so the scope of their and our work is to be equally extensive. As they went they were to TEACH. Believers were to testify of their faith through Trinitarian baptism promise. As they went forth on Climaxing all is an all-inclusive this commission, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

The Way of Life

Do People Feel Better Because You Passed By?

I was in a doctor's office by appointment at five thirty when his telephone rang. A woman's voice at the other end of the wire asked him to call at the house that evening.

His voice betrayed irritation, but he promised to call. Then he snapped the receiver on the hook and exploded.

"There is a woman who has nothing to do all day but gad about. She might as easily have called me this morning or early in the afternoon. But no, she has to put it off and spoil my evening."

"Nobody but a doctor has any idea of how inconsiderate people can be."
On two recent trips with two different men I had an interesting opportunity to contrast their conduct toward their fellow human beings.

One of them had made several million dollars in the past few years. Whenever he entered a dining car or a hotel he wanted everybody to understand that he is rich and important. Waiters dislike him, even though he tips liberally. I sometimes felt embarrassed by his critical demands for attention.

The manner of the other man is exactly reverse. You would never guess that he is a power in world industry. He never gives orders, but makes suggestions or very courteous requests. He seems surprised that anybody should want to do him a favor. He can make a waiter or a station porter feel a new sense of self-respect merely by his smile.

A noted preacher once remarked that one of the finest of all the sayings of Jesus is this: "I have compassion on the multitude."

Said the preacher: "Many men can be virtuous. Many can be honest in a hard, self-righteous way. But how many are really considerate? How many feel instinctive respect and sympathy? How many have compassion?"

A lot of twisted standards have somehow grown up in the world. A lot of very righteous people seem to think that a man is good if he does not smoke, does not take a drink, does not do this or that.

These are negative and unimportant. The real mark of a Christian and a gentleman is whether he treats other people as he would like to be treated. Whether they feel better or worse because he passed by.

The very word house dress brings to the minds of many dresses of coarse cotton materials, in crude pinks and blues, cheaply made and to generously proportioned. Perhaps house dresses used to be like that, and women accepted them as a matter of course, not expecting to look their best during the busy hours at home.
I had a pleasant sort of surprise in store for me the other day when I was asked to make selections from a number of expensive ready made dresses of the house-dress sort. When they were displayed by the models it was difficult to believe that they were house dresses at all. Many of them might have been chosen for sports or summer resort wear.

Three was a firmly fitted short sleeved dress of pastel blue plique and a sleeveless dress of green and white cotton print with crisply pleated organdie at the neck. Those of shantung silk especially appealed to me, though their price was amazingly reasonable. One of them, in pastel green is shown here.

One reason that house dresses nowadays have such an air of smartness is that they are inspired by, if not actually copied from, dresses designed for sports wear.

My rural readers will pardon me, I'm sure, for once more calling their attention to what is still one of man's fiercest, most unrelenting foes; it seems to me that good advice in the presence of an enemy is never out of place.

Thoughtful men have been battling this scourge since the dawn of history; for its annihilation men of great wealth and greater hearts have spent countless millions in research, and the noble work goes on. Just what measure of success has been achieved may be noted by any observing one who reads and nor more recent decades have been singularly noted for advances made.

Tuberculosis is a communicable disease. If you never come in contact with it you are fortunate indeed. But contacts in the densely populated districts are often unavoidable; the fog of dust you encounter on the windy of the death-dealing germs; thoroughfare may contain many your resisting power against disease may be low; your own lungs may become infected, especially if you are carrying a colony of influenzal or other bacilli; you can never tell.

Steer clear of the person who coughs without covering the mouth and nose with a handkerchief. Be duly alert against the fellow with a chronic cough who continually expectorates on the grass under the shade tree, or on the sands of the beach near by. Shun the resorts where "junkers" (poor fellows) abound if possible; the best precaution you make take is none too good; prevention is many leagues superior to cure.
