IN MEMORIAL OF MELVIN BRYANT

We pause respectfully today to write a word of tribute to the memory of our beloved friend and neighbor, Melvin Bryant, who entered into his Heavenly reward June 16, 1933.

To him the call came with striking suddenness in the midst of his daily tasks, sparing him the discomfort of lingering and suffering. His consecrated life fitted him for instant response and fortified him in the hour of his hurried passing.

As we reflect upon his radiant life we think of its beauty and loveliness. Scarcely has one lived among us whose life's conduct, faith and devotion to his church, Sunday school and Master's Kingdom have been more worthy of emulation and admiration than his. He loved all that was good and ever stood for the finest and best in character and human life. His was a life lived in the confidence and esteem of his fellows, in loving service to his Lord, and in the contemplation of his going we are most conscious of our loss. But our loss is Melvin's and Heaven's gain. May we be able sincerely to say God's will be done to which we humbly bow.

In this brief tribute we cannot write in detail of his many splendid qualities as husband, father, neighbor, churchman, Sunday school scholar and Christian citizen, but merely say that his life exemplified the truth that greatness is goodness. Well did he run life's course, fought and won its battles, and in triumph surrendered his armor for the victor's crown. The mortal of Melvin Bryant has passed forever from our vision but still we seem to feel the inspiration of his living spirit.

We loved him in life, we honor his memory. May the mantle of his noble living fall upon us, the widow and little son.

WOMAN FLAGS TRAIN

Mrs. Hamp Lovelace, who lives near Bostic, proved herself a heroine Friday at noon when she ran 200 yards, flagged a Seaboard train en route to Rutherfordton from Charlotte and prevented what might have been a serious wreck. She had seen four Negroes place objects on the track.

Goldenrods cause only a small percentage of hay fever suffering; trees, animal hair, glue, horn-rimmed spectacles, molds and dust also bring it about.

The FAMILY DOCTOR

(By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.)

JUST THINK

Nature is busily engaged in her laboratory when we sleep. She steps out of the way when we arise in mornings—and we may have the day for our own, to put in as we may or must. How important that we put in our part of the time properly, for our own benefit.

When you are asleep, your heart is getting a good rest, with you lying recumbent. Eight hours of rest for your heart—its value cannot be estimated! And it is so necessary. This privilege cannot be abused without inviting serious disease. The man, woman, or child who dissipates the night hours away, suffers for the sin sooner or later—is sure to. There is nothing more important to you than those eight hours of sleep.

In order that you may get them, it is necessary for you to have a regular hour of retiring. If it's ten o'clock for your bedtime, go to bed AT TEN, NOT LATER. Acquire regular habits and stay by them—thus adds to you length of days on earth.

Not enough sleep is sure to undermine the health. Because, it is when you are asleep that repair is going on in your body; inert matter—nutrition—is being converted into living matter. Don't interrupt nature when she is at work for your good; if you do she is sure to resent it, and it will be just too bad for you.

This letter is to urge a daily schedule for your better being. Arise early—after those eight hours of sleep. Get a good, substantial breakfast. Work till noon. A good wholesome vegetable dinner. One or two hours rest. If you are past middle age, lie down and rest an hour after the noon meal. You will find it invaluable. Work till five. Then, light supper. Recreation or rest till time for bed. Adopt a program—and live up to it. I'm right.
