

ROOSEVELT IS TO MAKE ADDRESS AT CHARLOTTE TODAY

Thousands Are Expected In That City To Hear Him
MANY TO GO FROM HERE
President to Also Stop At Greensboro, High Point And Salisbury
ADDRESS AT 4:00 P. M.

Washington, Sept. 8.—At his regular press conference this afternoon President Roosevelt said very little about his southern trip, which calls for an address on the occasion of the Green Pastures rally at Charlotte on Thursday, but stops have been arranged on the return trip at Salisbury, High Point and Greensboro.

Under secret service rules and regulations the definite time for the arrival and departure of the presidential train is seldom given, but the President expects to make a platform appearance at Salisbury about 8 o'clock, and at High Point and Greensboro between 9 and 10 o'clock.

When the President's train left tonight it did not carry a large number of passengers, and it is assumed that if Chairman Farley and John J. O'Connor, of the house rules committee, are to be in Charlotte for the seven-state rally, they will go later by regular train.

Preparatory to leaving tonight for a two-day trip into the south, President Roosevelt was busy clearing his desk of routine business, conferring with departmental and emergency heads, and working on the speech he will deliver at Charlotte.

The President left Washington tonight on a special train for Knoxville. Reaching that city before noon tomorrow, he will remain there about an hour, and

PLAN REAL DOG SHOW

Complete plans for the entertainment to be staged as a part of the Elkin Fair, which will be staged here October 1 and 2, are rapidly shaping up with the announcement Tuesday of a marriage, to be held on Friday of the fair; a bigger and better dog show, in which dogs will be judged as to breed and class, and a battle royal and boxing bout.

The fair catalog and premium list is now in process of distribution, and it is hoped that agricultural exhibits will be more numerous and superior to previous fairs. Considerable interest in the event is in evidence on every hand, and two really gala days are anticipated.

In addition to exhibits and the program of entertainment, the fair will also include other features for the entertainment of visitors, including a bingo stand, throwing games, shooting gallery, etc.

The dog show, which is in charge of Dr. C. E. Nicks, and which will be judged by Dr. T. W. Shore, of Booneville, an international authority on dogs, will include four classes. There will be a class for hunting dogs, including

LATENESS from the State and Nation

N. C. CONVICT SLAIN BY PATROLMAN

Clinton, Sept. 8. — Colin Cain, escaped long-term North Carolina convict, died at a kinsman's home near here today of a bullet wound inflicted by a South Carolina highway patrolman who returned the fire of two gunmen at Florence, S. C., last night and chased them 80 miles before being outdistanced.

The mortally wounded fugitive, sought for numerous robberies since he fled the Caledonia prison farm last May, was left at the home of Osley Carter, near Ingrid, 12 miles from here by a companion believed to be Dan Kolb, who was identified as a participant in the Florence shooting.

LANDON TO SPEAK IN MAINE

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 8.—In a surprise announcement, Gov. Alf M. Landon said tonight he would go to Maine "to participate in the first fighting repudiation" of the new deal by closing the state Republican campaign with a Portland speech Saturday night.

A brief one-sentence statement told the Republican nominee's plan and automatically cancelled, at least for the time, a national conference of Young Republicans scheduled here Friday. Previous statements had projected a midwest farm tour late this month as the next major campaign swing.

REBELS CONVERGE ON SAN SEBASTIAN

Saint Jean De Luz, France Sept. 8.—Spanish rebel columns tonight converged on besieged San Sebastian, their leaders spurning a surrender offer made by the son of the governor of the city.

Old men, women and children fled the city in which factions of the defenders were reported to be fighting each other in the streets and pillaging homes and shops.

Pasajes, one of the main barriers to San Sebastian, was reported captured by rebels after they drove back dynamite-throwing Asturian miners.

ORDINANCE PASSED BARRING TRUCKERS

No Longer Lawful for Coal to Be Hauled Into Elkin Direct From Mines

DISCUSS FIRE QUESTION

At a meeting of the Elkin board of commissioners held Tuesday night an ordinance was passed prohibiting sale of coal here except by established, licensed coal merchants.

The ordinance was passed following a complaint by local coal merchants in which it was pointed out that truckers, hauling what the complainants termed an "inferior grade" of coal from the mines, were taking business away from established firms who sell only the best coal; who weigh every load, and who are always on hand and available when further orders of coal are desired.

It was also pointed out that those who are hauling coal into Elkin now pay no taxes, maintain no scales or yards, and would be unable to further take care of their customers this winter when the weather becomes too bad for further trucking from the mines.

The local coal merchants main-

SHERIFF, REGISTER OF DEEDS OFFICES GO TO MOUNT AIRY

ELKIN CANDIDATE LOSES

Dobson Swings Support To Martin to Defeat Bennett For Representative

KIRKMAN IS ENDORSED

Attended by one of the largest crowds in years—and which will probably result in the township primary system in the future—the Democratic primary, held Saturday afternoon at Dobson, nominated candidates to contest for office in the November election.

Elkin, as a result of the convention, was given one county office, that of county commissioner, to remind her that she is a part of Surry, Mount Airy claiming the lion's share of jobs and doing the lion's share of voting with 648 delegates on the spot, according to tabulation of votes cast from that precinct.

To Mount Airy went the office of sheriff, register of deeds, one county commissioner and coroner, and a mighty effort was made to grab the nomination for representative in the state legislature, too, but this business was blocked by Elkin, when, seeing Henry Dobson, Elkin's candidate, stood no chance, his support was swung against the Mount Airy candidate.

Candidates nominated were as follows: for sheriff, Harvey Boyd, Mount Airy; register of deeds, Willis Lawrence, Mount Airy; representative, N. J. Martin, Dobson; coroner, Dr. Robert E. Smith, Mount Airy; county surveyor, Golden Baker, Shoals. Mr. Baker, who had no opposition, was nominated by acclamation.

The present board of county commissioners, made up of J. W. Lovill, Mount Airy, W. J. Swanson, Pilot Mountain, and M. Q. Snow, of Elkin, was nominated by
