THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, Jan. 5. — The 75th Congress, which has just begun its first session, has plenty of real work ahead for it. Like its two predecessors it will take its guidance from the White House. There will be much talk about "Congressional independence," but it is a safe assumption that no measures of vital importance will be initiated or enacted by Congress without the approval of the Administration. Also, most of the new legislation will be on the initiative of the President.

This is quite natural, since the only pattern or plan for the future is in the President's keeping. And while the plan is not yet fully disclosed, the general understanding here is that it will move along substantially the same lines as during the past four years. Probably fewer new ideas will be put into lay. Attention no doubt will be chiefly centered on consolidating the changes already made and revising the enactments of the past two Congresses to make the laws more workable.

The Big Job Ahead

One of the important jobs to be done is the reorganization of the Executive bureaus and departments. Almost every President has tried to do this, but their efforts have been generally blocked by Congress.

Just before President Hoover went out of office he said that either "Congress must keep its hands off now, or they must give to my successor much larger powers of independent action than have been given to any President." The response of Congress was to enact a law, before Mr. Roosevelt's inauguration, vesting in the President broad and sweeping authority to consolidate, eliminate and rearrange executive bureaus.

Last March the President named a committee to study and report to him which of the new agencies should be scrapped or reduced and how the survivors could be consolidated. Committees of the House and Senate also began to study the subject. The outlook now is for pretty general rearrangement of governmental departments, with greater efficiency and simplifications as the main objective.

The main obstacle to a logical regrouping of administrative functions may be found in Congress itself, for the element of political patronage cannot be overlooked. Moreover, most of the government departments and bureaus have well-organized methods of putting "pressure" on Congress to increase rather than cut down their powers and perquisites.

Mr. Roosevelt stands a better chance of getting Congressional support in the face of these powerful "pressure blocs" than any previous President ever had.

Snuff Boxes Filled

Preparations for the opening of Congress were completed by the filling of the two snuff-boxes which stand on either side of the door to the Senate Chamber. This is an ancient custom, dating from George Washington's time. There are still four or five Senators who are regular snuff-takers, and many more who take an occasional pinch from the Senatorial snuff-boxes, on the theory that a good sneeze helps to ward off an impending cold and clears the Senatorial head for debate.

The "baby" of the Senate, 30-year-old Rush D. Holt of West Virginia, is being disciplined by his elder colleagues for the insubordination which he displayed last year. Mr. Holt was outspoken in his criticism of Harry Hopkins, Federal Relief Administrator, and during the political campaign he also opposed the re-election of Senator M. M. Neeley, his Democratic colleague from West Virginia.

Mr. Holt has now been formally notified by the chairman of the Senate patronage committee, Senator Hayden, that he will not be allowed to name any persons for jobs in the Capitol.

T. V. A. Has Trouble

There is an explosion in prospect inside the T. V. A. which may have wide-spread consequences. It is no secret that Arthur W. Morgan, T. V. A. administrator, and his assistant, David Lillenthal, are at swords' points. Their differences are on fundamental issues of policy. Dr. Morgan wants to carry out the Tennessee Valley improvements along sound engineering lines and sell the power developed to power companies for distribution.

Mr. Lillenthal would encourage and aid the establishment of publicly-owned distribution systems, to put the power companies out of business.

President Roosevelt arranged a truce between the two points of view at a White House conference last Fall, but it now seems that he will be forced to take sides with either Mr. Morgan or Mr. Lillenthal. The President's decision will no doubt give a key to the Administration's attitude toward public utilities.

For a hundred years or so there has been much talk of limiting Presidents to a single term, but making it longer. Talk of that sort has been revived, and Representative George H. Tjirkham, the bewhiskered Congressman from Boston, has a joint resolution ready to submit for a Constitutional amendment fixing the Presidential term at six years and no re-election.

While the general idea is favored by many members of both Houses, it would stand a better chance of serious consideration, no doubt, if it came from a Democratic member instead of a Republican.

Aged Lady Passes

Mrs. Eliza Money, 79, died suddenly at nine o'clock Monday morning near Cycle, Yadkin county. She made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Fannie Shore. Mrs. Money was born in Yadkin county, Sept. 8, 1857 and had spent her life in the county. She was married to Enoch Money, who died about 20 years ago. Besides the daughter, Mrs. Shore, two other children survive, they being Mrs. Nancy McBride of Lewisville and W. H. Money of Winston-Salem. She was the last of eight children.

She was a charter member of Mountain View Baptist church, where the funeral was held at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. W. V. Brown and Rev. F. W. Fry conducted the services.

EQUIP WITH

Firestone

GROUND GRIP TIRES

they make their own road

SAVE time and money, and get greater efficiency by equipping the rear of your car or truck with a pair of Firestone Ground Grip Tires. These tires will give you the super-traction that is needed to pull through mud or unimproved roads and will save you the time, trouble and money of applying chains.

The secret of the extra traction built into Firestone Tires is the massive rubber lugs, scientifically placed on the tread so that it runs as smooth on a hard surfaced road as the ordinary tire. Ordinarily the stresses and strains would be so great on this super-traction tire that the tread would be torn from the body, but because of the Firestone patented processes of two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread and the Gum-Dipped cord body, Firestone engineers are able to build a tire that is stronger, more durable, and will hold the massive super-traction tread securely to the body of the tire.

No automobile or truck owner can afford to travel unimproved roads unless his car or truck is equipped with a pair of these Firestone Ground Grip super-traction tires. Come in today and let us show you how Firestone Ground Grip Tires will save you time and money.

See the complete line of Ground Grip Tires for cars, trucks, buses, tractors and all wheeled farm implements.
