

TELLS OF HORROR OF RECENT FLOOD

Native of Yadkin County Writes of Conditions in Louisville, Ky.

IS WIFE OF PHYSICIAN

The following letter, taken from the Greensboro Daily News was written by Mrs. Bess Ray Andrews of Louisville, Ky., wife of Dr. Harry Andrews. Mrs. Andrews is a native of Yadkin county and a sister of Mrs. W. I. Shugart of Jonesville:

Several days were required to complete the letter, written a few sentences at a time due to the illness of Mrs. Andrews, who was confined to her bed during the interval of the flood.

Beginning Sunday, January 24, Mrs. Andrews wrote:

"I suppose you have already heard about conditions here. Things are growing desperate. Trolley and bus lines have stopped—downtown gas lines have been cut off—rescue workers are begging for boats to save the marooned. Our water and gas and light plants are in great danger. If they go the horrors we face will be indescribable. Everybody is jittery and panicky. I feel it until I can't stay in bed—yet I can't get up. Harry looks grim. He and Bill Langley, our pastor, are discussing plans for a relief station in St. Mark's Episcopal church just a few blocks away. The Magnolia exchange lines are gone and I can't find out if several of our friends are safe. No more now—arm hurts.

Current Is Off
"Monday: Electricity off, which means no paper, no radio. Harry is giving inoculations at St. Mark's Episcopal and Crescent Hill Baptist and Methodist churches. He gave over 100 shots here last night. Water is off except for two one-hour periods each day. This is Harry's headquarters for relief work and office. I've had over 100 calls today.

"Tuesday: Conditions are almost unbelievable. One of Harry's secretaries and seven others are marooned in Harry's office in the Heyburn building. Water is overflowing in French Village and getting into the lobbies of several buildings. Stewart's and all the other business houses in town almost floating. Water is two feet deep in the Brown hotel coffee shop. (The Brown hotel is one of the largest uptown hotels in Louisville) and most of Broadway has water almost up to the street-car cable. The government and all agencies all over the country are coming to the rescue, and oh, how grateful we are!

"Wednesday: Everybody is working like mad and I'm too busy to write today. Can't get stamps to mail this anyway, but will mail as soon as do. We are drinking slimy, muddy water—I'm sticking to milk.

Thursday: Things are easing up a bit—have more food, medical supplies and help from the outside than you ever heard of. Louise and her family of eight jumped out a 2d story window into boats and rowed down 4th street to Ky. hotel—ten in a room with no lights, and pipes breaking on them. They hope to get out here on a pontoon bridge today. A friend in Rock Hill, S. C., sent me stamped envelope for reply to her note asking for news so I've asked her to send me stamps.

"Friday: Stamps here now, so will get this in the mail — now while this flood is more horrible than I can describe. We are terribly inconvenienced, but so much to be thankful for.

"Owen and Bingo launched a 40-foot yacht over here on Frankfort avenue, believe it or not!

Many people are leaving the city—wish I could travel.

"As a sidelight: Tom Geiger squatting behind a counter in their store with a machine gun protecting the Geiger jewels. I could tell you many comical as well as horrible things if I had time."

The letter was concluded with the postscript: "Having lights again tonight. Water down three feet."

A Senatorial Smack for Jean Harlow

WASHINGTON... Jean Harlow, beautiful blonde movie star, invaded the national capitol steps and received a senatorial smack. 'Twas far from being a reprimand, however. Instead, it was an enthusiastic greeting from Senator Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina (as shown above) welcoming Jean to Washington as a special Hollywood guest to attend the birthday ball for the President.

here last week visiting relatives and friends.

M. A. Gaither of Winston-Salem was a business visitor here Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sneed and

Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Dezern of Booneville, visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, near Jonesville, Sunday.

Misses Madaline Newman and Sylvia Darnell will be in charge of the young peoples meeting Sunday evening.

"Stand aside and watch yourself go by" some one has said, and well, let's do this and see how we stack up as citizens, as neighbors, as Sabbath school workers, as Christian men and women. Are we filling our place, or if "Every-one were just like me" would we be ashamed of our community? I'm wondering.

Orchids so large that four men were required to carry the plant, have been found in the Everglade National Park of Florida.
