

IF IT AIN'T ONE THING IT'S ANOTHER
Life gets mighty aggravating sometimes. All this week-end we've labored—labored hard, too, but don't let it get nosed around—just now, ready to knock off work for the week we happened to think we'd completely overlooked this column!

Result: we'll have to stay here three or four minutes while we write down all we know. Seem's like life can be awful bothersome sometimes. It's bothersome for us to have to write this, and it's bothersome for you to have to read it. You ARE reading it, aren't you?

Had a mighty nice letter the other day from reader No. 10, Mr. Gaston S. Foote, of Foote & Co., Norfolk, Va., whom we (or should it be who? we dunno) mentioned in this column the other week. Mr. Foote said some mighty nice things and we appreciated it, but we were sort of disappointed because he didn't enclose a 10-lb. package of Franklin sugar in his letter. You see, he sells Franklin sugar, among other things, and we all think it mighty fine. (If Domino is listening we're just fooling.)

Mr. Foote, although living in Virginia, is a native North Carolinian. Speaking of sugar, we remember a boy we worked with in Greensboro one time who was forever getting to work about half an hour late. Fact is, he just got there usually about five minutes before we did. One morning when we reached work he hadn't shown up and we were sure he had been run over by a steam roller or something because when anyone got to work later than we did it was time to put on hat and coat and go to lunch.

However, about 30 minutes later the door opened and this young man came slowly in. In one hand he had a bottle of cough medi-and in the other a two-pound package of lump sugar. Knowing the boss was looking at him with fire in his eye, he coughed feebly, took out a lump of sugar, poured a little of the cough medicine on it, and put it in his mouth. Then he explained to the boss how deathly ill he was.

That was the last lump of sugar he ate. We ate the rest but didn't bother about taking the cough medicine. The medicine and sugar was just a gag to gain sympathy and forestall a cussing for being late. Think maybe we'll try it here sometime.

Will Holcomb, leading spirit in the Jonesville Parent-Teacher association, was invited to attend the Holy Week services at the Elkin Methodist church here the past week. First he wanted to know where the church was, then he asked the price of admission. When it was explained he could get in without paying, he asked if they took up a collection and when he was told no, he said he wasn't feeling so good so guess he wouldn't be able to attend after all.

However, lest one gets the impression Mr. Holcomb doesn't attend church in his own thriving little city, let it be said that he goes each week, always slipping into his seat just after the collection plate has been passed. We shudder to think what would happen should he miscalculate the time and get there BEFORE collection. The church treasury would probably be a penny richer.

And we hope this will be a lesson to him for various and sundry remarks made at our expense while in his store one afternoon last week.

A certain local man was telling the other day about a certain person who had some nice hens, and a neighbor who had a rooster that was right much of a Don Juan. According to the story, this old rooster would come sidling over to the hen-owner's house and, captivated the silly old hens with his charm, would lure them back to the rooster's own stamping grounds. The neighbor, it was said would then put the hens in a coop and for several days after that she and her family would dine sumptuously on baked hen.

Then one day the owner of the hens happened to sorta buy himself a game rooster, which he turned out with his hens. The next day the neighbor's rooster came prancing over with evil in his heart to lure away more hens. Hardly had he entered the yard than "pow!" and the game rooster had nalled him through the head with both spurs!

And that was the end of the wicked rooster... and you'd be surprised who owned the game rooster. And that's one way of filling space. So what!

Next week we'll give you the story of the Three Bears.

It's a sight how they work enforcing the hour-parking law around here. One day last week we bet Raymond Felts used up three sticks of chalk marking on our front tire, all in the space of several hours.

Got so finally that we had to get an eraser and go out and rub off what he'd written.

We understand there's to be another spasmodic attempt at enforcement of this ordinance next Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. You're invited.
