

TRAILER MAKERS DOING BUSINESS

Industry Expects to Have 300,000 Units On Highways By End of Year

LAW IS BIG PROBLEM

Detroit—As yet unaffected by sit-down strikes, the automobile trailer industry is stepping up its production steadily, with the objective of placing 300,000 units on the nation's highways by the end of 1937.

Still handicapping both producer and operator of the "house on wheels" is a difference of opinion as to whether the vehicle comes under the building code or the laws of the 48 states covering the operation of motor cars and trucks. Besides the state regulations, the producers and operators are as much concerned with local ordinances dealing with the conditions under which the "mobile dwelling places" may be parked in streets or parking lots.

The parking of trailers in business and residential streets has caused local authorities considerable research among the older traffic laws, mostly dealing with the horse and buggy era. Protest from many residents that trailers have been parked in front of their homes have brought from Detroit traffic authorities, for example, the information that as long as it is coupled to an automobile the trailer may be parked indefinitely if other regulations do not prohibit parking in the specific area. Similar ordinances prevail in many other centers.

While a very small percentage of the trailers at present in operation are being used for other than vacation purposes, the sales divisions of the industry are not overlooking the appeal of the "movable home" as a permanent dwelling place. The difficulty with sanitation laws in the numerous communities is one of the problems the manufacturers hope to have worked out during the coming year, so that trailer output may be further increased.

Nowhere in the trailer industry is there any doubt that the house on wheels is definitely established as a new unit of mass transportation. There is some question, however, whether a large proportion of the vehicles ever will become permanent homes for their owners. At the same time the producers of the wheeled dwelling place are concentrating their energies on incorporating in them "all the comforts of home," as the major sales appeal, despite the fact that buyers generally are those who believe they have a disposition to "rough it."

The FAMILY DOCTOR

(By John Joseph Gaines, M. D.)

"AND THE SEVENTH DAY" I feel sure our editor will pardon me, if I seem at times a little old-fashioned; there are so many flimsy, new theories now—and so much untried stuff advanced, that it is refreshing to go back to the old trundlebed for a bit of old-fashioned comfort once in a while.

Isn't the family doctor a sort of guardian in his community? I think so—a trusted mentor and friend. He, above all others must conclude God's laws are always right.

So, there's a seventh day for rest. It has been so for centuries. That assumes that we work six days. He set the example for us, in this matter of first importance. Well, how many of us observe the law—or follow the Divine example? How many of us pay the penalty which is sure, after many flagrant violations?

I am afraid that the church, ambitious to succeed in a holy cause, approaches very close to transgression when it fills the Sabbath with exacting ceremonies. Sunday is the day of all days when I keep my eye on the clock to see that I shall not be late at any of my denomination's ordinances. I have somehow acquired the feeling that, if I am late, or neglectful of formal statutes on Sunday, I am not living up to my duty as a God-fearing man—a would-be setter of good example in my community. So Sunday has become almost a day of exacting requirement, with but little REST. I wonder if God wants it that way?

Of course BUSINESS desecrates, gallops over, takes no notice of the Sabbath. It's the day when soft drink trade is best, and when grease and gasoline are most in demand. Even drug stores remain open on account of emergency (?) prescriptions! Would God have it so—I wonder?

Politics is the safest profession. It's the only one in which your blunders are forgotten by the time they are proven wrong.
