

TODAY and TOMORROW

PROGRESS . . . . . for leisure
I was not sure of my welcome when I stuck my head in the kitchen door the other day, for my wife was putting up grape jelly, and "putting up time" is not always the best time to interrupt domestic activities. Everything was calm, however. The big pressure kettle was simmering on the electric range, and there were utensils and gadgets around of which I didn't know the uses, but there was none of the heat, steam and air of tenseness which used to pervade the kitchen in preserving time when I was a boy. I said as much to my wife.

That started us both talking about the progress of the world since we were young, and we agreed that for us and for most of our neighbors it's a better world to live in than it was fifty years ago.
TIME . . . . . is shorter Hearing an airplane overhead I looked up and with the same thrill I always get when the Chicago-New York mail plane flies over our house. Time, I reflected, is one of the things the world has gained in my life. The telephone rang. It was the station agent with a telegram. The day before I had posted an air-all letter to West Florida, and here was the answer by telegraph, in less than 24 hours! My letter had been Here are the world's two canker sores, scenes of "undeclared" warfare and possible starting points for an Earth-encircling conflict. At left is mapped latest Sino-Japanese battle lines in North China and around Shanghai, including details of other important centers. At right is Spain after a year of "civil" war in which practically every major European nation has a hand. A cross-fire of diplomatic incidents on both sides of the world finds even the United States, forced to abandon a 20-year-old policy of isolation, aligned with the League of Nations in condemning "outlaws" and urging "quarantine" of aggressors.

TO KEEP YOUR VALUABLES SAFE

Thousands of pounds of steel and reinforced concrete guarantee the safety of your valuables when you rent a safety deposit box at this bank. Why risk keeping them at home . . . easy prey to fire or theft?

The cost of safety deposit box for an entire year is negligible. Why not rent one today?

carried from our local post-office by motor to the railroad, then by rail 50 miles to the Newark airport, then on the night plane to Jacksonville, Florida, 900 miles. There it had caught a westbound train to Madison, another 250 miles, and here, in less than a day, came the answer. It cost six cents for the air-mail letter; the telegram, 35 cents.
That is the marvelous thing about modern inventions, they can render such effective service so cheaply that almost anybody can use them. At first they cost a good deal. Only very well-to-do people could buy electric refrigerators when they were first put on the market in 1920. Soon great numbers of people began to want the new thing. The market becomes large enough to make mass-production practical. Prices go down.
PRICES . . . . . are lower
My electric light bill was pretty heavy last month. We used the range and the vacuum cleaner and a dozen other gadgets more than usual, so it cost us nearly $8 for current. But when my father first put in electric lights, in 1890, the rate was $1 a month for each bulb.
As costs go down, quality goes up. My first automobile, in 1906 cost $1,000, top, windshield, horn and lights extra. It could do 25 miles an hour on a smooth road if I could find one. I drive a car of the same make now. An immensely better car, its cost, complete, is under $750. Forty years ago I paid $150 for a bicycle. Better bicycles now cost around $30, because so many more are made and sold.

The things which cost more than they used to are those in whose production the labor item is still the largest factor. Wages are still going up. That is all right. Higher wages means that more things will be made by machines, with workers' wages spread over more units of product.
WAGES . . . . . in movies
The highest wages in any line are paid to men and women who make motion pictures. For a star actor to get $100,000 for his or her work on one picture is not uncommon. The picture companies can pay high wages because they have such a big market for their product. Twelve million Americans go to the movies every day. That means that more than two million dollars a day rolls in, and a very small percentage of that, earned by any one picture, is enough to pay high wages and leave a nice profit.
Next to the movies, the highest average wages in any manufacturing industry are to be found in the automobile business. This industry employs many times more people than the movies do, if we leave out the theatre employees. Wages of $100,000 a year are not uncommon in the automobile business, and there is as great competition among the motor companies for the services of men who are worth that, as there is between the movie studios for star actors.

of dishes which are to be sold at an almost give-away price.
This big sale comes to an end on November 6, so those who would profit by it should make plans now to visit the store while the opportunity is available.
Knowledge
Danny, along with many other little lads, started out to school for the first time last fall, and, like other little boys' fathers, Danny's father asked him how he liked his teacher.
"All right," was the reply.
"Is your teacher smart?" teasingly persisted the questioner.
"Well, she knows more than I do," admitted Danny.

Every deposit not forfeited or accepted will be promptly returned to the maker.
This the 4th day of October, 1937.
ROBT. A. FREEMAN, Commissioner.

PROFITS . . . . . spell progress
All of the progress made in my time toward easier living, speedier communications, opportunities for enjoyment and time to get more out of life than a bare living have come about because somebody believed he could make a profit by producing things which we would buy. Some have made very large profits. Many more who have tried have suffered heavy losses. The so-called profit system should properly be called the profit-and-loss system. The risk of loss is particularly great when people try to create a market for something entirely new. There are nine or ten major companies making motor cars today. I can remember when there were 300. Most lost all they invested.
That is the history of every new invention. Before it proves itself by public acceptance great risks must be taken by the men who put their money into it. Henry Ford's first two companies went broke, before he hit on the "Model T" and gave the public a car which met the need of the times. The telephone was a financial failure for years. No "sane" banker would lend a cent to the pioneer movie producers.
I have nothing but admiration for the men who had courage enough to take long chances to provide new comforts. They are welcome to their profits. And I don't believe we would have many of these modern conveniences if we did away with the profit system.

Allan D. Ivie, Jr. Will Enter Race As Candidate For District Solicitor

PROMINENT ATTORNEY TO SEEK OFFICE

His Hat in Ring

Allan D. Ivie, Jr., Leaksville attorney, who will seek the Democratic nomination for solicitor in the 21st judicial district.

"Definitely in Race", He Informs Representative of The News

IS WELL QUALIFIED

Upon being interviewed by a representative of The News last night, Allan D. Ivie, Jr., young and prominent local attorney, gave credence to the rumors that he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for solicitor in the 21st judicial district when he stated he had decided to enter the race. For some time reports had been circulated that he would be a candidate but this is the first statement he has directly made to the press concerning his intentions in the solicitorship contest.

The present solicitor, Allen Gwynn, Reidsville, will be a candidate for the judiciary, which leaves the post he now holds open to a new aspirant, and from all reports throughout Leaksville township and Rockingham county there is assurance that Mr. Ivie's candidacy will receive strong support where his qualifications as attorney and jurist are well and widely known. Especially in his home town of Leaksville he is assured the full backing of Democratic voters.

Mr. Ivie is a native of Leaksville and a member of one of its most prominent families, being the eldest son of the late Allan D. Ivie, who was a prominent member of the bar and served in the State Senate.

Mr. Ivie has been successfully engaged in the practice of law in Leaksville for the past 10 years. Receiving his early schooling in Leaksville, he entered Duke University where he obtained his literary and legal education. When only 20 years of age he passed his examinations to the bar but had to wait until his 21st birthday in December, 1927, the age requirement in this state, before he could practice, becoming one of the youngest men to become engaged in the legal profession in the state.

in that office with efficiency and dispatch.

Mr. Ivie needs no introduction to the people of this county and his large legion of friends are convinced that his candidacy for district solicitor will find the people of Rockingham solidly behind him.

The demand on his legal talents, however, have not found Mr. Ivie wanting when called upon to give his time and his efforts in community affairs. He has ever been active in the promotion of those things for the best interests, the uplift and progress of his city, county and state. He is a former member of the Leaksville-Spray Rotary Club.

Since an early age he has been a member of the Leaksville Methodist Church in which he has always taken an active interest. For several years he was teacher of the Men's Bible Class and he is frequently called upon to fill engagements for addresses before other churches and Sunday Schools throughout a wide territory.

Mr. Ivie is married and they have one son, Allan D. Ivie, 3rd. He and his family live in their modest home in Leaksville, adjoining the old home place where Mr. Ivie was born.

Those who know Allan Ivie are convinced that he will bring into the campaign a vigor which has characterized his other many activities; that it will be fought upon a clean and high basis in keeping with the integrity and high character of his private and professional life; and that his campaign will be pitched and maintained along those lines which have won for him the respect and confidence of all who know and have had dealings with him. Furthermore, his friends are confident that as he goes out into the District his candidacy will find a prompt and ready reception on the part of the citizenship.

Here is a coal you can depend on for unflinching satisfaction.
So packed with heat that it gives you abundant warmth on the coldest days—
So pure that it makes less than a bushel of ashes to the ton—
So satisfactory for home use that the producers make this unqualified guarantee: "If the user is not satisfied, coal will be removed and money refunded for all coal returned."
