TWO CARS, NEW TRUCK IN 1938 FORD LINE

New York, Oct. 27. — An advance showing of 1938 Ford V-8 cars and trucks opened this afternoon at the Ford Metropolitan showrooms at 1710 Broadway.

Two distinct Ford V-8 cars, differing in appearance, appointments and price, were presented. One was the de luxe Ford V-8, the other the standard Ford V-8.

The standard car is designed for owners to whom economy in first cost and operating cost is paramount. The de luxe car provides added luxury and style for those who desire them.

Both cars have the same V-8 chassis. The eight de luxe types are available only with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine, the three standard types with either the 85 horsepower or the 60 horsepower engine.

The de luxe car is a stylish sister of the standard. It is entirely new in appearance. The radiator grille is of new design. Appearance of the hood is longer and more sweeping. Fenders are massive. Interior appointments are in keeping with the styling of the exterior. Substantially more room in the closed sedans, greater passenger comfort and much larger luggage space are provided.

The standard V-8 cars reveal new styling, with a different radiator grille design, long hood and flowing contours. The spacious interiors are roomy and attractively upholstered and appointed.

In addition to the two passenger cars, Ford is to present an expanded line of V-8 trucks and commercial cars. Both are newly styled to lend added "eye appeal" in commercial transportation.

A new group of "one-tonner" trucks also is offered, in addition to the 112-inch commercial cars and the 134-inch and 157-inch wheelbase trucks.

The new "one-tonner" is designed specifically to bridge the gap between the commercial cars and the truck groups. Available with either 85 horsepower or 60 horsepower engine, it is expected to make the economies of the latter engine more widely available in commercial transportation.

Other advances for 1938 are the new 134-inch wheelbase truck, replacing the 131-2-inch wheelbase in the big truck line, a new frame width for the 134-inch and 157-inch wheelbase units, improved brakes and easier steering and stronger construction throughout.

NOW EVERYBODY CAN STOP SAYING "STOP"

The word "stop," which has become as familiar in telegrams as the word "love," is no longer necessary. Punctuation marks and paragraphs will be sent free in all future telegrams, it has been announced here by Mrs. Lillian W. Dickens, local manager of the Western Union.

Notice of this change in the telegraph practice of the nation was given in a tariff filed with the Federal Communications Commission. Mrs. Dickens said, and is now in effect. Now punctuation marks employed in the text of domestic telegrams—but not to points outside the United States—will be sent as written and not charged for.

Hey! Heh!

A farmer was once talking to Abraham Lincoln and made an obviously exaggerated statement as to the size of his hay crop. "I've been cutting hay, too," said Lincoln, smiling. "Good crop?" asked the farmer. "How many tons?" "Well, I don't exactly know how many tons," said Lincoln carelessly, "but my men stacked all they could out-of-doors and then stored the rest in the barn."

IN WASHINGTON

WHAT IS TAKING PLACE BY

Port R. Reynolds
UNITED STATES SENATOR

Editor's note—Senator Reynolds' column for this week comes from Portland, Oregon where the Senator visited the Northwest on a trip combining a survey of national conditions with a brief vacation prior to returning to Washington.

From the Pacific coast, after traversing a dozen states and talking with countless hundreds of people, an individual gets a better appreciation of national problems and conditions confronting our people. There is much advantage in looking at America from an area devoted to development of natural resources, rather than viewing it from the industrial East. This is all the more true when the individual is concerned with the welfare of a particular state in an industrial area.

A Tar Heel buying a package of cigarettes in Oregon sees it in new terms. There comes the realization that if the cigarettes are made in North Carolina, the state is definitely linked with that package. It creates a desire for great numbers of people to see where cigarettes are made. Equally as important, it is realized that the conditions under which the cigarettes are sold and the taxes paid by purchasers vitally affect the wages of factory workers in North Carolina and the price the farmer secures for his tobacco. Few get this perspective when they casually purchase a package of cigarettes at home.

The same holds true of other things manufactured in North Carolina, towels, furniture, blankets, cotton and rayon products and it also holds true of agricultural commodities grown in the state.

It is necessary in this day of great industrialization that those concerned with legislative programs have a better understanding of marketing conditions and tax systems. It is gained through first hand information. No longer are states and communities self-sufficient. "Buy at home" campaigns are fine things, but if the sale of North Carolina products did not extend throughout the world and those vitally concerned did not know the conditions under which they are sold and how they can be met, our workers and farmers would suffer greatly curtailed income.

The broad program to advertise and develop North Carolina now attracting attention even out here on the West coast is evidence that we live in an era of interstate commerce and prosper on new business and new industry.

In this connection, a Tar Heel far away from home gets still another perspective. It is that North Carolina, perhaps more than any other Southern state, has become all-American. Its people have the vision and energy of the West, the traditions of the South, the progressiveness of the East and the industrial interest of the North. It explains why North Carolina has forged rapidly ahead due to its diversified fields of industry, agriculture and commerce.

Those concerned with legislation recall that a proposal to use cotton for manufacturing sacks largely used for potatoes, through a higher tariff on cheap imports now used for that purpose was defeated because it would raise the cost of bags to potato growers in the West. The advantage that would accrue to the South was ignored by those primarily concerned with the welfare of the West. It offers an example of the complexity of national problems and the need for better correlation of our national fields of endeavor.

JESSE JAMES' ENEMY DIES AT AGE OF 89

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 23.—William H. (Judge) Wallace, the man who prosecuted and started the downfall of the Jesse James gang and therefore had his life threatened a dozen times, died peacefully last night at the age of 89.

He had outlived by a full generation most of those outlaws who once swore to get him. When Wallace took office as prosecuting attorney of Jackson county in 1880, the James boys and their allies were looting, kidnapping and killing almost with impunity. He had campaigned for office with the promise to bring the gang to justice, something that not one of his opponents dared to mention.
