

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, November 3. — Interest here is divided between the outlook for the special session of Congress on November 15th and the appointment by the President of his son "Jimmy" as coordinator of Federal commissions and bureaus. The heads of the eighteen largest independent and "emergency" government agencies will hereafter report to James Roosevelt instead of to Franklin D. Young Mr. Roosevelt will give each of them half an hour of time once a week, in which they are to tell him their troubles and bring up matters which seem to call for Presidential decision.

Through the medium of his son, the President will be kept informed of the acts and problems of these agencies, saving a great deal of Presidential time and labor. Something of the sort was included in the proposal for administrative reorganization which Mr. Roosevelt submitted to the Congress early in the year. Included in that plan was a recommendation for six Executive assistants to perform for the President in all departments just what James Roosevelt is now undertaking to do in eighteen departments.

Washington Likes "Jimmy"
That "Jimmy" as everybody in Washington calls him, will be able to do the job is generally believed. Since James Roosevelt quit his insurance business in Boston a couple of years ago to join his father in Washington, first as a sort of personal attendant in his capacity as a Marine Corps reserve officer and for nearly a year now as a regularly appointed member of the White House secretariat, "Jimmy" has been making friends among politicians and administrative officials, who regard him as his father's mouth-piece, and latterly among the newspaper correspondents, with whom he is the most popular press representative the President has yet had. Newspaper men believe he will make good in a job, which, on the face of it, looks like a heavy load for a young man still under thirty.

He must have almost unbelievable tact, for he will be dealing with much older men of wider experience and personal pride of position, who are good judges of men, and are going to be wary of the youngster until they have got his measure. Moreover, men like Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, Harry Hopkins, Relief Administrator, Jesse Jones of the R. F. C. and the others, are not going to be put off easily when they want to see the President himself. They must feel that his office door is open to them when they feel it necessary to see him, or they won't play.

The Chance of a Lifetime
Therefore, Washington is asking "Can Jimmy get away with it?" Has he the capacity to understand and absorb the questions placed before him, the skill to present them accurately and briefly to the President, and the personality to get answers and action? If he has such ability and such frankness that nobody can ever pin upon him the sign of the double cross, he has the most brilliant opportunity that could come to a young man with ambitions about his own political future. He may easily become a more significant and effective figure in the Federal Government than most of its elected officials and many of its appointed judges.

The physical strain will be enormous, but "Jimmy" has shown himself able to stand a lot. Over six feet tall, slender and sinewy, he has plenty of endurance. As a "double Roosevelt" — his mother was born Roosevelt, the niece of "T. R." — he has all of the charm and good looks of the family, plus tact and patience in full measure. He puts on no "side," and makes a decidedly pleasing impression upon almost everybody who meets him. And if he makes good in his new job of saving his father's time and strength and, especially, in conveying to him the precise facts about conditions in the offices which are to report to him, he will be a decidedly useful public servant.

Special Congress Faces Dilemma

As to the special session of Congress, Washington observers are skeptical about its finishing any important part of the program of legislation for which the President called it. Mr. Roosevelt has asked for a broader program of farm relief, but accompanied that with an insistent demand that Congress must find the money, without running up expenses above income. That means new taxes, and the general tax revision bill cannot possibly be got into shape even for debate on the floor of Congress before the regular session begins in January. In the meantime, Secretary Wallace, sensing the political necessity of doing as much for the corn farmers as the Government has done for the cotton growers, is searching with the aid of the Director of the Budget, for unused appropriated funds which can be applied to corn loans.

Cotton loans of 9 cents a pound have been made to growers who disregarded Federal warnings and increased their acreage to produce a bumper crop and a huge surplus. The corn growers, on the other hand, increased their acreage by 10 percent this year at the urgent insistence of the Department of Agriculture. With good weather conditions the result is a corn crop of 2 1/2 million bushels, glutting the market. To enable farmers to carry their corn over Mr. Wallace feels the Government should lend them up to 45 cents a bushel on warehoused corn, and that probably will be done.

White House Opposition Grows

Politically, Congress seems likely to be as self-willed and independent in the special session as it was when the regular session adjourned. Most of the leaders present being called into extra session and are coming back to Washington less inclined than ever to follow a White House blueprint for legislation. In the Senate, many here expect, there will be a strong effort to replace Senator Barkley as majority leader and elect Senator Pat Harrison in his place. Senator Joe Robinson's seat as Senator from Arkansas will be filled by Representative Joseph E. Miller, just elected as an independent Democrat over Governor Bailey, who ran an out-and-out New Dealer. Senator Miller is expected to vote with the anti-White-House group on major issues.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Take the Hazards out of WINTER DRIVING

Winter will soon be here with deep mud and snow drifts. They will mean nothing to you, however, if your car is equipped with Seiberling Mud and Snow tires—the only "two-way" mud and snow tire on the market. Here is a tire that gives traction forward and backward—is self-cleansing—is quieter and thumpless on dry pavement, yet gives long, economical wear the year round.

When Jack's a Dull Boy

Defective Eyesight may be the cause

Many a school failure has been traced to defective eyesight. When a child begins to show signs of backwardness—don't be alarmed—but do have his eyes examined by an eyesight specialist. Eye glasses may entirely eliminate the difficulty.

On the other hand, why wait until symptoms of eye trouble appear in your home. Guard your child's sight now . . . with better light.

Better home lighting means plenty of light, well shaded, free from glare. Moreover, the whole room should be lighted, not just parts of it.

How the I. E. S. lamp protects the eyes

Every I. E. S. Better Sight Lamp has a translucent diffusing bowl which helps make the light soothing and restful to the eyes. Each lamp also has a shade of high reflecting power, to give plenty of light for work and reading.
