

A Dream—Shall It Come To Pass?

(By DR. CHAS. C. WEAVER)

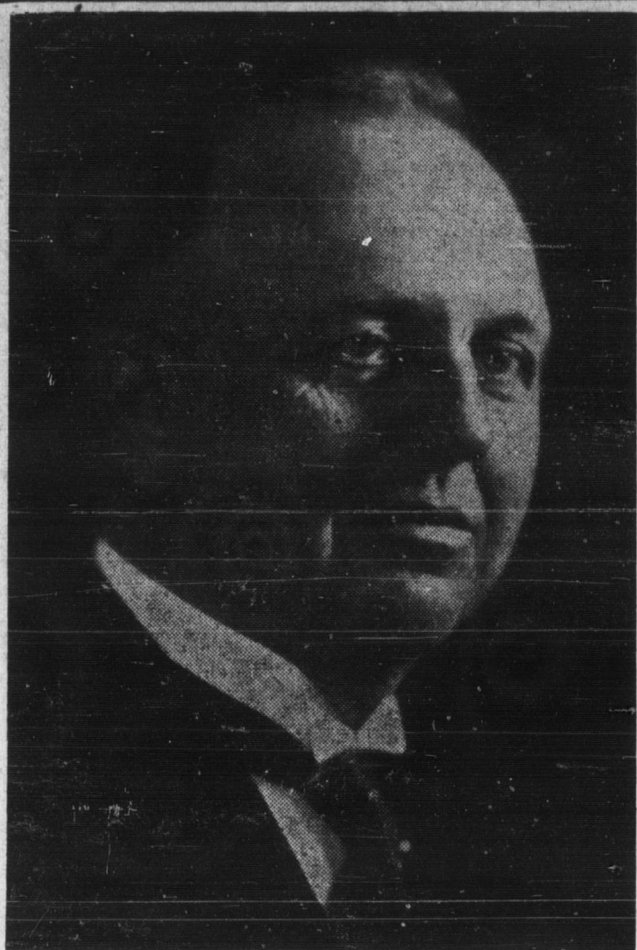

Some years ago the writer spent two weeks at Clifton Springs, N. Y. Perhaps most of you know that this great health resort was at first established as a home for missionaries who had retired or might be on furlough. This explains the religious character of the present Sanatorium which has grown up there. Who can say that it does not also explain its growth? The religious character is still maintained. They have a Chaplain who says grace at all meals; who holds morning and evening prayers in the Chapel and conducts Sunday services, and acts as personal spiritual adviser to all patients who need him. For ideal rest conditions for body and soul there is no better place.

But I am not trying to advertise Clifton Springs. I am rather using it as a text. When I first saw the beautiful spot on which the Hugh Chatham Hospital is situated, my first thought was that when the hospital was built we must move for a sanitarium of similar sort to be connected with it. I am more than ever convinced that this is the place for just such an institution. One of those lovely hill-tops will be never be quite complete until it is crowned with a building for just such a purpose. This should be the next step and it should be taken soon.

I am sure of two things. The first is that it is needed. Southern Methodism has no such place. Our people have to go places wholly secular where the sort of rest they get is not rest at all, or have to depend on our Adventist friends as I did for a week two years ago. We need a place where tired bodies, tired minds and tired souls may find rest and restoration. I am sure also that such a place would be well supported and would carry itself and perhaps help take care of the hospital itself. I was told by the management of one such institution that it carried not only its own expenses but aided in many other activities as well. All we need is the building.

The need is here. The support

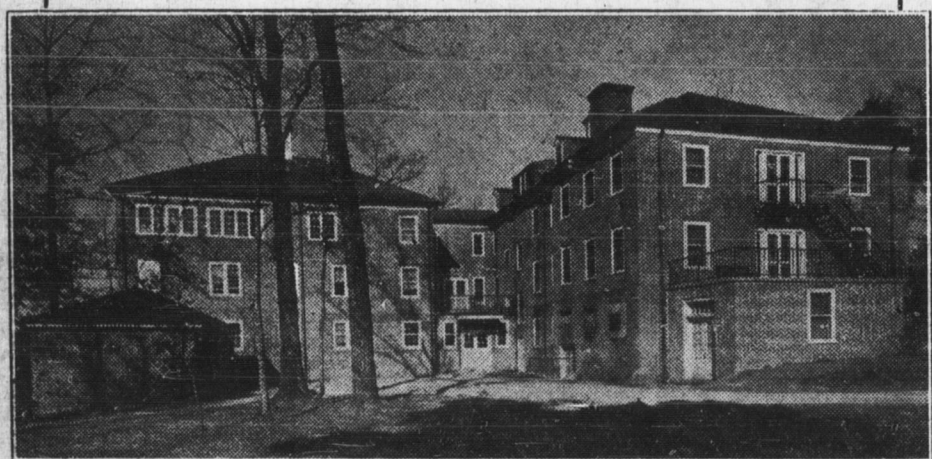

Board of Missions Chairman

Dr. Chas. C. Weaver, of Charlotte, chairman of the board of missions of the Western North Carolina Methodist conference, who will take part in the formal dedication of the new addition to Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital here today. Hospital work of the Conference is under the direction of the board of missions. In addition to being vitally interested in the local hospital, Dr. Weaver is also interested in the building of a proposed sanitarium near the present hospital plant.

is here. The place is here. What are we waiting for? For some one or many to say to us "Rise up and build?" Do I hear the voices in response?

The largest flag in the world is a United States flag in possession of the government. Its dimensions are 90 by 165 feet, stretching over one-half the distance of an ordinary city block.
