CONGRESSMAN HANCOCK'S TEN PROMISES TO THE PEOPLE OF NORTH CAROLINA:

First, I shall not make my maiden speech in the United States Senate in support of bar rooms for the District of Columbia, nor will my last speech be in advocacy of the establishment of a race track. I will devote my time and energies to the real and definitely serious questions confronting our nation.

Second, I will not have as my secretary a citizen of Virginia or of any other state except North Carolina. I am not only confident that I can, but I am determined to, employ from my native state such people as I need and am allowed. When North Carolina fails to have among its citizenship the brains I require it will then be time for me to come home and retire from public life.

Third, I shall not sell the name and dignity of your senatorship to anybody or any concern, be it a slick "alien" trading with the War department or a brand of cigarette which I may or may not smoke. As long as I am your representative the title to that office shall be and remain vested in the people of North Carolina. I shall be your Senator, responsible to you and beyond the touch of any interest, save the interest of the people of our great state.

Fourth, I shall not follow the sensationalism of William Randolph Hearst, arch enemy of President Roosevelt, or any other foe of progressive government. I will get my publicity on the basis of constructive accomplishments or do without publicity.

Fifth, I shall not, through concern over the free access of liquor, offer any silly bills providing that it may be given to dumb animals; but instead will give my thought to the serious problems of state and nation and expect our intelligent people, by referendum, to determine the sort of liquor laws they may want.

Sixth, I shall not for months at a time leave the affairs of North Carolina to the discretion of a resident of Virginia or anybody else, but shall myself serve the people who elect me. My office shall be open, not closed, to those who have business with me during office hours.

Seventh, I shall not belittle the dignity of your Senator by bouncing about the country advertising myself and a 96-year-old man who has become the father of a baby. His accomplishment is sufficient reward unto itself and I do not consider it the function of a Senator to add to his advertisement.

Eighth, I shall not promise the veterans or any other group to have one of their members in my office and then repudiate that promise, but, being myself a member of the American Legion, I shall help them with their affairs sympathetically and personally.

Ninth, I shall not be the most costly Senator North Carolina ever had, and I shall have no interest in investigating the Virgin Islands. There are many islands off the coast of my state, and I feel the impulse of consistency when I say that I should like to investigate them, but those investigations will not cost the taxpayers any money.

Tenth, I shall not be a resident of the world for five years and a resident of North Carolina for one, but shall be available to the people of my state just as much in years when I am not a candidate as in the years when I am. And when I make speeches to the people of North Carolina or any other state, I shall make them under my own auspices or that of the Democratic party. I shall not use your office to propagandize the ambitions of any league or group of self-seeking individuals.

(The above were taken from his opening speech, made in Raleigh over WPTF in the interest of his candidacy for the United States Senate.)
