Campaigning for:

Labor
(1) Retention and broadening of the Wages-and-Hours law as far as consistent with the necessities of sound business. In addition the adoption by national law of a system of compulsory profit-sharing, by all businesses except the smallest. Larger incomes for workers without imposing additional burdens on business. Only businesses showing profits participate. This is not a tax nor a relief program, but direct profit-sharing between workers and owners of a particular plant. This system is in voluntary operation now by a few large businesses, notably a St. Louis shoe company.

Farmers
(2) Retention and broadening of the present system of farm relief. In addition, the finding of new markets for certain of our larger crops with the aid of government subsidization. Take wheat, for instance. Roughly, at one year beef cattle average 1,000 pounds. At two years, 2,000 pounds. Fatten cattle for the second year on surplus wheat and other grain and sell them. If domestic disposal would upset the market, recapture our beef exporting market. If necessary, exchange this beef for foreign products, rubber, metals, sugar, coffee, to keep a year's supply or more on hand, in government hands. This is in co-ordination with the "ever-normal" storage program advocated by Vice-President Wallace.

The Unemployed
(3) The beginning now of the erection of a system of warehouses to store foreign products to avoid emergency shortages as we now have. There is no shortage of cement or sand. Only two-thirds of the capacity of the cement industry is now being used, says the Portland Cement Association. Train workers thrown out of employment now to build these warehouses now, roofs, walls and floors, out of this durable, economical, and plentiful material.

Small Business
(4) Further the National Defense program by calling into action all of the productive capacity of the nation's facilities. Avoid ruin for small manufacturers excluded from fabricating for defense, by requiring by law that the successful bidder shall submit from twenty to twenty-five per cent of the work. This is practicable in a majority of the cases.

General Benefits
(5) We are at war principally because the League of Nations failed. It failed because of two principal defects in its membership and organization. These reasons are, first, that the United States of America was not a member, and, second, that the League of Nations had no means of enforcing its edicts. Neither private, city, county, state, national, nor international law can be enforced without policemen. Take the equipment and ships of the Axis nations, when they are defeated, and organize an international army, naval, and air force. Base it on territory taken from the defeated nations in strategic spots. Support it by voluntary and enforced annual contributions from all the nations of the world. This will be surer, and cheaper in money and lives, than militarization of each nation.

Campaigning Against:
(1) Lax and losing conduct of a war. Take the aipliners from the airlines and transport troops and equipment to the theaters of war. As to every bit of territory the Allies now hold and lose a life in holding, it will take three lives to regain.
