COMPARISON BETWEEN PRIMI-TIVE AND NEW METHODS.

Some Sample Products of the Old Wheel and Loom.

This is a great government. We don't know very much about it until we go behind the scenes-behind the screens as it were-and see what is going on. The doings of congress sta we read them in the papers are very noisy and exciting, but it is mostly routine work and tells us nothing of what in going on in the various departments-scientific and industrial. We used to get the patent office reports that had a will of ourious information and erplanatory pictures, but they seem to have stopped coming. And there were books on agriculture and horticulture and pestiferous insects and books that told about cattle and sheep and all the diseases to which they were subject. All these used to be distributed among the people like the garden seeds are distributed, and pretty much for the same vote-casting purpose, but they cost a big lot of money, and now are given only to the scientific. The men of science make but little noise in the world. They care but little for fame or fortune, but they are ever at work studying nature and solving mysteries and lessoning the burdens of life. It doe's seem to be a dispensation of providence that great men care but little for money. What they discover or invent soon becomes common proper-ty. I am not speaking of the small man who takes out a patent on fish books or hairpins, but of great men, like Jenner and Pasteur, Agassiz, Fulton, Watts, Newton or Morse.

But I was ruminating about a visit I had today-a visit from Professor Tucker, the United States agent for the labor department. He came to find out about how the silk business was conducted in Georgia fifty years sgo. So I told him how my father in 1837 got some morus multicaulis cuttings from Washington and in two years had several acres of young trees, and then built a house forty feet equare and two stories high, and filled it with hurdle frames and got some silkworm eggs, and when they hatched the worm soon filled the house and eat up all the mulberry leaves and wanted more. We got enough from a neighbor to finish up with, and we boys were glad enough when the nasty things begah to wrap up in their mummy-like shrouds.

So he explained by say-She used to spin awhile and weave ing that his department is comparing awhile and then practice awhile on the old with the new-the primitive the plano add it was a pleasant mixture methods with the modern-and the of music all round, and she looked cost of each, and which was the best mighty pretty in her home-made linand gave more happiness, and other sey dresses-she did-that's a fact .economic questions. He said he had been on the rag-sed edge for the past forty eight hours. He said he thanked his white friends but owed a debt of deepest gratifude to the Negro voters. He deciare the was not in favor of putting property interest under control entirely of non-property-holding interests. He deciared he stood for the rights and liberties of Ne-groes. He had been cradied in the lap of a Negro woman and fed on milk both nutriti-ous and plentiful. He said all the Negroes wanted was fair play and a white man's chance. He hoped the fact would be shown that co-operation was not a failure and he called on Republicans to appeal from the Populisi committee to the Populisi peo-ple of the State. He said: "With the latter we can and will fuse. The fact that their committee rejected fusion does not show that their people will not fuse." He hoped meas-ures looking to co-operation would be adopt-ed. He said that Populist leaders had taken an untenable position and however irritating might be their conduct, he would never for-get that they gave the Republicans their vic-tory: that the Roublican meast of the state the said taken and the their conduct, he would never for-get that they gave the Republicans their vicapplause. He said he had been on the ragand table cloths, and some of them were gems of beautiful fabrice, and in those mountain counties the humble people are still spinning and weaving in the old-fashioned way and are happy. In many families their handiwork is piled up on the shelves and clothes presses, awaiting the marriage of sons and daughters, to whom they were to be given as bridal presents. Professor Tucker had some peoimens of silk sewing thread and fix thread that were made at home. He found good people up there who seldom bought suything and were able to give a stranger a good bed and plenty to cat and a sincere hospitality. He told me of an old man in Rabun an untenable position and however irritating might be their conduct, he would never for-get that they gave the Republicans their vic-tory; that the Republican party was one of the great principles and would not be ab-sorbed by the Populist party or any other party. He spoke in favor of protection. The following is said to be the footing of the district delogates to the Republican ma-fional convention, so far as the presidential condidate is concerned: First district, E. C. Duncan, J. B. Butler, second, Hr. L. Grant, John Hannon; third, A. R. Middleton, C. D. Waddel; fourth, W. H. Martin, E. A. John-son; fith, James H. Holt, James O'Brien; sixth, J. M. Goode, Z. F. Long (son stants J. B. Dudley, J. W. Mullen); sev-enth, J. H. Ramsey, G. F. Balley; sighth, M. L. Mott, J. B. Fortune; ninth, J. G. Grant; Charles J. Harris. Those from the second, third, seventh, eighth and ninth are instruc-ted for McKinley. Those from the first favor him so do Holt of the fifth and the contest-ants from the sixth. Goode and Long of the sixth are Allison men. The fourth district who said he never fell out with the United States until the revenue officers began to speak around his little still. where he had been making peach brandy for fifty years, and had the respeet of his Maker and his neighbors, and he fold them that the United States wasent big enough to stop him, for the right to make it was handed down to him from his father and grandfather. But after worrying with them for three years things kept getsixth are Allison men. The fourth district delegates say they are for McKinley, but are believed to really favor Reed. So does O'Brian of the fifth. Holton was re-elected chairman and R. M. These big distilleries, said he, swindle the government out of more tax money than all our moonshine stills put together. All they have to do is to bribe the storekeeper. I know of one over in North Carolina that sold 3,800 gallons in one year and never paid a dollar tax on it. He told Professor Tucker that the revenue men broke up forty stills in that region last year, but to his knowledge there were about a hundred that were still running on a small scale. "The boys sorter like the danger of it," said he, "and the in-former catches it when found out. He generally leaves this part of the country as soon as he pockets his bribe. The mountain people are not as honest and honorable as they used to be, and it all comes of this bribe-taking business. The United States ought to be ashamed of it." The professor said it is impossible to convince those mountain-their corn into whiskey, when one bushel will make three gallons and they ban haul a hundred dollars worth with a little yoke of steers. But they can't run a still on the government plan, for it would cost two or three hundred dollars, and they havn't got the money. He wanted to know if there was any old fashioned wheels and looms used in this country. Yes, a good many. A good old man died near here last year whose family never wore any other clothes as long as he lived. I knew another man who was quite well off for a farmer, who was a descon in the church and sometimes foreman of a grand jury, who never bought store clothes-and he always looked well in his home-made jeans. He tanned leather and made shoes for his family. His socks and anspenders and turkey red handkerchiefs were all made at home and so was the bed ticking and the feather beds and mattresses. "Raise your girls to work," said he, "and they will make good wives and good mothers. During the war the women of Colum-bus, Ga., swore off from wearing yankee goods, but mine do the same way in peace. That is pretty hard on the girle, and I should think would fit them for a convent or to be sisters of charity. I had a tenant once who believed so strong in working the children that they grew up without any schooling. They dident have any themselves and dident see the need of any. They had a bright little girl whom they called Thelby. "What is that child's name?" I asked the mother, and she said: "Her name is Othello." "Why, that is a hoy's name," said I, but she insisted that some man who staid all night at their house said it was a purty name for a girl. "What is your boy's name?" said I, "the one you call Dee ?" "Oh, his name is Desdemony, but we call him Dee for short." The poor lost. woman had got the names mixed-Othello and Desdemons. Some of these rule people do actually love to work. They get up before day and cook and eat breakfast before sunrise and are off to the field. One of my tenants told me he was always sorry when Sunday came, for it was a mighty long day to him. But the old-fashioned wheel and loom were very useful and pleasant things to work with. My wife still loves to tell her children how she used to spin and weave on Saturdays and sometimes when she came from school in the evenings, and how Ailsey-Tip's mother-was the best weaver and could make ten yards of plain cloth a day or six yards of jeans.
