SALISBUBY ITEMS.

A Creditable Commencement -- Mottvs. Ramsey--- An Address by Professor Mitchell.

Wesley Institute, situated in the beau-tiful Delta grove, in the suburbs of our town, took place yesterday. A large arbor had been erected in front of their substantial building, decorated with a number of small flags, with a very large one stretched over the door of the building. A large number of visitors were present, including quite a number of the colored clergy.

The exercises were opened with music and prayer. The 3ev J C l'rice, president, then introduced the orator of the day, the Rt Rev S T Jones, D D, bishop of the Zion A M E Church, a fine speci men of physique of the negro race, who proceeded to deliver a well timed, pro-found and eloquent address from this subject, "The Irrepressibility and Hope-fulness of the Negro." The address did great credit to the speaker, as well as to his ruce.

The afternoon exercises were devoted to the reading of essays and delivery of declamations and orations. The entire programme was very creditable indeed, both to the pupils and their instructors. The manner of delivery showed most careful preparation and training.

These exercises give the public great ssurance that good and wholesome training is being given at this institution, and that the faculty is competent and worthy of public confidence and patronage.
The Superior Court was engaged all day yesterday hearing the case of J J Mott vs John A Ramsay. The case in volves quite a number of facts concerning the collection of internal revenue for 1872-5, and attracts much interest, and calls forth various comments. The case is nearing a close at this writing. The celebrated will case from Davidson, Jane C Yokeley vs W F Henderson, Ex which was postponed yester-day, will be taken up this morning, and is likely to consume much of the time-of the court.

The Presbyterian Parochial School, under the supervision of Miss Lizzie Gilmer, gave a very pleasant and creditable entertainment at the close of the school on Monday evening last. Being unable to obtain a programme of the exercises, we are unable to give a more detailed account of the entertainment, as we would like to do.

The pupils of Mrs W II Neave's music school are to give an entertainment to-night and to morrow night, at Meroney's Hall, which promises to be one of the best musical entertainments ever presented in Salisbury.

Prof T J Mitchell, Superintendent of the Graded Schools of Charlotte, is to deliver an address in the graded school building here, Saturday next, at 11 o'clock a m,before the Rowan Teacher's Association, upon the subject of "County Institutes." It is hoped that the citins of Salisbury will turn out to hear this distinguished gentleman.

The Deering Machine.

To the Editor Jou-nal-Observer headed "Test of Reaping Machines, that but one side has been heard. We represent the Deering Light Draft Twine Binder which was at Mr. R. G. Kendrick's in competition with the Champion and Buckeye machines. The results of that trial were reported by the committee on the grounds as follows: That the Buckeye was the most durable and the Deering had the lightest draft; that as to the cutting, they could see no difference in it. When asked upon what grounds they believed the Buckeye the most durable, one of the committee replied: It had an iron bull wheel while that of the Deering was wood, and they considered the iron wheel more substantial. Now, we have only this to say: Our main or driving wheel is wood with iron bands or tire, and we believe nearly every other light draft machine has the same kind of wheels. We presume they could all make wheels of heavy iron and make larger cogs and heavier shafts and use heavier material generally, but in that case it would require four large livery stable horses to pull the machine. We can run a five foot Deering Twine Binder on ordinary lands very nicely with two horses. We have overcome the great objection to twine binders, viz: Heavy draft. We will give a ma-chine that we warrant as durable as any machine made.

We will run a five foot Harvester and Binder to day at Mr. C. W. Alexander's, a six foot machine at Mr. T. S. Cooper's, and on Friday will run a six foot ma-chine at Mr. J. R. Bakers. Any one wishing to see the lightest draft machine running will be amply repaid for the time and trouble by going to either of the above named places. These machines have been sold since the trial at Mr. Kendrick's with all the results of that trial before them.

Very respectfully. BROWN & WEDDINGTON.

Champion Speaks.

To the Editor Journal-Observer
In your edition of yesterday appeared a local purporting to give a true and correct account of the match between the binders and reapers at Mr. R. J. Kendrick's on Monday last. Your informer was evidently connected with the Buckeye Reaper and the ac-count is a biased, unfair and incorrect account of the decision of the judges. This is what they lid say: "We are unable to decide which did the beat work. They all worked splendidly. Our impression is that the Buckeye is a little more durable, from the fact of its having an iron bull wheel. The others though have a lighter draught than the Buckeye." That is a true statement of the judges' decision and is not an attempt to boast any machine by a mis-representation or distortion of facts. The Champion Binder and Reaper was in the match and as its agent I ask you to publish this as a mere matter of simits main wheel though made of wood is strongly bound by a broad band or tire.

The draught is very light. It did compets with the machines mentioned for the race and stands in the foremost rank of the best improved machines of the world.

Commencement Exercises at Greense bore Female College.

GREENSBORO, June 5, 1883. The commencement exercises of this excellent institution began with the excellent institution began with the annual sermon on Sunday, May 27, 1883, and were concluded with the concert on Thursday night following. The sermon was preached by Dr. W. W. Duncan, of Spartanburg, S. C. The audience was large, intelligent, and attentive, and the sermon was profound in thought, magnificent in artistic construction and finish, and impressive in prection.

on Sunday night, Rev. J. H. Guinn preached a good and impressive sermon to the W. M. Society of the College. Monday evening at 8½ o'clock, there was a musicale by the young ladies who had graduated in music, assisted by a number of excellent vocalists. The music was of a very high order, combining in most successful measure both science and art, evincing talent on the part of the young ladies and ability and faithfulness on the part of the instruc-

The programme for Tuesday evening consisted in calisthenic exercises. A large square in the centre of the chapel was arranged for the classes where they passed through their marches, X, circles, pyramid and diamond, fra gymnastics, ring exercises and marches, dumb bells, anvil chorus, Indian clubs, wand exercises, closing with a fan drill in which the young ladies were dressed in Elizabethan costumes. The evolutions were very intricate, but success fully performed.

The exercises for Wednesday evening consisted of recitals by the elocution class. Taken as a whole, the recitals were the best your writer ever heard. A medal had been offered for best reci-tal. The efforts of four of the young ladies were so remarkably fine, it was difficult for the committee to decide. They decided, however, in favor of Miss Cherry, of Greenville, N. C. The medal was presented by Judge Dick in a very chaste and elegant speech.

On Thursday, the graduating class, consisting of twenty-four young ladies, read their essays. The were well conceived, free from meretricious drapery, and delivered with fine elocutionary effect. They reflected honor upon the heads and hearts of the young ladies and upon the institution.

Thursday evening was the annual concert. The programme consisted of piano and vocal solos, duets, quartettes, sex e t s, octe t s and full choruses. Much taste was displayed in the decorations and arrangements, the selection of the music, and decided skill in the execution of the programme. The medal offered to the young lady who attained greatest proficiency in English literature. Miss Pell, of Chapel Hill, was the successful contestant.

The school is in a more prosperous condition than for years past. During the last year, there were matriculated 118 boarders Whole number of students 152.

The grounds and building are large, spacious and attractive. The building is three story and fronts 232 feet. The wings project 10 feet front and rea. The centre projects 12 feet in front and 62 in the rear, making 124 feet from front to rear. The chapel is 54 by 75 feet, has spacious galleries, with a sesting capacity of 1,200. The building has 88 rooms and can accommodate 200 girls. The college is situated in the suburbs of Greensboro in a campus containing 40 acres of ground. The building occupies an eminence beautifully surrounded by forest growth and elms and commanding an extended and pictures que view. I understand the board of directors expect soon to spend a considerable sum in beautifying the grounds and improving the buildings.

So far as educational facilities are concerned, I know of no superior in this State or even in this Southern country. The President, Dr. T. M. Jones, was graduated from Randolph. Macon, Va, in 1845, and has taught in female colleges 27 years. He combines n rare balance those gentle, urbane qualities, together with well-tempered firmness so necessary in the management of a female college. If I were selecting a man whom I thought born to manage girls, Dr. Jones would be

Mr. Alderman, professor of ancient anguages and mathematics, was graduated from the University, and has been teaching about 20 years. He is a man of ripe scholarship, and is very popular and efficient as a teacher. Miss Elisworth, principal music teacher, was educated in Chicago, then attended the Conservatory of Music in Boston, where she studied under Mr. Bendix, who is a pupil of Liszt. From Boston she came to Greensboro. She is a lady of marked musical talent and otherwise rare accomplishments, and has given great satisfaction. She is assisted by Miss Dewey, of Goldsboro, whose qualities of head and heart, as well as special fitness, cannot be too highly spoken of. Also by Mrs. Pell, who with fine musical talent, brings several years experi-

Miss Dora Jones, daughter of the President, a lady of brilliant talents and remarkable attainments, has principal charge of the library department, ably assisted by Mrs. Robertson and Miss Bumpas.

Miss Annie Jones, also daughter of the President, has special charge of, elocution and calesthenics and assists in music. After graduating at Greens boro, she spent sometime at the Boston Conservatory, where she studied elocution and music, and calesthenics in Miss Ward's gymnasium. In point of talent, intellectual furniture and adaptation to her special work, it would be difficult to find an equal.

The art department is under the special arrangement of Miss Beardsley, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. She studied art with Randel, of New York, and Weimer of Philadelphia; was a member of the Academy of Design of Brooklyn; also of the Ladies' Art Association of New York. Had a studio in Brooklyn two years; spent five years painting in the W. F. College, in Ohie, and three years in the Utica Female Academy. So that she brings native talent, the finest opportunities, and large experience to the art department of Greensboro. And no institution in the South offers better facilities on this line than

The first-class is in charge of Miss Bruton. She is a young lady of fine attainments and is well adapted to her atrainments and is well adapted to her special department.

The college is under the management of a board of directors who purchased the property when sold a year ago. They intend to furnish such superior educational advantages that young ladies will not feel that they must go north to seek higher grades of learning. The past year has been one of unusual presperity, and it is hoped a prophecy of still increased patronage and greater success.

lestimony of the Witnesses in the Shields-Sitton Tragedy-Verdict of the Jury. Coroner Smith returned to the city resterday afternoon from the scene of the late tragedy in Hopewell, where he yesterday concluded the inquest over the body of Mr. Jos. G. Sitton, the superintendent of the Maryland and Charlotte copper mine, who was slain last Tuesday morning by Mr. Thos. L. Shields. Messrs. R D Whitley, J R McDonald, Wm Little, B F Brown, Jas S Kirksey and I N Hunter, composed the jury of inquest. Immediately on organizing the jury and viewing the body, Coroner Smith went to Work examining the witnesses. The young lady whom it was alleged Sitton seduced was called, but refused to give any testimony before the jury. Mrs David H. Shields, sister to the murdered man, testified that about 7 o'clock on the morning of the murder, she was in the stove room cleaning the stove, when Tom Shields came to the door and asked her if she had eaten breakfast. "I replied, 'long ago.' Smiling, he. turned away and walked into the opposite room to where I had left my brother sitting by the window, speaking to him I heard the deceased laugh, then 1 heard Tom Shields say 'lets go up stairs.' They then went up stairs, Shields carrying the gun on his shoulder, the deceased in front. The deceased made a

A big hubbub was raised on the streets last night about 9 o'clock, by two fleeing darkies, who were pursued by a rabble of colored people. The two darkies parted company in Independence Square one going down Tryon and the other down Trade street. One was overtaken at the Buford House and the other near the court house, and both were escorted to the guard house with a rolling, tumbling crowd following after. They were sons of Anthony Hayes and one of them had shot at Gadsden Earle, who was standing in front of Anthony Rivers' bar, on College street. After firing the shot, the boys took to their heels and fied through the streets, hence the excitement. Gadsden was not hurt. The mayor will in-

I was then in the passage, looking up I said, what do you all mean? and I saw Tom Shields with his hand on the door knob of the deceased's room, looking into the room in a stooping position, as if looking at the body of the deceased. I waited no longer. I ran down to the field where my husband was at work and told him that Tom had killed bud. He came with me thinking that I was frightened, and we came to the back yard Tom was walking out there with his gun on his shoulder. David asked him 'what he had frightened this child so for?' Tom answered, 'you need not be taking on or frightened anything about it, I have killed him.' David asked 'who?' He answered, 'Joe.' David going up to him said, 'what did you do that for?' He then cocked the gun at him and told him to stand off or he would shoot him. He then went up to him and took hold of the gun. Tom then drew back and said 'there's your wife, defend her, act like a brother and sister.' I said, 'oh what did you do that for? He says, 'he seduced my sister, I would shoot any other man that would do such a thing.' He then says 'here is the key of the room and I forbid you to enter, then David told him to hand him the key. He then threw it at him, and told him not to enter the room until somebody came. Turning he sleeping.' This was my brother's home, and he was killed in his room. D. H. Shields being duly sworn, says: "I left my house about 7 a.m. this day, June 5th, 1883. Just as I was going out of the house I stopped at the door and asked Joe if he wanted me to take him to town to-day. He said, 'I'm not sure whether I'll go until after the mail comes.' I then started to my work. Passing through my back yard I, saw Tom coming up with his gun. I went om to work, about 200 yards from my house, and in about 10 minutes I heard the report of a gun. In a moment my wife came running to me crying and screaming. I returned with her, and met Tom in my back yard, and I said: Tom, what are you frightening this child for this way? He said: 'Yeu need not be frightened and taking on anything about it; I have killed him.' I said: 'Killed who?' His answer was: 'I killed Joe.' I stepped towards him, and he said: 'Stop there, or I will shoot you,' and be pointed his gun at me. I walked towards him and told him to put down his gun. He lowered the gun and said: 'Here's the key.' He threw the key on the ground, saying: 'There it is, but don't you enter the room until somebody comes.' I picked up the key and gave it to him, and he then turned and walked off, carrying his gun and the key with him, going in the direction of my father's store and his

In a little while after I saw Tom Shields walking through the back yard; meeting David Shields and his wife, I saw Tom point his gun at David Shields, I with his gun to the store, called me to him, and while talking to me loaded one barrel of his gun. He then asked me to go around the store, and called his father to come also; he said to us: 'I have killed Joe Sitton; he has seduced my sister.' He then told me he wanted me to go to town with him to give himself up. We then went to his house and he left the gun, after which we started to Charlotte. He, Tom Shields, said that he was informed by his sister this morning at the breakfast table, that Joe Sitton had accomplished his ends and young ladies, will come the address by Rev. Prof. J. F. the morning of June 5th, 1888, at the house of David Shields, I held a consister of Tom Shields. I asked her whether the charge that her brother Tom made against her and Joe Sitton was true. She answered that it was not true. I said to her that I was glad to know that it was not true, that I might be able to defend her honor. I then

The First Train From Louisville. The first train through from Louisville to Charleston over the newly opened French Broad route, via Asheville, arrived in Salisbury Tuesday. The engine pulling the train was gaily decked with flowers and streamers, the latter bearing such inscriptions as "Louisville to Charleston," and "Kentucky, East Tennessee and the Carolinas." The engine was fairly covered with flowers and presented a festive appearance. This new route, of which we spoke several weeks ago, is now virtually opened to the freight and passenger traffic of the country, and by the very nature of things, is bound to prove a successful and popular route. Through sleepers will be put on from Charleston to Louisville, and the schedule time will be as fast as any road in the country. Success and good luck to the French Broad route.

Postmaster Southern Theatricals. A letter from Mr. D. R. Allen, mana-F. Warde, announces that arrangements are being completed for brief engagements next season in the principal cities of the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and the West, commencing in the latter part of September. Mr. Warde is one of the few delineators of Irish comedy who has been able to confine himself entirely to the metropolitan cities, and for the coming season has made a new departure in the way of a new play, in theatre goers. Mr Wards will sustain three parts in his new drama, and being a vocalist of wonderful merit, will delight his audience with songs and absurdities in the humorous vein in which he is entirely original. Appropriate scenery and surroundings are now being decided upon, and a season of comedy is promised that will surpass anything of the kind on the road. Mr Allen was formerly manager of what was known as the "Southern Circuit" before the war, and it is his intention to wake up the amusement people of Charlotte, Savannah, Atlanta, Montgomery, Charleston and the large cities in general as in the days of old. He is well-known throughout the South, and will, no doubt, be liberally sustained in his efforts to build up Southern theatri-
