A movement has been put on foot in New York to raise a popular subscription to erect a monument to the memory of Peter Cooper. One of the finest monuments ever raised Peter Cooper erected himself when he established Cooper Institute. This, however, should not prevent a public testimonial of the esteem in which the dead philanthropist was held by his fellow citizens.

Dismissed from the Navy .-- An Opinion on the Exporting of Bonded Whiskey. --- A U. S. Marshal Resigns .--- The Lottery Question.

Washington, July 5th.—The court marshal which tried commander Mul-ian for losing the U Sateamer Ashuelot in Chinese waters, has sentenced him to dismissal from the service. The finding and sentence of the court have reached the navy department but have not yet been acted upon finally. The charges preferred against him were drunkenness on duty, neglect of duty and unnecessary hazarding of the safe-ty of the vessel. The order of dismissal has already been promulgated by Rear Admiral Crosby, commanding the Asi-atic station, and commander Mullan has been detached and ordered home. This action is irregular and therefore does not affect the case, and he will not be dis nissed until the sentence is approved by the President.

The Attorney General has given an opinion to the Secretary of the Treasury that the exportation of bonded whiskey to Bermuda, with a view to re-importation, for the purpose of evading or de-laying the payment of the tax, is not an exportation within the meaning of the law. The Attorney General holds, however, that the tax due upon spirits at the time of exportation is collecta-Absalom Blythe, U S Marshal for South Carolina, has tendered his resig-

The confidence heretofore expressed in the ability and good faith of the lessees has been fully realized. The authority given to the directors at the annual meeting on July 7th, 1881, to issue four hundred bonds per centum interest, payable semi-anman's yard lest night. The two brothers stabbed Walker from behind. One stab made with a narrow bladed knife, encavity. The other cut, made with a butcher knife was given under Walker's left shoulder blade and the gash, though not very deep, was so wide that a hand could be thrust into it. Walker lost fully a gallon of blood from the latter wound. The former cut bled internally and is the most dangerous. Dr Wilderwho attended Walker, says that the cuts are very serious. The two brothers escaped to the country, but were captured by the colored constable Caldwell and a posse of ten colored men, and brought to the city yesterday and arraigned before Justice McNinch, who committed them to fail for trial to-day. Dr. A. C. Post, the New York surgeon who performed the operation on Mr. J. M. Roark's leg last Monday, yes terday performed another and equally fine operation on the leg of Alfred Pratt, the colored man who has for so long a time past been a familiar figure about the Central Hotel bar. He had one straight leg and the other was bent in such a manner as to present the figure 4 when one got a side view of him. Dr. Post noticed Alfred going about with the crooked leg and offered to straighten it for him free of charge if he would submit to the operation. Mr. Henry Eccles also offered to take care of Alfred and see that he had plenty to eat during his confinement, and the darkey at length reluctantly consented to undergo the ordeal. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Post put him under the influence of ether, and aided by several of our resident physicians, cut and straightened the leg. Albert has been doing well since the operation and will soon be out with a straight leg. His leg was cut with a mowing scythe when he was a child and it has been crooked ever since. Albert is an honest darkey, polite and obliging in his disposition, and his white friends manifest a good deal of interest in his eighbors. The most favorable month for studying the movements of the shining brotherhood that, the earth included, make up the sun's family, is as rich in incident as any month in the year. Excepting far away Neptune and Uranus, every planet in the system is visible during some portion of the month, and every planet plays a part en its brilliant record. Visitors at the seashore, among the mountains, and in quiet country homes, will find no more fascinating occupation than that of tracing the varied paths of these bright wanderers in the celestial depths, as they rise and set, come close together, and travel far apart over the celestial highway. Neither, as their eyes are turned upward to the glorious page which nature opens to their admising gaze, can they fail to gain new views of the wondrous Architect who spangles the sky with shining points and holds in heavenly harmony each grain of sparkling star-dust, each mass of nebulous haze, and each sun of the myriad host of suns that, pound together by immutable laws, make up the material universe. The moon fulls on the 19th. and is in conjunction with Saturn on the 29th, at five o'clock in the morning, The old moon was in conjunction with Venus and Mercury on the 2d, being only seventeen minutes south of Mercury, but the conjunction takes place in the afternoon, when the sunlight renders them invisible, and when they rise the next morning the moon will have sped on her eastern course several degrees. On the 9th, the moon is at her nearest point to Uranus, on the 28th to Neptune, and on the 29th to Mars. It will be an interesting study to note the rising of the morning stars in July, as they appear one after another on the horizan. Neptune, though unseen, leads the quintet. Mars at present comes next in order, rising about a quarter before two o'clock. Saturn rises at half-past two o'clock. The fair Venus puts in an appearance a few minutes after three o'clock, and winged Mercury follows after an interval of ten minutes.
