There can be no better medium of advertising than through our columns, as our paper goes daily into the hands of its many readers, thus keeping them ever reminded of our advertising merchants; and as the chief reason for persistent advertising is to have the advertisement read as often as possible, the advantage of advertising in THE DAILY ARGUS is at once evident, as our patrons will have their advertisements read through every day. Rates furnished on application.

RIFLES festival to-night.
AND still new advertisements roll in. Just look at them.

Now for another article on the cotton factory. Agitate it.

An adequate system of sewerage is what should be provided for Goldsboro at once by our "City Fathers." It is a pressing and an alarming need.

We are requested to announce that there will be a special meeting of the Royal Arcanum of this city this afternoon at 5 o'clock, at which it is important that all members be present.

It may not be generally known, but it is a fact all the same, that Lt. T. H. Bain, the popular 1st Lt. of the Goldsboro Rifles, is the oldest commissioned officer in the State Guard. Now, don't any one take up the idea that our "Lieut." is the oldest officer as to years. It is not that, for he is both young and handsome; but his commission ante dates that of any other officer in the Guard.

ALL persons desiring to visit the Graded School are requested to do so before Friday, May 30th. On account of limited accommodations, no one will be expected Friday May 30th, except the parents and relatives of the graduating class and the trustees. We hope that many of our people will manifest their interest in the school by availing themselves of the opportunity to visit it during the next week.

EVERYBODY who took in the Rifles' drill, supper and exhibition festival last night will visit the affair again to-night to enjoy themselves in a degree and in a variety of ways that is seldom afforded in Goldsboro. The public-spirited ladies have collected all their former records of aid and generosity to the Rifles, and have prepared a banquet that Lucullus of old could not have surpassed. We will have more to say of the brilliant event and the Rifles' competitive drill when all the "returns" have been canvassed.

KEEP the cotton factory question before the people. Keep the ball in motion. Agitate it by correspondence through the columns of THE ARGUS, until everybody has been fully informed as to the plans of procedure; then let us have a rousing meeting of our citizens at an early day, and, readily, easier than you would imagine, the factory can be built. A united people such as these who make up the citizenry of Goldsboro are powerful to accomplish great things for their common good. Then for once let us be united, as Mayor Peterson so forcibly and earnestly urges in his article in this issue.

WEDNESDAY night terminated the revival services which have been in vogue at St. John M. E. Church for the past month. Mrs. Rev. J. B. Carpenter, of Liberty, N. C., who has rendered such efficient assistance to the pastor, delivered the closing sermon on "Holiness, or Sanctification," and at the close 183 persons signified their intention of reaching a degree of perfection by shaking her hand. The aid of the Holy Spirit in her work has been manifest in the conversion of a large number of souls, and about twenty have already connected themselves with the church—others still are to join Sunday morning. From the number present who gave expression to their feelings at parting with Mrs. Carpenter by opening the fountain of their hearts and pouring out tears of regretfulness, it is evident that she holds a warm place in the hearts of the people of St. John Church.

THAT COTTON FACTORY.

An Admirable and Pertinent Article from Mayor Peterson Endorsing the Views of Mr. Henry Weil and Urging Early and United Action. Agitate it.

Editor Argus: We were glad to see the able article from our worthy friend Henry Weil, Esq. His suggestions are timely, his argument is good, his view of the present urgent need of increased manufacturing interest in Goldsboro strikes us as a stern reality.

In regard to what the establishment of a cotton factory would do for Goldsboro let us see on what we depend to bring trade and money here. In the first place, for long years we looked to the cotton crop exclusively to bring us nearly every dollar that was spent in Goldsboro. A series of poor crop years brought us face to face with the fact that we needed a diversity of resources to bring us up to the high position of a prosperous community.

One by one we have seen these industries spring up; we see them advance in productiveness and prosperity, and in the employment of labor, and we can see no grander sight early in the morning or in the evening's gloaming; we see the smoke rising to the clouds, or hear the whistle of the engine, or catch the sound of the machinery of the industries that border our town, or situated at the river near by.

Now, when we are all more or less depressed by the hard times, we get discouraged; we do not see as much doing as we would like. But what would Goldsboro be to-day if it were not for her lumber and planing mills, her furniture factories, her oil mill, her rice mill, her ice factory, her agricultural works, her machine shops, and everything of that sort? Do not these industries circulate many a dollar in all the avenues of trade?

Now, I've said this much to show that many men are receiving good wages in these different enterprises. But we want to make an appeal for other industries, that will employ and utilize labor that is idle in our community.

Many women and children in Goldsboro would be glad and grateful for the opportunity to make a living that would be afforded them by a cotton factory.

The thrift of a community is in producing and not in being satisfied with consuming. If we send every dollar away and do not produce anything to keep a dollar here, we will soon have all the money at the other end of the line. Now, the question arises how can we get a yarn factory, and a factory for weaving cloth—prints, etc., as well; and it is a question that is easily answered; and so, also, is a cotton factory easy of accomplishment if we but follow the correct answer of the question: It is for us all, as Mr. Weil says, to unite—become unanimous and active in securing it.

Let every man in the community feel that he is interested—and go to work to push the measure.

No citizen in Goldsboro is so poor that he cannot invest in a factory on the co-operative plan; and when once started he will gradually and, perhaps, rapidly grow more and more able, as times become better, from the impetus that such a factory will give to our city.

Let's think about it, for it is said these mills are everywhere paying a handsome dividend. Then, too, the day is not far distant when the manufacture of cotton goods will, in a larger measure, be done in the Southern States, in the erection of a cotton factory we would give new life to our healthful city; we would employ our idle labor; we would make them more happy; we would help every man and every man's interest in town.

We must not wait until all other towns are ahead of us on this line. In the words of THE ARGUS, "agitate it." Very truly,
J. E. PETERSON.

215 Greenwood Seven Springs, SEVEN SPRINGS, May 21, 1890.

Editor Argus: As the heated season is upon us many are enquiring as to where they can spend a few days or weeks comfortably and pleasantly from the cares and toils of business; and to all such I would respectfully call their attention to Seven Springs, in Wayne county. The village is located in an intelligent, refined and moral community as there is in the State. The hotel is situated about two hundred yards from the river on a beautiful hill, which reminds the visitor of Western North Carolina, while the springs are in a beautiful grove only a few yards from the river.

The present owners are making extensive repairs and improvements to the buildings and grounds, and are refurnishing the house out and out. It not only offers great attraction to the pleasure-seeker and also to the invalid seeking health, as the water of the springs possesses great virtue in the cure of liver, kidney and kindred diseases. Numbers of certificates could be produced from intelligent persons who have been greatly benefited by the use of the waters of these springs.

Someone may ask what as to the management of the hotel during this season, and in reply to that I would state that Mr. W. R. Simmons, who will have charge, is an intelligent, polite and accommodating gentleman, and knows exactly how to make his guests comfortable and to keep a first-class house, and in my humble opinion, his good lady knows as well how to keep everything in first-class order and set a first class table as anybody in the State.

So to all who are seeking a resort for either health or pleasure, I would advise to try Seven Springs.

North Carolina Young Ladies in the City—Speculation as to the Organization of the Next House.

WASHINGTON, May 21.—The commencement at Mrs. Somers' school in this city comes off soon. Three North Carolina girls take a prominent part. Miss Annie DeKosset, of Wilmington, who has one of the sweetest voices I ever heard, does most of the solo singing. Miss Lala Carr, of Durham, one of the finest pianists at the school, takes part in the instrumental performance, and Miss Kate Stedman, the accomplished daughter of Lieutenant Governor Stedman, reads an original essay. I know in advance that this charming trio will acquire themselves with great credit to the Old North State.

There is much speculation here about the organization of the next House. It is conceded now that the House will be Democratic. Even Republicans are admitting that, and Judge Crisp, of Georgia, is, so far, in the lead for the Speakership. Wm. L. Wilson is urged for the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee. Those who know this gentleman in North Carolina will admit that the party would have in him a safe and able leader on the floor of the House.

Speaker Reed passed the censure of the House upon Representative William D. Bynum, of Indiana, and Mr. Bynum, standing before the bar of the House, was supported by the 104 Democrats who had voted against the resolution of censure. The 126 Republicans who passed the unjust and uncalled for censure sat impatiently in their seats to regard a scene that will make Bynum a hero in history when the names of his jurymen are forgotten. The sentence was framed to fit an alleged offense committed Saturday afternoon. It was really a penalty imposed for resentment expressed months ago of the Speaker's tyranny and usurpation of power. Speaker Reed may consider himself "even" with Mr. Bynum, the Representative from Harrison's district. Ever since Mr. Bynum, in language that was full of contempt for the man whom he regarded as a tyrant and a despot, and whom he characterized as a usurper, the Republicans have hated him and the Speaker has not concealed his resentment.
