MY WISH.
ICHABOD GRIME.
If words of mine ere touch the chords
That clasp a tender heart,
And cause the tears of purer love
From kindly eyes to start;
If they will ever comfort give
To those who bow in grief,
And leave with the troubled mind
A calm and sweet relief;
If they will ever picture man
In all his worth and power,
And paint the beauty, joy and hope
Beyond the darkest hour;
If they will ever point the way
To bar the chastening rod,
And lead a wandering soul to see
The path our Saviour trod;
I'll know that life is not in vain—
No power of fame can be,
No wealth, with all its pomp and pride,
As sweet and dear to me,
No greater, sweeter joy I ask,
I wish alone for this:
No other power can give to me
Such peace and perfect bliss!

FRESH FUN.

The Sharp and Witty Sayings of the Press Men.

"While in Jefferson, Texas, a few days ago I heard an anecdote about Tom Ochiltree," remarked F. M. Johnson at the Sherman House last evening. "I was when Tom, having been admitted to the bar, was taken into partnership by his father. The first thing he did after being informally installed was to request his father to get a sign. Ochiltree, Sr., ordered one and in due course of time it came and was nailed on the door. It bore the legend: "Ochiltree & Son."
"When Tom came into the office that day his father asked him how he liked the sign. Tom said he didn't like it at all. Whereupon the old man told him to order another to suit himself. Tom did so and when the old man returned from a trip a few days later he was, to use a mild phrase, somewhat astonished to see hung over the door a new, glaringly lettered sign informing the public that within was the office of: "Thomas Ochiltree & Father."—Chicago Evening Post.

A lady living in a fashionable neighborhood in the northern part of the city secured a new cook the other day, but the girl had not been in the house an hour when she asked for an interview and said:
"Madam, I think it best for me to withdraw and let you fill my place."
"Why? Why, is anything wrong?"
"Yes; your husband."
"But what of him?"
"It would be very embarrassing for me to continue to meet him."
"Explain yourself!"
"We were once engaged to be married. I found that he was unworthy of me, and so I gave him the skip."
"You—you did! Now you get your bundle and go!" exclaimed the indignant lady.
"I simply withdraw, madam—withdraw for the sake of peace and harmony. I hope your husband is a better man than when I gave him the walk. Au revoir!"—Detroit Free Press.

It was just at dusk that he suddenly stepped out from the shelter of a Michigan avenue doorway to the side of a passing female and said:
"Ah—excuse me—but your name is Miss Nellie, I believe?"
"Yes, sir."
"Ah—we have—we have met before?"
"We have, sir. You persisted in following me one evening last fall and I had you arrested. Do you want some more of it?"
"Beg pardon a thousand pardons! You cannot be the person I was looking for."
"Oh, yes, I am!" she called after him, but he hurried away.—Detroit Free Press.

She was talking confidentially to her bosom friend.
"Now that we are married," she said, "John has stopped drinking entirely. I have not detected the odor of liquor about him since our wedding day."
"Was it difficult for him to stop?" inquired the bosom friend.
"Oh, no; not at all. He just eats clothes. He says that is a certain cure."
—Life.

Some one says that "the happiest-looking man is the one who is not burdened with wealth. He evidently did not form his opinion from seeing a friend returning from the races.—Yonkers Statesman.

"Do you never do any work around here?" asked a political friend of a Gas Office clerk.
"Not worth speaking of. The gas meter does all the working needed for us, you know."

"I understand that Cutely, whom they wanted to arrest for embezzlement, has skipped to Europe."
"Yes, he has gone beyond the sea!"
—Lawrence American.

Lying is wicked, but, thank goodness, it is not unfashionable.—Providence Telegram.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best now a remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes.
