THE TWO ANGELS.

JOHN G. WHITTIER.

God called the nearest angels who dwell with him above:
The tenderest one was Pity, the dearest one was Love.

"Arise," He said, "my angels! a will of woe and sin Steals through the gates of Heaven, and sad-dents all within.

"My harp take up the mournful strain that
From a lost world swells;
The smoke of torment clouds the light and blights the asphodels.

"Fly downward to that underworld, and on its souls of pain
Let Love drop smiles of sunshine, and Pity tears like rain."

Two faces bowed before the throne, veiled in their golden hair;
Four white wings hastened swiftly down the dark abyss of air.

The way was strange, the flight was long; at last the angels came Where swung the lost and nether world, red-wrapped in rayless flame.

There Pity, shuddering, wept, but Love, with faith too strong for fear, Took heart from God's almightiness and smiled a smile of cheer.

And lo! that tear of Pity quenched the flame whereon it fell.
And, with the sunshine of that smile, hope entered into hell!

Two unveiled faces full of joy looked upward
to the throne;
Four white wings folded at the feet of Him who sat thereon!

And deeper than the sound of seas, more soft than falling flakes,
Amidst the hush of wing and song the Voice Eternal spake.

"Welcome, my angels! ye have brought a holier joy to heaven;
Henceforth its sweetest song shall be the song of sin forgiven!"

FRESH FUN.

The Sharp and Witty Sayings of the Press Men.

"Do you believe in athletics?" was asked of a well-known business man who was found practicing with the dumbbells at the back of the store the other day.

"Certainly I do," he promptly replied.
"Think it helps your health!"
"I know it does, and it has saved my bacon once or twice."

"Please relate."

"Well, a couple of years ago I took twenty-four lessons in boxing and worked up a big muscle and lots of sand. I was going home one night soon after graduating, when a man jumped out at me from the alley. In a minute he was nowhere."

"Hit him hard, eh?"
"No, I didn't hit him at all."
"Trip him up and fall on him!"
"No."

"Didn't kick him?"
"No."

"Well, what did you do?"
"Outrun him! But for my athletic exercises I couldn't have done it."—Detroit Free Press.

Astonished clergyman (officiating at christening)—"Please repeat the name of this infant again, and say it slow."

Parent—"Mary-Barbara-Elizabeth-Parley-Akenside-Johanna-Berdunn-William-Finley-Young-Thompson-Pickle."

Clergyman (writing it down at parent's dictation)—"May I ask why you give the child such a remarkable name?"

Parent—"It's all we ever expect to be able to give her, sir."—Chicago Tribune.

Religion am a mighty pow'ful thing, Eph'm," said old Uncle Rastus.

"How's dat?" said Ephraim.

"W'y," said Uncle Rastus, with a look of deep thankfulness toward the ceiling, "Ias' n'ight me'n Elder Jonsing wuz a playin' penny ante 'poker'; I seen bim makin' a serspicious move wid de kyards an' some good angel tole me to pull my razer, an' w'en he seen dat razer he got religion right away, an'
made up his min' dat honesty wuz de bes' polley after all."—New York Herald.

Deacon Jones—"You have met with a sad bereavement since I saw you last." Widow Brown—"Yes; he was the cunningest thing you ever saw. You should have heard the little darling bark when he sat up for a bone. He was—Oh, you referred to my husband!
Yes, John died two weeks ago. I thought you meant Fido. You can't begin to know, deacon, how I miss him."—Boston Transcript.

"I've discovered," said Willie Washington, "that my name is not in the census weecohds." "Indeed," said Miss Relle Pepperton.

"Ya-a-a. I don't see why it was left out."

"Perhaps they didn't want to put the population of Washington down at 229,700," replied that young woman.—
Washington Post.

Father—"Did that game of checkers you played with Mr. Slowtop last night amount to anything?" Daughter (blushing)—"Yes, dear father; it resulted in a tie."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

"I'm going off on my own hook," said Trouty to his mamma. But he found out too late that the hook belonged to the man at the other end of the line.—Harper's Bazar.

CATARH CAN'T BE CURED

with LOCAL APPLICATION, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces.
Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics now, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

Advice to Mothers.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth.
It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best and sure remedy for diarrhoea, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.
