NEWS AND COMMENT.

Numerous Events and Happenings Clipped From Various Sources.

There are some great movements in the railroad world on foot just now. As yet there are more rumors than facts, but big deals are usually slow in coming to a head. Jay Gould's enemies have this, at least, to admire about his big operations-he generally accomplishes what he undertakes .- Baltimore Ameri-

Governor Hill, of New York, is a dabster at smoothing out political tangles, and the announcement of his determination to accept the United States Senatorship for himself has come just in time to quiet party dissension and close the mouths of political gossips in the Empire State.—Philadelphia

The expenditures for pensions for the year ending June 30, as now officially stated, amounted to $109,857,534. In the previous year we paid $87,644,779 .-11, while in the year before that we paid $80,288,508 77. The cost of the German army, it may be interesting to note, is for this year estimated at $91,726,298. Besides our pensions our army costs $30,000,000.

No one who has watched the course of Mr. Gladstone in behalf of Home Rule for Ireland and appreciates his honest fervor, will be surprised to learn that the weakness of any fellow champion of the cause will not give him a moment's pause. His example should be followed by all who have faith in the Irish strug gle for self-government. No stain on a leader's reputation can effect the virtue of the cause .- New York World.

We are not sure that Mr. Blaine can entirely enjoy the attitude of the press entirely enjoy the attitude of the press ROYSTER'S - CONFECTIONS of his party towards him. The editors seem pretty well agreed that he can save the party if anyone can, but, half unconsciously, that little "if" is made the biggest word of all. But we heartily hope that he may see his way clear to try it. He, at any rate, is nearer to the right track than any other popular Republican, and if he finds it and sticks three or five pourd FANCY BOX. . to it the party will be the better for fol-lowing, him and the country the better for their so doing .- New York Times.

One of the most absurd yarns that has been going the rounds lately is that which tried to make out that the clergy man author the Rev. Edward Everett Hale of Boston and the novelist Walter Besant are one and the same individual, or, in other words, that Walter Besant is merely a nom de plume of Mr. Hale. Preposterous as it may appear, the story was seriously exploited by a Boston newspaper, and from the talk that it occasioned, seems to have been seriously received by many people. The public is always so ready for a new sensation own almost that is offered to it with a pretense of truthfulness.

Stanley told a friend the other day a story which illustrates the African's quickness of retort. "I was talking with one of the Ugangas," said Stanley, "while a monkey the native had tamed was jumping from limb to limb of a tree near by. In a spirit of tun I said. 'You are not so very much unlike mon-keys. You Ugangas speak to each other after a fashion, and the monkeys made signs to each other. They understand each other and that's all you can do when you talk. Neither you nor the monkeys know anything that is going on outside of these great forests. The Uganga man thought for a moment, and then ran up to the monkey that had perched on a low limb near us. Bending over the monkey, the man blew on the monkey's back, separating the fur as a furrier does in exhibiting a skin to a purchaser. Then he turned to me and pointed with a triumphant gesture to the monkey, saying, 'Monkey skin white. Uganga man's black,'"

It is amazing to those who have tried it to see what can be accomplished by it to see what can be accomplished by laying aside even a small portion of time daily for a set purpose. Seize a fraction of your time, and lay it aside for a special object. If you take it as soon as possible after breakfast, you will be surest to get it. Do not curtail your sleep for any purpose. The duty of sleep is just as binding as any other duty. Women will never amount to anything in any lepartment until they learn that the care of their health is a sacred duty. Do you of their health is a sacred duty. Do you find your mental furnishings growing rusty and dim? By reading a good book fifteen minutes each day, you can effectually renew your mental vigor. You cannot master an art by working fifteen minutes a day upon it; but the fruit of years of study in literature, music, of painting can be conserved through busy months by the devotion of even a few minutes daily, if you can get no more time, to hard practice. Then the health can be greatly benefited by even a short stroll in the open air when it is impossible to take longer ones. It is like the proverbial saving of the pennies and gathering up the fragments. The results are simply astonishing.—Domestic Monthly. of their health is a sacred duty. Do you
