WOODS' RAMBLER

What He Sees and Hears While Roaming the Streets.

The first bale of a season's great crop is always eagerly anticipated. Moved at the head of ten million other bales, it occupies an enviable position. It is at the head of a procession that keeps exchange in our favor, and gold from going out. It is the first of the country's chief cash crop. There may be other commercial and agricultural kings, but there is none that so readily commands cash in all countries as King Cotton, and the first bale is the beginning of the world's contribution to the king.

The first bale came this year from San Patricio county, in southwestern Texas, and not far from San Antonio. This county furnished the first bale last year, but the bale of this year is two days' earlier in the season than the bale of last year was. Four planters combined their pickings in order to make this bale, which weighed 564 pounds.

The bringing in of a bale on July 11 shows that the sun in Texas is able to confound all the prophets for they had repeatedly said that the first bale would not be received this year before July 25. The sun in Texas is no respecter of prophets, and there are prophets out of Texas who will share the fate of those in that State. The truth is, no one knows what the opening and growing crop will be in the aggregate.

There may be some who understand the Chinese trouble or the Presidential election; but there is no one who can "size up" the cotton crop.

The destruction of the Chinese Empire is at hand. It must be conquered and in future governed under the sovereignty of the Powers. How the form of government will be brought about is a question of diplomacy. It will come later.

The brutality of Baron von Kettler was bad enough, but the horror of the punishment inflicted upon the Russian Minister has already shocked the civilized world. He was not only beaten and torn, but was then put in a great kettle of boiling water and literally cooked alive. The government at Peking must have been a party to this brutality. The government will turn loose upon China every armed man it has in the Far East.

Japan, England, Germany, France and the United States will join. To Pekin the combined forces will march and overturn the capital of this heathen nation of 400,000,000 people. That done, no longer can the foreign Powers trust to the Chinese to govern their own country. A sovereignty or a protectorate joined in by all the great nations must be established and China thrown open to the world. To international disputes this may lead, but it has become necessary, and the nations combined must proceed as one nation.
