POPULATION OF INDIA.

Famine and Plague have brought the population of India almost to a standstill, the increase in ten years having been but 2.32 per cent. The census just made shows that the population of the country is 294,266,000 or about as much as all the Americas and Africa combined contain. The population of India's brown men nearly equals the entire number of white men in masterful Europe.

The density of population in India is shown in the State of Bengal. It has an area one-quarter less than that of Texas, and yet it contains 74,713,000 people, or just about as many as there are in the forty-five States of this country. King Edward has indeed numerous subjects in India.

The increase of the decade was in round numbers 7,000,000, and all of that occurred in British States, the native States, so-called, showing as a whole a loss. The losses and gains vary, however. Kashmir, a native State, shows a gain of nearly fifteen per cent.

The truth is, the population of all India is stationary. The recent census is superior to previous ones, and the census officials agree in saying that the population is now increasing. The famines have lessened the birth rate, and the plague has swept away vast numbers. Lord Curzon has begun, it is reported, an investigation in some of the States that show a stationary or decreasing population. The vast population is well governed, but even good government cannot overcome the failure of crops or the ravages of disease in an over-crowded country. When a single province contains as many people as the United States holds, it must be conceded that it is too populous, and that further increase would but lead to new and greater troubles.

A Raging, Roaring Flood

Washed down a telegraph line which Chas. C. Ellis, of Lebanon, Ia., had to repair. "Standing waist deep in icy water," he writes, "gave me a terrible cold and cough. It grew worse daily. Finally, the best doctors in Oakland, Neb., Sioux City and Omaha said I had Consumption and could not live. Then I began using Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by six bottles." Positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and all Throat and Lung troubles by J. H. Hill & Son. Price 50c.

Mother's Friend

Does away with the suffering of childbirth. It is a penetrating liniment to be used externally. It causes the muscles to expand and gives them elasticity and strength for the coming ordeal. Mothers who have used it consider it as necessary as the food they eat. It is utterly impossible for it to do harm, as in the case of medicines taken internally, and the good it has done for other mothers, it will do for you.

A price may seem to be very low and still be an outrageous overcharge if the expected quality is absent. It's the relation that price bears to Quality that determines whether the price is a high or low one. Price and quality together produce VALUE. Shrewd buyers want GOOD VALUES, not simply low prices. Long years of experience enable us to combine all the above features in the JONES BUGGY.
