AN AMERICAN HENLEY.

Splendid Aquatic Course Planned
For New York.

WILL BE CLOSE TO COLLEGES.

Dr. Nagle Proposes a Sheltered Course a Mile and a Half Long on the Hudson River at Riverside Park—A Big Breakwater Will Be Erected.

An elaborate plan for an American Henley along Riverside drive in New York, says the New York World, has been prepared by Dr. John T. Nagle of the health department. Dr. Nagle is a life member of the New York Athletic Club and has for many years taken an active interest in aquatic sports.

Dr. Nagle is now on his vacation at Oceanic, N. J., and when he returns to town will submit his plan to the board of public improvements.

For years New York oarsmen have deplored the fact that there is no first class course among the numerous waterways about the city for rowing races. The Harlem river is objectionable for many reasons. Scores of sewers empty into it and the trailing of men is interfered with because of the noxious odors they are forced to breathe. The crowded condition of the river also hampers the practice of oarsmen.

Dr. Nagle holds that a city of New York's eminence should be second to none in the matter of providing a proper rowing course and one that would attract oarsmen from all parts of the country during the racing season. His plan calls for the erection of a breakwater 400 feet from the shore and running from Ninety-ninth street to One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street along Riverside park. The One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street terminal of the breakwater, he proposes, shall be connected with the pier now there, and he suggests that another recreation pier be erected at the foot of Ninety-ninth street to connect with the southerly end of the breakwater, thus giving a sheltered straightaway water course a mile and a half long and 400 feet wide. The breakwater, he proposes, shall be 80 feet wide, surmounted with a board walk over its entire length for the use of the public.

He also proposes the erection of a fine promenade on the shore running parallel with the water course. The promenade is to be connected with Riverside drive by bridges over the tracks of the New York Central railroad. The promenade is to be 50 feet wide, and aside from its value as a vantage point for spectators while races are being held he declares it will be a delightful and healthful recreation spot for the public at all times.

Dr. Nagle has given considerable time to working out the scheme, and his estimate of the total cost is $1,000,000. Louis A. Risse, chief topographical engineer of New York city, has collaborated with Dr. Nagle in working out the plan and has prepared a map of the waterway and the breakwater and shore promenades. All of the oarsmen with whom Dr. Nagle has consulted in reference to his scheme are strongly in favor of it, and all of the local rowing clubs will probably join in a movement to push the matter when it comes up before the board of public improvements.

The water course would be close to Columbia and Barnard colleges and convenient to other large educational institutions in the northern end of Manhattan Island. If the course were constructed it is believed that the Barnard students would imitate the girls at Vassar, Wellesley and other women's colleges and take an active interest in rowing matters. While the course is designed primarily for oarsmen, Dr. Nagle's plan is to have it used for all kinds of aquatic sports, tub races, water polo, etc.

All of the clubs now on the Harlem river would move their boat-houses to the new course, it is believed, and the rent they would pay to the city would help to pay the expense of maintaining the amusement place. Speaking of his plan, Dr. Nagle said: "England has its Henley and Victoria embankment, which give pleasure and amusement to hundreds of thousands every year. In France powerful influences are at work for the creation of a French Henley, and I do not see why we should not take advantage of the splendid Hudson river and the handsome Riverside drive for the construction of a Henley of our own, where tens of thousands of New Yorkers could witness the sports."

Dr. Nagle has been prominent in many movements for the beautifying of the city and the creation of schemes to advance the public health. He was active in the work of establishing small parks in the densely crowded portions of the city and from the first advocated the erection of recreation piers. Many years ago he wrote a pamphlet proposing the establishing of a public park at Coney Island.

An Autumn Song.

Again the old heraldic pomp
Of autumn on the hills;
A scarlet pageant in the swamp,
Low lyrics from the reeds,
And a rich savor in the air
That o'er-dreams the daisies.

Again the tapestry of haze
Of amethystine dye
Embracing the horizon ways,
And from the middle sky
The iterant, reverberant call
Of wild geese winging by.

Again the stole of the wind
Attuned to one soft theme,
Here, every burden left behind,
O love, would it not seem
A near approach to paradise
To dream and dream and dream!
—Clinton Scollard in September Woman's Home Companion.
