ITEMS OF INTEREST IN AND AROUND THE CITY.

Picked Up By the Ubiquitous Reporter and Chronicler For the Information of Argus Readers.

First day of August.
Fodder-pulling time is near at hand.

Miss Addie Eure, of Norfolk, is in the city, visiting Misses Mammie and Mattie Bizzell.

Mr. H. B. Parker, Jr., has returned to the city from a visit to his home at Como.

Miss Mary Cooper, of Kenansville, is in the city, visiting the family of Mr. L. D. Giddens.

Elder J. W. Gardner will fill the pulpit of the Primitive Baptist church to-morrow morning.

Mr. Harry Wrenn, of Washington City, is in the city, on a visit to his old home and relatives.

The Board of County Commissioners meet in regular monthly session in this city next Monday.

The days are growing very perceptibly shorter. The year is waning. Thus runs the world away.

Mr. Lotte W. Humphrey, of Charlotte, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, on a visit to his home here.

Rev. J. B. Jackson will fill his regular appointment to-morrow morning and evening, in the Second Baptist church.

The family of Prof. Thos. R. Foust, who have been spending some weeks in the western part of the State, returned to the city to-day.

Mr. Jno. R. Morris was in the city to-day, and went down to his beautiful summer home, "Neptune Court," at Beaufort, this afternoon.

The Society of Christian Endeavor will hold a consecration meeting in the Presbyterian church to-morrow at 12:15 o'clock directly after the regular services.

Mr. W. E. Jenkins, one of the number of clever travelling men who make Goldsboro their home, arrived in the city yesterday to spend some time with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Markley and children, who have been occupying Prof. Foust's home on Park Avenue for some weeks, left this afternoon to spend a while at the Atlantic Hotel, Morehead City.

Mr. Tom Denson, of Raleigh, was among the crowd who came in on the Southern train this morning intending to go on to Morehead City, but who had to wait over here until this afternoon.

Mrs. Hattie S. Gay, typewriter and stenographer in the law office of Mr. F. A. Daniels, who has been spending a three weeks' vacation visiting relatives in Portsmouth, Va., returned home to-day.

Misses Georgia Parrall, Clara DeVane and Ethel Johnson, of Red Springs, on their way to visit Miss Phoebe Shaw, at Kinston, were in the city last night and this morning the guests of Mrs. Col. T. H. Bain.

Dr. M. E. Robinson has been confined to his bed for a week. His hosts of friends are distressed that his ailment, which they at first thought would be of brief duration is so stubborn in resisting treatment. We all hope that he may soon be out again.

Mr. A. A. Joseph, Exalted Ruler of the Goldsboro Lodge of Elks, who, after taking in the great convention of Elks in Baltimore went north to make reasonable purchases of goods for his popular gents furnishing store in this city, returned home this morning.

The Goldsboro tobacco warehouses will open on Monday for the season. The outlook is not favorable for high prices anywhere; but one thing is always a certainty—Goldsboro will pay as high as any market in the State. The farmers have already realized this fact, and consequently Goldsboro is going to get her full quota of tobacco, for miles in all directions, this year.

At a regular meeting of the directors of the Bank of Wayne, held in the office of the president of that institution this morning, a semi-annual dividend of 5 per cent on its capital stock of $125,000 was declared, and an equal sum passed to its already large undivided profits. This speaks volumes for the financial condition and substantial prosperity of Goldsboro, and sustains the already accepted fact—which has become as second nature with our people—that the Bank of Wayne is always in the forefront of legitimate progress.

At their hospitable home, 312 North John street, last night, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Ginn gave an elegant reception in honor of their daughter Miss Daisy's marriage to Mr. T. B. Jenkins, the bride and groom having returned yesterday afternoon from their bridal trip to Washington and Baltimore. The home was beautifully decorated and brilliantly lighted, and Mr. and Mrs. Ginn were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Draper, while Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Faulkner presided in the dining room. The happy occasion was largely attended and the wedding supper was sumptuous and altogether delightful. The bridal pair were the recipients of hearty congratulations and good wishes during the evening, and many beautiful bridal presents were displayed in the reception parlor.

TANGIBLE AND INTANGIBLE.

Some Possessions In Life That Are Worth the Holding.

"Your own is yours, and I am yours, and all."

He is worse than a heathen or a pagan who does not stand steadfastly by his own and with his own and for his own.

To many of us, women and men, it is not given that we, each of us, possess the inestimable treasure of one mated to us in promise or by the law of God in the sight of the world, but there are some things tangible and intangible that we may rightfully and properly claim as our own, and in the faith of which we may live worthily and unafraid.

To many of us is not given love in the higher sense, that enticement, alluring, and absorbing love that subsists only between men and women toward the righteous fulfillment of the divine law set up for mankind's regeneration, the wonderful plan of physical and moral salvation that makes for the spiritual exaltation; the condition that promises the brightest sunshine in the heart and the sweetest song in the soul, the noblest purpose and the highest endeavor, the most orderliness of life and the most cleanliness of spirit; the thing which women have striven for with the rosy suffusion of modesty and the noble misgiving of virtue, and which men have died to win with the reckless dash of a boy!

But to such of us as are without the sheltered haven of the splendid passion's fruition, whose cares have not cast anchor in the harbor of a dream that began in the paradisaical place of love's trying-when hearts were strong and true, there is yet given something that is our own and is for ourselves whilst the days come in sunbright glow and the nights wane in the blackness that must pass with the darkest hour.

Even the poorest of us in the treasures of the spirit have glorious riches, and the things of our possession are priceless beyond the purchase of gold or glory, ambition or ceaseless striving.

It may be a friend, high or humble, a friend of the loyal, steadfast, faithful, unasking and uncompensating; one who sees not our shortcomings and is resolutely blind to our frailties, who remains unacquainted with our weaknesses and marks not our faltering, but who gives us the right hand of unquestioning fellowship and defies the world to prove ought against us. But that solitary possession is glorious in any life.

It may be a woman, conscious of her own purity of spirit and proud in the courage of her sinlessness, believing and trusting and praying the prayer the angels of heaven love to hear from the hearts of angels upon the earth, and standing in our defense and our praise as supremely faithful as the little child Sada! Agnes clung to the cross in the long-ago ages of the faith. But that is glory enough for any mortal life.

It may be a man, strong and brave and true, and deaf to every plaint of slander and every accusation of wickedness; one armored in the triple strength of faith and as unrepenting in censure as the unreplying dead; one who answers wrongful charges with the lie that fidelity stands for, ever ready to send back the charge of slander to the loathsome den of human vituperation; one who flings his glove of sincerity full and fair in the face of besotted detraction and dares it to accept the challenge, dares and defies; one who proclaims the real character of the lying, that is never at rest as this poor earth's pale history runs, to be a trouble of gaddies in the gleam of the human sun. The gift of such a man's friendship were worth a life to live!

We may not bring back the touch of a vanished hand, may not hear again the sound of a voice that is still, save only in the heavenly privilege of memory.

And the stately ship go on To the haven under the hill; But O for the loach of a vanished hand And the sound of a voice that is still! Break, break, break. At the foot of thy cross, O Sea! But the tender grace of a day that is dead Will never come back to me."

Not so in the splendid sweep of memory. Memory touches hands with hope and they girdle all the world of our vision with songs of the soul that fill all the measures and spaces of our imaginings. Our faith clasps the hand that is vanished, our hope, dear offspring of our memory, bears the melody of the voice that is still!

The tender grace of days that are dead comes back to us in superlative sweetness, and it furnishes forth the beacon that leads us on to the haven under the hill. Our prayer that the kindly light shall lead us on is answered every day.

All the universe of our aspiration rings with that proud cry of faith and humility, and God gives it the spirit that our own is our own, be it love in the superlative human sense, answered or unanswered by the low, sweet cry of responding affection or be it other blessing.

Our cry may echo back from the cold mountain of circumstance our cry, but that cry and its reverberation are our own, and against it the gates of glory melt away.

"Lead, kindly Light, lead Thou me on!"

That is the plea of every one of us, and if we plead in the spirit of truth, there cannot be any doubt as to the answer!

Rheumicide

Continues to make Miraculous Cures

READ THIS LETTER:
ALMOST A MIRACLE.

DILLON, S. C., Aug. 18th, 1902.

Gentlemen:—In September, 1900, I took rheumatism in a very bad form. In a month after the disease started I had to give up my work and go to bed. It continued to grow worse until my arms and hands were badly drawn, so much so that I could not use them. My legs were drawn back until my feet touched my hips. I was as helpless as a baby for nearly twelve months. The muscles of my arms and legs were hard and shrivelled up. I suffered death many times over. Was treated by six different physicians in Meigs, Dillon and Marion, but none of them could do me any good, until Dr. J. P. Ewing, of Dillon, came to see me. He told me to try your "Rheumicide." He put me one bottle of the medicine and I began to take it and before the first bottle was used up I began to get better. I used five and a half bottles and was completely cured. That was two years ago, and my health has been excellent ever since. Have had no symptoms of rheumatism. I regard "Rheumicide" as by far the best remedy for rheumatism on the market. I cannot say too much for it. I have recommended it to others since and it has cured them.

"Rheumicide" with the aid of crutches, in about three months after I began to take it, I could walk as good as anybody, and went back to work again.

Very truly,
JAMES WILKES.
