EASTER SUNDAY: WHAT IT MEANS AND IS.

Tomorrow morning when the church bells call to worship their tones upon the ear of the faithful who have come meekly and unquestioningly up through the forty days of Lenten preparation will have an especial note of joy, for they will tell of the risen Saviour, who is Christ the Lord, Him who was crucified and lifted up that He might draw all men unto His outstretched arms upon the cross, that whosoever believeth on Him shall have life eternal.

Oh, the Easter bells! Oh, the church bells! How merry and religion meet and mingle in their tones and wander back to revel in the innocence of long ago—when we were children—when the world was young. Yet the story of the bells—the church bells—is the same today, tomorrow, forever, as of old, for it is forever the same as God is forever the same. It is man alone who changes.

When the solemn stillness of the Sunday morning of long ago was broken by the vibrant tones of the old church bell, how few there were who turned a deaf ear to its call. All the village answered tripping down to the old frame church, nestled among the roses and willows and flanked by the tombs of the faithful who had "fallen on sleep." Not only so, but plodding teams brought others from more distant points, the farmer, his good wife, the children and the hired man coming in response to that far call—a call heard by them only through the delicate ear of a tender conscience.

It is not so now. The tone of the bell is deeper, sweeter. It rings with the same regularity and its invitation carries all the meaning that accompanied the peal of the old, old bell in the temple of long ago. The church is nearer than it was then. Its pews are more comfortable. The preacher is as devout, and perhaps more able. The same Book is opened upon the altar and the same story of God's love and sacrifice for His people is told, though doubtless clothed in language more eloquent and more polished than fell from the lips of the devout men of other days, days when colleges were farther apart and dollars were likewise few and far between.

Why, then, the change in the response to the melodious summons of the deep-toned bells? Perhaps it's because of the confusion of sound, the scream of whistles and the clang and roar of rushing cars drowning the voices of the bells. And again it may be because of some subtle change in the man. He is busier now than he was when the wheels of commerce and of industry moved sluggishly along, when time was reckoned by days or weeks rather than by seconds or minutes. Yet he is the same man, equipped with heart and soul and conscience, and needing the same spiritual food if he would continue to grow in the graces that make for peace here and joy hereafter.

Somewhere in the Book will be found the words, "forsake not the assembling of yourselves together," and again, "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and the Lord harkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before Him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon His name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him."

Let us, in our day and generation, therefore, heed the voice of the bells as "one clear call for us," and with this spirit predominant in our hearts we shall indeed, on the glorious morning, be enabled to rise with Him from our dead selves and realize that He is indeed the Son of God, our risen Saviour and our eternal reward.

The St. Paul railroad completed its trans-continental route without a speech and without driving a golden spike.

EVERY HOUR OF THE DAY.

J. H. Hill & Son, the reliable druggists of Goldsboro, are having calls for "HINDIPO," the new Kidney Cure and Nerve Tonic that they are selling under a positive guarantee.

Its merits are becoming the talk of his town and everybody wants to try it, and why not? It costs nothing if it don't do you good—not one cent.

They don't want your money if it does not benefit you, and will cheerfully refund the money. Try it to-day.

THE THEORY VINDICATED.

The maturer wisdom of these later years has at length reached the stature of the clear-brained men of the so-called Old South, who in their day interpreted the constitution aright—in accordance with the teachings of the fathers as to states' rights, and every day that doctrine—the wisdom and saving grace of it, is coming to be more and more recognized and re-established.

Only this week the Supreme Court of the United States, the tribunal of last resort, forcibly enunciated this doctrine in reversing Judge Jeter C. Pritchard, in a manner that he surely will not soon forget, when he is again asked to interfere in suits brought against a state. A state cannot be sued in a Federal court. The eleventh amendment has been put back into the constitution and revitalized.

In winding up the state dispensary of South Carolina the state dispensary commission was authorized by the state to collect all moneys due the state and to pay all just bills. Because the state commission did not settle bills promptly various creditors brought suits in the Federal courts. And when the attorney-general of South Carolina endeavored to secure from the dispensary commission $15,000 which had been appropriated by the legislature of South Carolina for the conduct of certain criminal prosecutions the dispensary commission refused to hand over the money because the Federal courts had enjoined the paying out of any of the dispensary funds. The Circuit Court of Appeals sustained Judge Pritchard's interference with the domestic affairs of a state, but when the case was heard in the United States Supreme Court Judge Pritchard was left without a leg to stand on. The court of last resort simply said the suits were against the state and no Federal court had a right to entertain them. This re-establishes the eleventh amendment, but it puts Judge Jeter C. Pritchard in an embarrassing position. The states have some rights and one of those rights is freedom from suits brought in any form in the Federal courts. Little by little, the states may be said to be regaining their reserved rights.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
